COURT TO HEAR LODGE KILLING DETAILS TODAY

Dismissal of Four Murder Warrants in Death of Howell Varnadoe To Be Asked of Court.

MOTHER CHARGES PLOT AGAINST SON

Mr. and Mrs. Victor Curtis, Marie Welsh and Ed McConnell Tell of Fireman's Death.

Hearing on warrants charging Mr. and Mrs. Victor Curtis, Miss Marie Welch and Ed McConnell with the murder of Howell Varnadoe, fireman, who was shot to death in Curtis lodge roadhouse early Tuesday morning, will be held this morning in Judge Luther Z. Rosser's court, when investigators of the office of Solicitor General John Boykin are expected to disclose their hand and indicate the course to which their conclusions point.

On the eve of the hearing, Attorney William Schley Howard, counsel for the quartet, is reported to be prepared to demand release of all those under charges on the ground that no evidence has been presented upon which to hold them.

At the same time, it was rumored that L. C. Varnadoe, Jr., brother of the slain fireman who secured the warrants, would ask that three of the four warrants be dismissed. This rumor, however, was denied by Mr. Varnadoe.

While the case was nearing an airing in open court, Mrs. L. C. Varnadoe, Sr., mother of the dead man, Tuesday charged that the death of her son was the result of a "deep-laid plot."

Mrs. Varnadoe declared she was purposely misled when McConnell came to her home Monday afternoon and spoke of plans for a party that night at the Piedmont Driving club.

"They have taken my boy out and killed him," Mrs. Varnadoe said. She appeared very bitter over the tragedy and declared that she wants his "murderer" punished.

McConnell Denies Charges.

McConnell denied Mrs. Varnadoe's charges that he had had any hand in harming her boy when told of Mrs. Varnadoe's statement.

He declared he went to the Varnadoe home only in order to meet Varnadoe's parents.

He has not been served with the warrant taken out Tuesday night, but surrendered at Solicitor John A. Boykin's office. Since he was not served he has not been arrested, and did not spend Wednesday night in Fulton Tower as did the three others charged with murder in the warrants.

McConnell declared that he was the best friend Howell Varnadoe had.

"I thought a lot of him," he declared. McConnell expressed himself as astounded at the murder charges preferred by Varnadoe's brother, and said that the swearing out of the warrants was a grave and unnecessary injustice.

Henry Battle, negro cook at Curtis' roadhouse, who prepared the chicken supper for the party Tuesday night,

MEMORIAL COIN SALES INCREASE

Division Leaders' Reports Continue To Show Marked Interest in Drive in Atlanta.

Reports from one division of the Confederate Memorial coin campaign workers Wednesday night brought the total cash sales to date to 19,319 coin certificates, officials announced. Two other committees will report at a luncheon on Friday.

William G. Smith, vice president of the American Railway Express company and division chairman, presided at the meeting. His division alone Wednesday reported the sale of 1,755 coin certificates.

In a brief campaign address, Mr. Smith told his workers that 100,000 names were written on the visitors' registry at Stone Mountain in 1924, including a large number of Atlantans as well as citizens from other states, indicating the appeal the monument is to public.

"The coins are in the banks of the city and the eyes of the nation are on Atlanta. We must see to it that the city does not fail and I know that it will not fail," Mr. Smith declared.

"Everybody seems to be asking what is Atlanta doing in the memorial coin campaign. If Atlanta disposes of its quota of 200,000 coins at an early date a record pace will be

LIGHTS OF NEW YORK

As Seen by—

Pierre Van Paassen

New York, May 27.—There is a stealthy look in the eyes of the out-of-town visitor who is lured to visit the old Bowery. Warily he glances about. In his imagination he sees thugs and gunmen emerging out of dark doorways and stays close behind the guide and heaves a sigh of relief when he spots a cop.

His suspicions are unfounded. For the truth of the matter is that the Bowery is one of the most respectable neighborhoods of New York if we are to judge by the amount of crime committed in different localities.

There are more hold-ups, pickpockets and robberies on Broadway than anywhere else in town.

The search for the healthiest child in the metropolitan population of eight million is finished. The little fellow is Joseph Pennachio.

He does not come from any pampered nursery in a castled mansion, but is the youngest of 10 children of a family living on Mulberry street, the heart of the east side.

Joseph's ruddy cheeks and perfect body, in those surroundings of squalor and congestion, are a little puzzler for the sociologists.

Office girls working in the theatrical district spend the lunch hour at the Arcadia dancing hall, Broadway and 53rd street. In addition to having an hour of lively recreation, they are offered lunch free by the management. Other dancing emporiums are following suit.

Signor Gatti-Cazzazi, manager of the Metropolitan opera made one definite promise before he sailed for Europe. The company will produce an opera next season which will embody the American spirit. Deems Taylor has written the score. This ought to be the greatest cultural event of the year.

I witnessed a chess game the other night that lasted from 10 in the evening till 6 in the morning. Max Rosen, the violinist played a prominent Broadway actress, who strangely enough objects to having her name mentioned in this connection. The game was a draw.

Grand Duke Boris looked in at a musicale the other afternoon where Rafaelo Diaz, the American tenor was giving a few selections.

He's a man with an immobile poker face, who looks as blase as a "fed-up" English lord. But he creates a flutter wherever he goes. Russian court circles could not have been more deferential than certain American groups are in their bowing, scraping and pirouetting around visiting European noblemen.

There must be a conspiracy between those scientific dieticians and fashionable supper clubs. The doctors say, always leave the table just a little bit hungry. The restauranteurs see to it that you follow this advice. The bigger and "Frenchier" the names on the menus, the smaller the portions, I have discovered.

Aurbach, the famous etcher is always on the look-out for types. He often descends into dives and joints in his search for material.

Not long ago he passed through Sewart park and he almost went into raptures when he saw on a bench the most unkempt, dirty-looking, shaggy bum he had ever laid eyes on. He told the fellow to come to his studio.

When the seedy-looking individual appeared he was kicked out by the elevator man. Aurbach was furious. But the next day he located his man on the same spot and walked hand in hand with him to his studio.

"That fellow gave me a chance to do my best work," Aurbach told me. And to be sure you can't get a print of the etching anywhere under $500.

I always thought it took a whole lot of moral courage to come out with a walking stick. A recent experience has changed my opinion. It's not a luxury. It's a vital necessity in this town. The only decent watch I ever had is gone. But it will be the last to ever leave me that way. Preparedness is the slogan henceforth. And my national anthem: "It's the land of the shillelah."

Vice President Brings Battle on Senate Procedure to South in Address at Birmingham.

UNDERWOOD GIVES HIS FULL APPROVAL

Invocation of Force Bill Argument Against Proposed Reform Ridiculed by Vice President.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Birmingham, Ala., May 27.—Power needed to reform rules of the senate rests alone with the voters, Vice President Charles G. Dawes said here tonight in an address before the annual meeting of the Associated Industries of Alabama, and he hopes to invoke that force in his effort to change a system under which the upper house of congress "has done business for 119 years without effective cloture."

His is an unsought task, and he is not "in search of contest or trouble," he asserted, but there has come to him "the conviction that it was the duty of the vice president to carry this issue in a non-partisan and non-sectional campaign to those states which will elect senators in 1926.

In emphazing his position, General Dawes said he hoped to see "that this non-partisan issue is clearly defined" in the primaries for nomination of senators, adding that he was concerned because of his constitutional relations with the senate, "in the common sense expediting of business."

Ridicules Force Bill.

Carrying his campaign into the heart of Dixie, and speaking from the same platform with Senator Oscar W. Underwood, General Dawes declared that "the south is too intelligent to be deluded into the idea that to protect it against another force bill, the right at times should be given to a minority, or even one senator, to throw a monkey wrench into the legislative machinery of the common government."

Answering critics of his reform campaign, General Dawes said that unlimited debate "had not checked multiplicity of laws, but had resulted in their passage without proper consideration." Those who maintain that no bill beaten by fillibuster was not condemned by ultimate public opinion, are attempting to beg the question, he asserted, by assuming that the only bill affected by a filibuster is the one under discussion and that their personal judgment is conclusive as to what constitutes public opinion. He referred to the force bill, beaten, by a filibuster, as "a wrong measure," which would have been repealed if passed. This isolated argument of proponents of present rules, he declared, was an effort intended to "affect the great intelligent south and to revive those unhappy issues which have died alike in the north and south."

Seeks to Correct Evils.

Men of the north and men of the south have fought together in two wars since the force bill was an issue, he continued, pointing out that this is a debate upon the necessity of correcting "great existing evils," and not upon past special cases. He added that government policy "must be grounded upon general and not exceptional and isolated instances." He said he was asking only that the minority, "protected as it is by the checks and balances of the constitution, shall not exercise veto rights over the will of a majority when that majority desires only to exercise its constitutional rights of legislation."

Instead of rules which, he said, "encourage parliamentary misbehavior in individual senators and invited selfishness, mediocrity and vanity," General Dawes advocated a system which would provide for majority cloture

FOREIGN MISSION PROBE IS ASKED

U. S. Presbyterian Assembly Hear Charges of Modernism Among Missionary Workers.

Lexington, Ky., May 27.—(By the Associated Press.)—Charges that modernism had cropped out among Presbyterian missionaries in foreign fields were made on the floor of the general assembly of the Presbyterian church here today.

The discussion arose during consideration of the report of the committee on foreign missions. An overture from the presbytery of Dallas, Texas, charged that "the conviction is widespread through our church that there is an entirely too willing tolerance with modernism which has invaded our missionary forces."

It asked that the assembly appoint a committee to make a thorough investigation of the foreign mission work, both at home and abroad, and that the findings be given to the church at large.

SEA IS COMBED IN VAIN SEARCH FOR AMUNDSEN

Ship's Crew Once Has Vision of Seeing Wrecked Plane—It Was Only Drifting Ice.

RELIEF MEETING TO BE HELD TODAY

Steamer Runs Out of Fresh Water and Is Forced To Get New Supply From Iceberg.

BY JAMES B. WHARTON.
Special to The Constitution and North American Newspaper Alliance.

King's Bay, Spitzbergen (By Radio from Steamer Farm), May 27.—Two false alarms today roused momentary hopes among the Amundsen-Ellsworth base party aboard the steamer Farm and served as indication of the frayed nerves caused by the protracted suspense.

Early this morning, while we were cruising slowly north along the Spitzbergen coast, one of the deck hands noticed an object floating in the water eight or ten miles to the westward. It glinted in the sunlight with the color of battleship gray, in which our Dornier-Wal airplanes are clad.

It Was Only Ice.

We gathered along the rail in great excitement while our most skilfull lookout scrambled aloft through the ice-clad ropes of the tall foremast and focused his glasses on the distant object. It proved to be only a bit of drift ice.

An hour later, while we were seated at breakfast, a bubbling coffee pot in the galley gave a perfect imitation of the distant pounding of an aeroplane propeller and sent all of us scurrying away from the mess table to the portholes.

During the past 24 hours, we have cruised all along the west coast of Spitzenberg to the edge of the ice pack on the north. Through the warm, bright sunshine we zigzagged back and forth over the sea, studying every speck on the water in vain hopes of finding our missing planes.

Relief Talk Premature.

Brief details of several proposals for relief expeditions on behalf of the fliers reached here today over the radio and were discussed by members of the base party.

According to opinion here, this talk is still premature. On board the mother ships, the feeling persists that there still is good reason to hope for Amundsen's safe return.

Five o'clock this afternoon marked the end of the sixth day since the fliers' departure. If no news is received by the same hour tomorrow, the conference of the entire base unit will be held to consider the advisability of an appeal for a relief expedition. Such an appeal would probably be made through the Norwegian government.

Weather Still Fair.

The weather continues excellent, and our meteorologists, who are receiving from 50 to 100 wireless weather reports daily from all parts of the northern hemisphere, assure us that similar conditions prevail throughout the Arctic.

Our ship ran out of fresh water today and we have the unusual experience of filling our tanks from an iceberg. At the entrance of Magdalena bay we tied up to a floating block of ice as large as the Flatiron building. The crew clambered off onto a projecting ice shelf armed with broad-bladed ice picks and for two hours they chipped off great blocks of fresh-water ice, which was

BREAK IN RANKS OF PRESBYTERIANS IS THREATENED

Modernists Declare Split Will Come if Action Is Upheld on Literal Acceptance of Virgin Birth.

PROTEST IS FILED AGAINST RULING

Dissolution of New York Presbytery May Result After Defiance of General Assembly.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Columbus, Ohio, May 27.—A definite break in the Presbyterian church in the United States of America is imminent, modernists in the denomination's general assembly in session here declared today.

The split will come, Dr. Henry Sloan Coffin, New York, representing the decidedly liberal presbytery there, said if the various presbyteries uphold action of the assembly yesterday in voting that a literal acceptance of the virgin birth is a necessary qualification of any one who enters its ministry.

While the modernists made clear their position in this regard today, ultra-fundamentalists, through Dr. Clarence Edward MacArtney, former moderator and one of their leaders, asserted that the "law and authority of the church will be upheld" if the New York presbytery continues to license ministers who do not accept in full all the creedal and doctrinal beliefs of the church.

Protest Fosdick Ruling.

A protest against the ruling of the judicial commission yesterday in holding that the New York presbytery went against the law of the church in licensing ministers to preach who could not affirm belief in the virgin birth, was formally presented to the assembly today by the Rev. Charles E. Swartz, of Chicago. This, church leaders pointed out, is in reality a dissenting opinion of the assembly itself, marking a direct line of cleavage.

The protest was being circulated among the commissioners for signature and so far some 50 had appended their names.

It concerned entirely the licensing of Henry P. Vandusen, New York, who did not either affirm or deny

CONDUCTOR LEFT $4,000 BY WOMAN HE BEFRIENDED

Washington, May 27.—Conductor 975 of the Capital Traction company, known to his family and a few friends as James Gray, left his car several years ago and went over to the curb to escort an old lady aboard.

When she got off, he helped her to the curb again.

Wednesday he received a letter from Miss Annie Ward of Cincinnati, saying that her mother, Mrs. Mary Ward, had died and left him $4,000 because of his courtesy. It was so unusual that she never forgot it.

Ellsworth's Home Town

:: EXPLORER'S FATHER BUILT LITTLE OHIO CITY ::

Anxious Over Polar Trip

Hudson, Ohio, May 20—All ears in Hudson are turned to the radio to listen for the faintest indication of the whereabouts of Roald Amundsen and Lincoln Ellsworth, who have lost communication with the outside world in their aerial flight to the north pole.

Anxiety is tense here, for it is this town which Ellsworth, in the midst of ease and comfort, left to join the intrepid Norwegian explorer in his hardships in the far north. It was in the luxurious Ellsworth mansion here that the plans for the expedition were laid.

This was in November on the last visit Ellsworth made to the place where the ambitions of his father were shattered. He stayed in the place only 24 hours but the lights were left burning until nearly dawn while the two explorers laid their plans.

The name of Hudson and Ellsworth are synonymous.

James W. Ellsworth, father of the Arctic explorer, and now a multi-millionaire coal operator, is the son of a village storekeeper. He went from here to the Ohio mining fields and rose to fortune, founding the James W. Ellsworth company and the Cambridge Collieries company.

In 1911 the elder Ellsworth returned to live among his boyhood scenes and laid his ambitions for an ideal American town.

"Trees must be planted 50 feet apart," he planned, all houses must have red tile roofs. There would be no street cars. The town must be kept "dry."

He underwrote all the improvements, paved the streets and built a light and water plant, a $125,000 school, a model parsonage, a church, and a bank.

Some of the populace, however, soon began to quarrel over the benefits and, disappointed and disgusted, the elder Ellsworth left to reside among paintings of Botticelli in a luxurious villa in Florence, Italy.

Lincoln is the only son. After leaving college he engaged in engineering work in the Canadian northwest and took part in geological surveys in half a dozen other countries.

Society has always bored him, friends say, and he has sought the far-away places in an unquenchable thirst for adventure. He served as an aviator during the world war. Following the war he led a geological survey into the undiscovered places of the South American Andes.

Although some of the relatives of Lincoln are alarmed over his fate, many of his old-time friends are inclined to believe the expedition is purposely remaining near the pole to satisfy the spirit of adventure and research that seethes in the soul of Hudson's now-famous son.

CREATION OF FIRE MARSHAL'S OFFICE IS GIVEN APPROVAL

Proposed Ordinance Now Goes to Finance Board Before Being Returned for Council Action.

Approval of the measure introduced in council by Councilman C. G. Allen providing for creation of a city fire marshal and clothing that official with authority to inspect all buildings in Atlanta to ascertain their safety, was registered by the fire board at its meeting Wednesday afternoon when it returned a favorable report on the measure. The ordinance will now be sent to the finance committee for reconsideration before it comes up for its second reading in council.

Speeches in favor of the passage of the measure were made by Councilman Allen, who is a member of the fire board, and Fire Chief W. B. Cody. It passed by a unanimous vote of members present, these being Councilman Allen, T. C. Morris, fifth ward, and W. R. Johnson, eleventh ward. Chairman Jesse Armistead, of the seventh ward, and Alderman Oscar Williamson, of the ninth ward, were not present. Councilman Morris presided at the meeting.

Provision Outlined.

Councilman Allen's measure provides for creation of the office of city fire marshal, and provides for his election by council for an indefinite term, subject to discharge for failure to perform the duties satisfactorily. The salary for the office was fixed temporarily at $4,000 and this was amended by the fire committee to read $5,000. The duties of the marshall will be to inspect fire hazards in Atlanta, examine old and unsafe

U. S. WILL PRESS BRIBERY CHARGES AGAINST OIL TRIO

New Indictment Alleging Conspiracy Is Returned by Grand Jury in Teapot Dome Case.

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER.

Washington, May 28.—Despite the omission of bribery charges against Albert B. Fall and Edward L. Doheny from the new indictments against them returned here Wednesday, government oil counsel insist that they have not given up their attempt to establish the transfer of $100,000 cash in a little black satchel as a bribe.

"That's tommyrot," snorted ex-Senator Atlee Pomerene, one of the government oil counsel, when he read a statement from Doheny's lawyer at Los Angeles, declaring the failure to return bribery indictments was a victory for his client and that the government had given up hope of getting anywhere with the charge of bribery.

Charges Not Abandoned.

"They had better do their boasting after they take their armor off, not before they put it on," Pomerene declared with some heat.

"Then you have not abandoned the bribery charges?" he was asked.

"Of course not, but we're not making gestures and we're not going to try the case in the newspapers," Pomerene replied.

The government has obtained re-indictment of former Secretary of the Interior Fall, Harry F. Sinclair and the elder Doheny on charges of conspiracy in the leasing of government land reserved for the navy's oil supply.

In addition to dropping the bribery

SIX DEAD BODIES HAVE BEEN TAKEN FROM PIT OF MINE

Fans Kept Going Night and Day in Effort to To Keep Air Pure in North Carolina Mine.

RESCUE CAR SENT TO ENTOMBED MEN

Three Explosions Took Place Below 1,000-Foot Lateral at Half Hour Intervals.

Sanford, N. C., May 27.—Four of the six bodies recovered from the Carolina Coal company mine at Cumnock were identified late Wednesday night.

They were Hollis Richardson, Will Irick, A. L. Holland, W. E. Bierby.

The names were made public by company officials, who were making every effort to establish the identity of the two other men.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Coal Glen, N. C., May 27.—The fate of three score miners, buried at 9:30 o'clock this morning by an explosion below the 1,000-foot lateral of the Carolina Coal company's mine, near here, was undetermined tonight.

Mine workers, who had entered the main shaft in relays during the day, succeeded in bringing to the surface six bodies, the first to be taken from the pit.

Records of the mine showed that 59 men, 39 white and 20 negroes, had comprised the crew which went into the mine at 8 a. m., while mine officials reported that 71 miners' lamps were out, and it was believed the entombed list might be increased when finally checked.

Hope Men Are Alive.

Hope was expressed tonight by Bion H. Butler, vice president of the mining company, and William Hill, of the Cumnock Coal mine nearby, that the entombed men might still live. Miners from the Cumnock company aided throughout the day in the work of rescue.

Mr. Hill said that the air was clear in the mine below where the bodies were found, and this was held by officials to indicate that the entrapped men might still survive. The fans were kept going all day purifying the inner recesses of the mine, that eager fellow workers and those from nearby points might penetrate further into the dark passages that were believed to hold the victims of the disaster.

Mr. Butler told newspapermen tonight that his information was to the effect that the first explosion was in the second right lateral of the mine, approximately 1,000 feet from the entrance. He added that if this was true, the main shaft may not have filled with gas, but merely was blocked with debris.

The two subsequent explosions were believed by officials to have occurred between the second right shaft and the opening. The second and

:: SINGLE STEM HELD PARENT OF MAN AND APE ::

But Denies Monkey Theory

Lexington, Ky., May 27.—(By the Associated Press.)—John T. Scopes, of Paducah, Ky., who is under indictment by a grand jury at Dayton, Tenn., on charges of violating the state's anti-evolution law, believes that "man and all animals ascended from the lower orders, but I have never seen or read any scientific statement that man is 'descended from a monkey,' and I do not believe that."

Mr. Scopes made his statement here today while visiting the University of Kentucky, from which he was graduated last June. The 24-year-old teacher in the Dayton schools appeared to be somewhat embarrassed by the publicity which the Tennessee test case, instituted by his friends, has brought to him. He is looking forward, however, to the trial at a special term of the Rhea county circuit court set for July 10.

The trial, he believes, affects not so much himself as the educational progress of the state.

He denied any pretentious scientific knowledge, or that he had ever professed to teach any science but the elementary high school courses in general science. This is his first year as an instructor since he was graduated.

Scopes teaches physics, biology and other general courses.

"No person could teach even the most elementary courses in biology without recognition of the evidences of modern scientific theories of evolution and the development of man. He stated his acceptance of the belief that man and the anthropoid apes came from a parent stem, but not that he descended fro the other.

Scopes said he made no attempt to teach evolution either as a theory or a fact, except as it came up incidentally in text books adopted by the state of Tennessee.

To the best of his memory, he first mentioned the question several months ago when one of his students in a physics class asked his belief about the theory of evolution, which he explained as simply as possible from the knowledge which he had obtained while a student at the University of Illinois and the University of Kentucky, Scopes said.

The test case, now famous, originated in a drug store conversation some weeks ago, when some of the Dayton citizens were discussing the Tennessee law prohibiting the teaching in public schools of any theory of creation contrary to the Biblical account, he said. Scopes stated that Dr. J. W. Rappleyea, chemist with the Columbia Coal and Iron company at Dayton, Tenn., asked if he would be willing to submit to arrest to test the law and that he consented. The title of the case has since been changed to make Walter White, superintendent of the Rhea county schools, the plaintiff.

MERGER OF STATE OFFICES IS URGED

Comptroller Recommends Consolidation of His Department With That of Revenue Commissioner.

In addition to recommending that the Georgia inheritance tax law be administered through a special officer in the office of the comptroller general, State Tax Commissioner H. J. Fullbright Wednesday urged consolidation of his office and that of the state revenue commissioner, in his annual report submitted to the governor.

Commissioner Fullbright points out that his term as tax commissioner will expire during the next session of the general assembly, and therefore the two offices of tax commissioner and revenue commissioner could be consolidated without working hardship upon any official now in office.

Suggesting that supervising and administration of the inheritance tax law should be placed in the office of the comptroller-general, Mr. Fullbright says:

SCRAPPING OF 200 SHIPS APPROVED

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Washington, May 27.—The shipping board took a step today toward weeding out obsolete vessels and placing its fleet on a more compact basis, adopting a resolution recommended by its scrapping committee, specifying that 200 designated ships should be advertised for sale as scrap.

The action was hailed by Chairman O'Connor as one which would enable the board to turn its attention more definitely to the sale of ships for operation. He left immediately after the board meeting for Detroit to keep an appointment tomorrow with Henry Ford, who is expected to bid for the ships to be scrapped and, in addition, has indicated that he might buy 20 or 30 others for operation, including a number of refrigerator vessels.

Discuss Sale With Ford.

Mr. O'Connor intends to discuss the refrigerator vessel situation and also the possible purchase of other ships for operation along lines indicated in a conversation with Mr. Ford a few weeks ago. The refrigerator ships have been idle several years, but it has been said they could be used to carry automobile parts to South America and bring back fruits.

The ships selected for scrapping will be advertised for sale at an early date under terms and conditions which will be prepared by the board's scrapping committee, composed of Chairman O'Connor and Commissioners Plummer and Benson, and approved by the board. Whether all will be offered for sale at once or in small lots over a considerable period was a question not gone into today.

The resolution for the sale was approved, four to one, with Commissioner Lissner casting the dissenting vote. He said, however, that he was in favor of selling for scrapping, but objected to some of the details in the report of the scrapping committee.

Statement of O'Connor.

In a statement Mr. O'Connor said: "This matter of scrapping ships has, of necessity, claimed a great deal of our time. Now that this scrapping of useless ships is definitely under way, we hall turn our attention to useful active ships and make every possible effort to get bids for them from private American citizens who will make the ships more useful. The Dieselizing of a ship is very expensive, but it is economy. If private operators make bids for Americans ships and guarantee to Dieselize them and to operate them under the American flag for a period of years, they should receive extremely favorable consideration as to price and terms of payment. We have talked for some time about getting a privately-owned American merchant marine. The thing to do now is to go out and get one if possible. To do this the board will bend every effort."

Beautiful Atlanta Girls Enter "Bridesmaid Contest" To Appear in "Abie's Irish Rose" During Next Week

A few of the hundreds of Atlanta girls who have entered the contest conducted by The Constitution to pick three of the most beautiful girls in Atlanta to play the parts of three braidesmaids in "Abie's Irish Rose," famous comedy drama, which opens its Atlanta engagement at the Atlanta theater next Monday night. Left to right, Miss Roberta Goodin, Miss Billie Hayes, Miss Margie Flynn and Miss DeVries Davis.

Just one day and a half to go—then the big "Bridesmaid contest," conducted by The Constitution in order to find the three prettiest girls in Atlanta to fill the roles of bridesmaids in the comedy, "Abie's Irish Rose," which opens at the Atlanta theater on Monday night, will come to a close.

Positively no entries in the contest will be considered which reach this office later than noon Friday. After that hour judges will be busy selecting three winners from the hundreds of photographs sent in and, some time Friday night the three fortunate young women will be notified. That is so they may have ample time to arrange to give all their time next week to their work on the stage and also may be on hand at the theater on Monday morning for rehearsals.

"Abie's Irish Rose" is one of the most remarkable stage productions in thespian history. Written by a Georgia girl, turned down by every producer on Broadway, produced by the author herself, scorned by every critic in New York, the play nevertheless has attracted more people to the box office, has caused more genuine laughs and has run longer in every town and city it has visited than any previous stage offering. The original company still is playing in New York after more than three years continuous run.

Selection of Company.

Road companies, each of them picked with the same care that distinguished the original cast, have played the comedy in the leading cities, in every instance playing continuous runs to packed houses for long periods. The Atlanta engagement is for one week, but it is a safe bet, judging by the universal experience elsewhere, that pressure will be brought to bear to keep the show here longer, after the first few audiences have had a chance to tell their friends and also to arrange to go back themselves and see it again.

There are three bridesmaids in the cast and each of the three roles is to be filled by a local girl. The Constitution undertook to find these three by running this "Bridesmaid Beauty" contest and, as a result, there is a stack of photos of more good-looking girls than even a perennial optimist could believe lived in one city.

Entrants must send in a good photograph with the blank which is published with this story, filled in and attached. Candidates to be eligible must be over 16 years of age, not less than 5 feet 5 inches nor more than 5 feet 7 inches tall, and of slender build.

The three winners will be paid for their work on the stage and all costumes will be furnished.

Opportunities Offered.

This contest offers an unique opportunity for three Atlanta girls to get a chance at a stage career. For the stage manager of "Abie's Irish Rose" is experienced in his business and acts as "scout" for a number of famous New York producers. If he discovers any genuine talent in any of the Atlanta girls who come under his observation during the engagement here, it is altogether likely that he will put them in touch with a New York producer at some time later.

So, girls, send in your photographs with the application blank attached. Address them to "Bridesmaid Editor, c/o Constitution." And, if you are at all doubtful of the mails getting them here on time, you had better bring them to this office yourself. For, as stated, the contest will positively close at Friday noon and no pictures that come in after that hour will be considered.

NAVAL OFFICER IS FOUND GUILTY ON RUM CHARGES

Norfolk, Va., May 27.—(By the Associated Press.)—Lieutenant Roland D. Hill, Jr., was found guilty by a court-martial today of two charges and was acquitted of another charge growing out of the finding of liquor aboard the naval transport Beaufort when she docked here February 24 from the West Indies.

HOPE IS EXPRESSED FOR MINERS' LIVES

third explosion came at half-hour intervals after that at 9:30 o'clock, which had blocked the men from the entrance.

Mine authorities said the finding of the six bodies climaxed what appeared to be almost a rescue for them, the men apparently having died only a short time before they were reached.

This section tonight presented a scene of sorrow and suspense, with women and children composing the families of the men caught in the lap of the disaster gathered as near the scene as possible, waiting and praying that their fathers or brothers might be returned safely to them, yet grimly realizing that only a miracle could have saved them.

Wait Feverishly for Aid.

Many, too, awaited hopefully for rescue cars rushing across neighboring states to the aid of the pent-in miners and hoped against time that they might not be too late. Leaders of the rescue work had been apprised of action taken by the bureau of mines at Washington to lend aid and were looking forward to their arrival, although feverish workers toiled as rapidly as possible that they might, if possible, effect a rescue at any hour.

Little hope of reaching the entombed men before tomorrow was held, those in charge admitted.

While two lorries of troops from Fort Bragg were sent to the scene, their services were declined. Adjutant General Metts, representing Governor McLean, is on the ground and declared that he would remain at the mine for two or three days.

Federal Aid Sought.

The first official communication from the scene of the disaster was received by Governor McLean at 4 o'clock this afternoon from Frank Page, chairman of the state highway commission, whom the governor had requested to visit the mine and take with him a corps of engineers. Also, the governor communicated with the bureau of mines in Washington, by long distance telephone and was told that a relief crew would be dispatched immediately to render whatever service the bureau was in a position to give.

"The explosion," said Governor McLean, announcing Mr. Page's findings, "destroyed the structure at the entrance to the shaft. That closed the opening and entrapped the men. There are now five or six men working on hour shifts. The opening is so small that a larger number cannot be used.

"It is not known whether the men working at the other extreme were able to cut themselves off from the fumes. It is possible some may have done so, as I understand there were some safety devices inside.

"I am prepared to send troops there at a moment's notice and perhaps shall do so. However, I am waiting on a further report from the adjutant general, whom I dispatched to the mine when I was first advised of the disaster."

Governor McLean has devoted the major part of the day to investigating the disaster.

RELIEF PLANS HALTED BY LOS ANGELES MAN.

Los Angeles, May 27.—(By the Associated Press.)—Plans for a seaplane expedition to go to the relief of Roald Amundsen, polar explorer, which have been going forward here for several days under the direction of Haakon H. Hammer, who led the relief of Amundsen in 1923, have been halted on advices from Spitzbergen headquarters of the American-Norwegian expedition that such a program is premature. This announcement was made here today by Hammer.

Amundsen's pocket knife, which the explorer used to whittle a marker for the south pole, when he discovered that point in 1911, may be used to cut his north pole expedition out of the difficulties which some arctic experts fear have been encountered.

Hammer has the knife and says he will sell it to the highest bidder in order to swell the fund he is raising to finance a seaplane expedition to search for the missing explorer.

AMUNDSEN PLANNED TO GO ON TO ALASKA.

New York, May 27.—(By the Associated Press.)—Amundsen, planned to go on to Alaska, if successful in his quest for the North Pole, it was announced today by Bernon S. Prentice, New York stock broker and brother-in-law of Lincoln Ellsworth, the explorer's companion on the trip.

"I happen to know it was Amundsen's intention, if conditions were favorable at the pole, to go on to Alaska," he said.

Prentice announced that he was chairman of an American advisory committee, appointed by Amundsen and Ellsworth before their departure, to take relief measures should they be necessary. His statement is considered important in the discussion which has arisen concerning the expedition's intentions in the event it reached "the top of the world."

Stefansson Confirms Statement.

Vilhjamur Stefansson, Arctic explorer and Wrangel Island colony founder, told the Associated Press last Saturday that he was certain Amundsen expected to extend his flight to Alaska after reaching the pole. This assertion met with a number of denials, several sources giving the assurance that Amundsen and Ellsworth planned to return to Spitzbergen directly the polar flight had been accomplished.

Prentice made no comment on these conflicting assertions beyond stating that he "happened to know" the Alaska trip had been Amundsen's intention, and adding "I know that he sacrificed the advantage of having a radio apparatus with him in order to be able to take on additional gasoline.

BREAK IN RANKS IS THREATENED

acceptance of the theory of the virgin birth.

Violation of Faith.

The holding of the commission, which became the judgment of the assembly by its adoption, violates the confession of faith itself, the protest asserted. The following chapter of the confession was quoted in substantiation: "The requiring of an implicit faith and an absolute and blind obedience is to destroy liberty and conscience and reason also."

"By requiring such absolute conformity," the protest said, "it restores those Roman Catholic theories of ecclesiastical authority which it was the very purpose of Presbyterian protestantism to overthrow."

While the modernists said that the appointment of a commission of 15 yesterday to study the whole issue probably will avert the break for another year, Dr. Coffin's statement declared that if the presbyteries "approve the doctrine it would mean a break in the church. The great majority in the church does not want a break.

"We wanted to state our position and if it ever comes up in civil court that would be the basis of our case. I hope it never comes to that."

Uphold Church Law.

Dr. MacArtney declared he thought "wiser counsel would prevail in the presbytery in New York than was manifested by the extraordinary and seemingly defiant actions of some of the New York commissioners yesterday.

"Should the presbytery of New York continue in its unconstitutional course and defy the high court of the church, then the law and authority of the Presbyterian church in the United States of America will be upheld.

"Presbyterians have never been known as men who were intimidated by threats or who had not sufficient courage to vindicate the power of their government.

"Open defiance of the general assembly could have no other issue than the dissolution of the presbytery of New York."

"A resolution, written by William Jennings Bryan, protesting against gambling, was adopted by the assembly today. "We urge our ministers to preach against this alluring and demoralizing vice and we petition our lawmakers to banish it by statutes, state and national," the resolution declared.

Signers of the protest included commissioners from many sections of the countries. Represented were presbyteries and synods in New Jersey, Montana, Minnesota, Wisconsin, St. Louis, Ohio, Iowa, Chicago and other Illinois cities.

The assembly was formally dissolved at noon by the moderator, Dr. Charles R. Erdman, of Princeton, N. J., who afterwards issued the call for the next assembly in Baltimore on the fourth Thursday of May, 1926.

By early afternoon the commissioners and church leaders from all sections of the United States and from virtually every corner of the world were on their way home.

Disposal of routine business marked the final hours of the gathering.

istration of the inheritance taxes is a matter that should not be involved either in state or local politics. The state should provide suitable machinery for the administration of this law and probably the best plan for this would be through creating the position of inheritance tax supervisor, in connection with the office of the comptroller general. Since a large portion of this work would call for skill and experience in handling legal matters, and particularly matters pertaining to estates, the attorney general should have a hand in the selection of the man to head this department.

"It is, therefore, suggested that the law be amended so as to authorize the comptroller general and the attorney general to select and employ a competent lawyer of sufficient ability and experience to act as supervisor of inheritance taxes, with all the powers and duties now conferred upon the state tax commissioner in such matters, together with authority to have all estates appraised, the taxes assessed and collected where the local authorities neglect to make the appraisement within 12 months from the death of the decedent. Under this plan the revenues arising from this source should average around $500,000 per annum instead of $300,000 as is the case at present."

Commissioner Fullbright also recommends a change in the dog tax, pointing out that it is at present only scantily enforced, and he urges the legislature to provide either a per capita tax on dogs or to repeal the dog tax altogether.

The net increase in taxable values for the state for 1924 was $18,000,000 in round figures, the report shows, while the increase for Fulton county alone was over $31,000,000 offsetting decreases in the rest of the state.

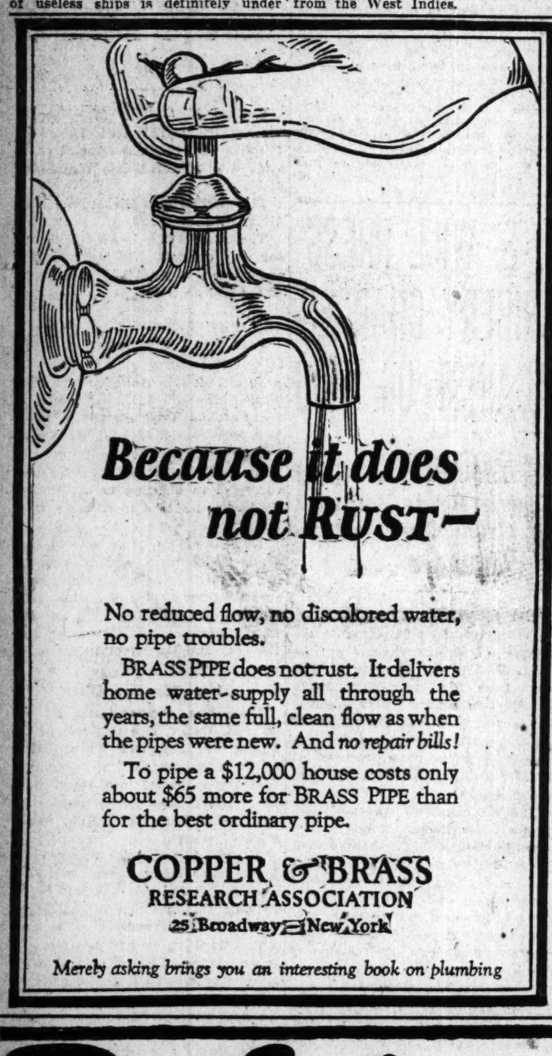

City real estate exceeded country real estate in tax values by $112,000,000, while there was a heavy loss in the total taxable value of stock and bonds returned for the year. The total loss on this item for the state was $1,776,641, while the loss in DeKalb county alone was $1,722,165.

This resulted, said the reports, from stocks returned at that amount in 1923 being omitted from the 1924 tax returns.

"This property having been withdrawn from the tax books," says the report, "there was no way that the state tax commissioner could reach it under the law, except through the employment of a special tax investigator, which he can do only upon the recommendation of the governor. The matter was reported to the governor and the name of a man who had had considerable experience in this line of work suggested."

PROBE OF NORMAN DISASTER STARTED

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Memphis, Tenn., May 27.—First sessions of the board of inquiry appointed to investigate the sinking of the United States steamer Norman in the Mississippi river near Memphis on May 8, with a loss of 23 lives, began here today. The initial question brought up for discussion related to the methods to be employed in conducting the investigation, which is expected to last several weeks.

Major H. H. Stickney, of Memphis, a government engineer, is chairman of the board, which was appointed recently by Colonel C. L. Potter, president of the Mississippi river commission. The personnel of the board includes two army officers and three civilians, all familiar with the Mississippi river.

Much information concerning the disaster has been presented to the board by Major Donald H. Connolly, a survivor of the sinking and an officer in the army engineers' corps, who has been in charge of a preliminary probe.

Hydrographic and topographic surveys of the scene where the Norman sank will be completed within the next few days by Major Douglas Gillette, who plans to turn them over to the board of inquiry.

Thirteen bodies have been recovered since the vessel sank.

DAWES ASKS VOTES TOO FORCE RREVISION

that would not prevent any senator from being fully heard upon any question, but would prevent a minority or individual senator from prolonging debate in order to destroy the constitutional right of a minority to legislate.

Senator Underwood, who preceded the vice president on the speaking program, lauded the efforts of General Dawes to promulgate rules that would limit debate in the senate, a reformation he has favored for more than a decade. He characterized the campaign for revised rules as "an issue that appeals to the common sense and good judgment of the people of the country." General Dawes, he said, had found something new under the sun—or at least he had "succeeded in making a new issue out of an old subject that has been with us for more than 100 years." Mr. Underwood declared he was in thorough sympathy with the sentiment that "some rule must be adopted that will enable a majority of the senate to control its affairs and conduct the business of the nation in an orderly and efficient manner."

Referring to the much discussed force bill, Mr. Underwood said that "no man can justify his opposition to a cloture rule on the ground that he is preserving the rights and liberties of the southern people thereby." In this connection, he cited efforts of leading southern senators since 1890 to cut off unlimited debate, adding that "surely they would not have proposed cloture if they had thought for a moment it endangered the civilization of their home people."

Cloture Feared by South.

"For the last half century," Mr. Underwood continued, "some of our people in the southern states have been apprehensive that if there were a cloture rule adopted, the south might be in danger of having its civilization overthrown and a weaker race placed in charge of state government."

"This may have been true," he said, "a quarter of a century ago, but it certainly is not true today." He characterized the fight on the force bill as "political" and one which did not go to the heart of the country.

Opposition to General Dawes' proposal comes from two sources, Mr. Underwood said: from some of the senators themselves, "because they enjoy debate and like unlimited discussion," and from "those persons outside the senate who are interested in special legislation, or, more particularly, in preventing legislation to which they are opposed. It is very much easier for those last named persons to accomplish the result they desire through delays in debate rather than to command votes to do it."

Majority Should Govern.

The constitution rightly affords protection to minorities against dictatorship of majorities, he asserted, but he contended that the constitution "authorizes a majority to govern." Many checks and balances, he said, were placed in the constitution to prevent hasty action and to prevent the power of the strong states to legislate to the detriment of the weak ones. He referred to New Mexico "with its sparse population" as having equal voice in the senate with New York, "with its teeming millions."

"The freedom of the government and the personal liberty of the people are not preserved by a majority band of senators," Mr. Underwood said in protesting present rules, which "permit endless delay if any senator desires to enforce them."

2 Youths Held Here Are Believed Wanted By Alabama Officials

Dickinson, alias Edwin Burruss, 22, of Birmingham, Ala., arrested Tuesday on charges of suspicion in connection with the theft of an automobile in Pensacola, Fla., recently, Wednesday were grilled and are said to have confessed to being two of five men who escaped from the Anniston, Ala., jail three weeks ago.

The men were arrested by Detectives A. Lamar Poole and S. A. Smith in an expensive automobile which the two are charged with having stolen in Pensacola, Fla., and driven to this city. The car is said to be the property of Fred E. Carpenter, of New Smyrna, Fla.

SHAVER DENIES ANY INTENTION OF RESIGNING

New York, May 27.—Clem Shaver, chairman of the democratic national committee, said today at the Waldorf that he has no intention of resigning his position at this time.

Reports from Washington indicated that Mr. Shaver was expected to step out to make way for the election of Representative William A. Oldfield, of Arkansas. Mr. Shaver made it clear that, so far as he is concerned, the proposal has no existence.

Joint memorial services this morning of the grand lodge, the grand encampment and the grand assembly will formally close the annual convention of Georgia Odd Fellows and the Rebekahs, the woman's auxiliary.

Election of officers featured sessions Wednesday of the two bodies, after welcome addresses by Governor Walker and Mayor Sims had been heard. Wednesday night's program was featured by contests in which crack degree teams participated, representing a number of Georgia I. O. O. F. lodges. Seven Rebekah drill teams also entered the contest.

Installation of new officers and selection of the 1926 meeting place will divide attention at today's final sessions. During both morning and afternoon sessions today, prominent Georgia Odd Fellows will address the gathering.

ommended instead that the investigation be placed in the hands of the executive committee on foreign relations.

The recommendations were adopted. A substitute sought to have the matter placed in the hands of an ad interim committee. Dr. H. W. Burwell, of Dallas, whose presbytery brought charges, spoke on them, quoting from the overture that "modernism can never win souls to Christ, and if we would be a fruitful witness for Him, we must cleanse our borders of appearance of evil"

"The presbytery of Dallas has heard with deep and sincere regret the distressing conditions existing in our foreign mission work," the overture read. "While we most willingly grant all possible influence from war in China and the anti-American feeling in Japan, we do not feel that these conditions furnish an adequate explanation for said reduction in converts and offerings, together with a large increase in our existing deficit, only full and first-hand information can dispell prevailing feeling of anxiety and distrust. Our people are both loyal and liberal. They have a right to continue all of the facts and will be satisfied with nothing less."

Dr. J. H. Lacy, of Clarksville, Tenn., declared that "we don't want modernism in our church," but said that to appoint an ad interim committee to consider the matter would be to admit that "rottenness" prevailed to such an extent that it needed extra constitutional power to correct.

Dr. S. M. Glasgow, of Knoxville, Tenn., member of the foreign missions committee, said that the ad interim committee was necessary because the integrity of the committee was questioned. He was assured, however, by various speakers that the committee was not questioned, but that the teaching of some of the missionaries was a matter that was being viewed with alarm.

The assembly then voted down the proposition to have the matter considered by an ad interim committee and adopted the foreign mission's report placing investigation in the hands of executive committee on foreign missions.

Elimination of all special appeals for funds and concentration upon the budget was voted today by the assembly. The budget for benevolences for 1926-27 was fixed at $4,750,000.

In considering the report of the standing committee on stewardship, the assembly heard that since inauguration of present policies the church budget has grown from $1,500,000 for benevolences in 1915 to an amount around $4,000,000 this year, "putting our church in the very forefront among the churches in America in benevolences."

Mission Body Criticised.

Before taking up the stewardship report, the assembly concluded action on the foreign missions committee report.

A recommendation was made and accepted that the executive committee reopen the case of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Hancock, recalled missionaries from Tiach, China, and if possible, return them to China. The presbytery of Durant, Okla., is seeking their return to the foreign field.

The Hancocks were recalled two years ago because of the condition of Mrs. Hancock's health. Since that time they have remained in this country, and the executive committee was criticised for errors made in considering their case.

A resolution of confidence in the executive committee on foreign missions was adopted.

Loyalty Week Designated.

Turning to the stewardship report, the assembly concentrated on the church budget classifying the synods on a per capita basis and specifying the apportionments that may be made to various agencies. It recommended that support of causes not represented on the approved church budget be discouraged until its own needs have been met.

Among other actions were designation of the sixth week prior to the close of the ecclesiastical year, 1926, as loyalty week; that the loyalty of the women to the budget be commended, and that the month of November be designated as Christian stewardship study month.

Six synods were placed in the highest per capita quota, that of $12 per year. Oklahoma's quota was placed $5 and Snedecor Memorial (negro) synod, $2 per capita.

North Carolina in $12 classification, asked for the largest amount, $850,084; Virginia second, $728,788; Texas third, $396,853.

Others Are Classified.

Classification and apportionments approved were:

Quota $12 per capita: Appalachian, $267,526; Kentucky, $248,870; Louisiana, $156,504; North Carolina, $850,084; Tennessee, $203,242; Virginia, $728,788.

Eleven dollars per capita: Georgia, $344,564; South Carolina, $403,183; West Virginia, $174,383.

Ten dollars per capita: Arkansas, $139,470; Florida, $177,410.

Nine dollars per capita: Alabama, $203,470; Mississippi, $208,341; Missouri, $166,896; Texas, $396,853.

Five dollars per capita: Oklahoma, $21,501.

Two dollars per capita: Snedecor Memorials, $3,948.

Totals, $4,764,303.

The assembly decided that 60 per cent of the amount should be apportioned for assembly causes as follows:

Foreign missions, 33 3-10 per cent; home missions, 16 per cent; Christian education and ministerial relief, 7 1-2 per cent; Sunday school extension, 2 percent; training school, 6 per cent; Bible cause, 6-10 per cent.

U. S. WILL PRESS BRIBERY CHARGES

charges against Fall and the two Doheny's, Edward Doheny, Sr., was dropped entirely from the new indictments. During the Teapot Dome investigation of the senate, the elder Doheny testified under oath that his son carried the $100,000 cash to Fall in a little black satchel.

Action Not Explained.

Government counsel advanced no explanation for the omission of these charges from the new indictments.

The new charges were strengthened somewhat in other respects. The additional charge was made that $230,500 in liberty bonds passed from Harry F. Sinclair to Fall through the Continental Trading company, a dummy cover-up concern organized in Canada to facilitate the alleged transfer of money to the former secretary of interior. This affair was not discovered until after the senate investigation and the first indictment had been obtained.

Conspiracy Also Alleged.

The indictments also were broadened by including in the conspiracy charges, not only the leasing of oil lands without competitive bidding, but also the exchange arrangement by which the government was to pay Doheny in oil for building storage tanks in Hawaii.

This restores the prosecution of the Teapot Dome affairs essentially to the point that had been reached last June when the indictments were handed down dramatically here in the midst of discussion of the oil scandals at the democratic national convention in Madison Square Garden. Those indictments, however, were quashed here April 1 when Chief Justice McCoy ruled that they had been vitiated because a special assistant to the attorney general, assigned to aid in the case, was in the grand jury room.

Appeal Still Pending.

Undiscouraged by this reverse, the government counsel asked for a new grand jury and now have obtained indictments which they hope will be air-tight against technicalities.

Owen J. Roberts, one of the special government counsel, expects the cases to come to trial early in the fall, unless further dilatory tactics by the defense are resorted to.

Meanwhile the fact that the new indictments have been obtained will not weaken the efforts of the government to make a successful appeal from the decision of the court which threw out the original charges. That appeal is now waiting to be heard and probably will come up next fall.

OFFICE OF MARSHAL GIVEN APPROVAL

buildings and report back to the committee. The official will be clothed with condemnatory authority.

Councilman Allen said the fire marshal should be backed by a commission of three engineers, who would be selected for their ability rather than from political affiliation. He said the office of fire marshal should be absolutely divorced from politics.

"What we want in Atlanta is a fire marshal who is an able engineer and who has the ability to discharge these duties as they ought to be discharged," Mr. Allen said. "Creation of this office is the only real way we can make Atlanta safe for firemen and safeguard the lives of people who occupy dangerous buildings."

Cody Favors Marshal.

Chief Cody declared he always had believed a city the size of Atlanta should have a fire marshal and said this official should possess the ability of an architect and engineer.

"The official should be able to go to a building and after an inspection figure exactly the size of the floor load the building will stand," Chief Cody said.

The city building code, Chief Cody said, was prepared by a committee of the ablest engineers in the south, and said if the fire marshal enforced the laws in this code the danger from the collapse of unsafe buildings would be reduced to a minimum.

"A fire marshal also would be a great help to the city building inspector," Chief Cody declared. "The marshal not only could inspect the old buildings but would do a valuable work in inspecting crowded factory buildings and other structures where large numbers of people are employed. There are many old buildings in Atlanta now that are overloaded and to allow them to carry the big loads is criminal negligence," he asserted.

The fire board disposed of other routine business which included appropriation of $1,000 for a new roof on No. 14 engine house.

Atlanta Art Lovers Buy Many Valuable Paintings As Exhibit Nears Close

Works of Sargent, Owned by Georgia Woman, Will Be Shown in Gotham's Memorial Exhibition.

As the second annual art exhibit for Atlanta, by the Grand Central galleries, draws near to its close at the Biltmore hotel, crowds of viewers grow larger every day and a number of Atlantans are making purchases from the magnificent collection of contemporary works by American painters and sculptors.

It was announced Wednesday that J. J. Haverty, chairman of the art committee of the chamber of commerce, had purchased two paintings. One is a marvellous still life by Paul Dougherty, and the other a delightful study by W. Elmer Schofield, entitled "English Coast."

John W. Grant was another purchaser of Wednesday, acquiring a famous winter scene painted by John Carlton.

The exhibition will close next Sunday night after two weeks of showing which has exceeded in popular interest even the great exhibition held one year ago. With four days left, the number of visitors who have passed through the galleries this year already exceeds the 30,000 who saw last year's collection.

Wonderful Collection.

In the opinion of connoisseurs, the collection this year is far greater from an artistic standpoint than that of 1924. There are 300 paintings and 150 pieces of sculpture, including not only the world-famous Grand Central galleries, but many works of inestimable value loaned especially for this exhibition.

The galleries are located on the arcade and mazzanine floors of the hotel and are open daily.

Official host organizations today include the Overseas club in the forenoon, the Atlanta Martha Berry circle in the afternoon and the Masonic club in the evening.

The committees from the three clubs who will have charge today are as follows:

Overseas club—Miss Sara Bell, chairman; Miss Helen Muse, Mrs. John Harlan, Mrs. Perrin Nicholson, Jr., and Mrs. L. L. Tompkins.

Atlanta Martha Berry circle—Mrs. W. F. Shallenberger, chairman; Mrs. Frank Inman, Mrs. Alexander MacDougald, Miss Nellie Hightower, Mrs. Prince Webster, Mrs. Essie Maudeauville and Mrs. Linton C. Hopkins.

Masonic club—Arthur Stone, Guy Norman, J. O. Partain, James A. Gallogly, Joe Reed and J. E. Ingram.

Three canvases on which it is impossible to estimate a value have been loaned to Edwin S. Barrie, general manager of the Grand Central galleries, for exhibition in New York, by Miss Annie S. Burnap, of 405 Cherokee street, Marietta. They are works of the late John Singer Sargent, and are, perhaps, the earliest existing works of the great American painter.

Georgia-Owned Works.

They originally belonged to a brother of Miss Burnap, George S. Burnap, who was a fellow student with Sargent in a class under the renowned Carolus Duran between 1877 and 1890.

Mr. Burnap himself was a painter of rare ability, and during his studies in Paris he and Sargent were intimate friends, and it was at that time that Sargent gave the three paintings to Mr. Burnap.

Mr. Burnap died in 1891, and always held these three paintings as his most valued possessions. They are studies of a scene in a class room, a landscape and a statute in a Paris park.

Mr. Barrie said that the paintings had not been shown in the Atlanta exhibition because restoration and stretching processes are necessary, and Mr. Barrie is anxious to show them only under the most favorable circumstances.

Miss Burnap stated Wednesday night that she was induced to lend these canvases to the Grand Central galleries for exhibition by Mrs. Butler King Cooper, who was at one time a pupil of Mr. Burnap's and who was anxious that art lovers generally might have the opportunity to see the precious relics.

To Be Shown in Gotham.

"They will be taken to New York," he said, "for examination by George de Forrest Brush, who was a fellow student in the class with Sargent and Burnap. Naturally, they will be of particular interest to one who was a lifelong friend of the great painter.

The three canvases will be shown at the two Sargent memorial exhibitions, which are to be held this year in New York and Boston.

"They are primarily museum pieces," said Mr. Barrie. "While probably the oldest existing works of Sargent, they reveal definite promise of the vitality and technical facility which has since become known throughout the world. Gratitude should be expressed to Miss Burnap for her appreciation of the works and her desire to place them in a museum, where they deserve to be. They are not for a private collection, since it is to the student and critic of painting—and to all admirers of Sargent—that these canvases will appeal."

COURT WILL HEAR OF LODGE KILLING

was grilled Wednesday afternoon in the investigation.

Surrender of McConnell to Solicitor General John A. Boykin and continuance of the investigation marked the case Wednesday. Rumors were current in the solicitor general's office that L. C. Varnadoe, Jr., planned to ask dismissal of three of the four warrants before the hearing this morning, leaving only a charge against one of the four now held.

Refutes Rumors.

Varnadoe, however, refuted the rumors when reached for a statement. He announced his firm intention of having Judge Rosser hear all four of the warrants. No warrant has been issued against Miss Olga Crawford, who was a member of the party.

McConnell, who reported to the solicitor general's office Wednesday morning after the other three had been taken into custody Tuesday, denied that he had "been hiding out," and said that he had been at home getting some necessary sleep after being up all of two nights.

Funeral services for Varnadoe were held Wednesday afternoon from the Church of the Holy Comforter on Pulliam street. Rev. C. W. Gasque officiated.

McConnell and Miss Welch were questioned for several hours Wednesday by attaches of the solicitor's office. They declared the first stories of the shooting are true and that Varnadoe sent a bullet into his brain after he learned that another man had given Miss Welch a diamond ring.

They are said to have continued declaring that Varnadoe snatched the revolver from the bed on which Mrs. Curtis was lying and fired before other members of the party could reach him. Mrs. Curtis declared she screamed when she saw what was about to happen but that she was powerless to prevent it.

All those against whom warrants were issued maintain that Varnadoe shot himself and that they are innocent victims of circumstances.

MEMORIAL COIN SALE INCREASES

set for the rest of the country," he added.

Hugh Couch, chief clerk to the vice president of the Southern railway and a colonel in the transportation division explained that although the men in his company had just missed a pay day when the campaign began, there had been no trouble in selling the 1,000 coin certificates to working men.

St. Philip's cathedral, according to Marion Jackson, so far has led all churches in Atlanta in coin certificate sales.

The Kiwanis club at its regular weekly luncheon Tuesday at the Ansley hotel subscribed for 4,011 certificates and agreed to take an additional amount as soon as absent members could be seen. The Coca-Cola company purchased 10,000 coins Wednesday.

According to information received Wednesday morning from Norwood, Ga., T. L. Anderson, of the Georgia railroad, has been appointed by the railroad to aid in the sale of memorial coins in that city.

He is said to have sold 60 coins in less than one hour. Prominent citizens of the town state that residents are enthusiastic over the opprtunity to buy coins and have sent a vote of confidence to the memorial coin committee.

Similar reports are reaching local headquarters of enthusiasm in the campaign in other cities and sections, leaders assert.

Appropriate Ceremonies Mark Laying Of Corner Stone at Girls' High School

Marked with appropriate ceremonies, including an interesting program of addresses by leading educators and musical selections by the Boys' High orchestra and the Tech High band, the corner stone of the new Senior Girls' High school was laid Wednesday morning.

Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of the Atlanta public schools, was master of ceremonies, and introduced Dr. J. Sprole Lyons, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, who pronounced the invocation. Following the invocation, the entire Girls' High student body sang school songs and the "Pilgrims' Chorus." The Boys' High school orchestra rendered a number of musical selections, to the entertainment of parents of the students and many visitors.

The stone was laid by W. S. Richardson, who was acting in the place of James D. Hambrick, grand master of the grand lodge of Masons of Georgia, who was unable to be present at the ceremonies.

Dr. M. L. Brittain, president of the Georgia School of Technology, was principal speaker, being presented by John T. Hancock, president of the board of education. "Women in Education" was the subject of Dr. Brittain's address.

Dr. Brittain recalled names of those who have presided over the destinies of the Girls' High school. A beautiful tribute to the work of Miss Laura Haygood was paid by the speaker. Miss Haygood, after years of service in the educational field, went to China as a missionary and died in foreign service. She was followed by Miss June McKinley, Mrs. Grace DeJarnette, Professor H. H. Smith and Biss Nettie Sergeant, in the order named, as head of the school.

Unstinted praise of activities of Miss Jessie Muse, principal of the institution, was given by Dr. Brittain.

The speaker expressed the hope that the next forward step will be to "tear down the artificial walls that confine this city's educational plans and broaden the work of the institution until it includes all Fulton county in a greater Atlanta system."

Following the address of Dr. Brittain, Miss Muse made a brief address. Music furnished by the Tech High school band concluded the program.

NEW MACHINE MAY CUT COST OF COAL

Cincinnati, Ohio, May 27.—Mining men are looking forward to the time when the coal bill of the United States will be reduced $500,000,000 by the perfection of devices for mining coal with machinery, Edward J. O'Toole, general superintendent of the mines of the United States Coal and Coke company, in West Virginia and Kentucky, declared before the American mining congress here today.

Mr. O'Toole said his company had just mined 115,000 tons by a new machinery process that is effecting a great saving in labor costs. "We are now perfecting this machine," he said. "It makes the use of explosives in the mine unnecessary and will therefore reduce accidents. This machine undercuts the coal by chewing into it with steel teeth. Then the coal automatically falls down upon a self loader and is carried away by machinery. We expect this machine to reduce the cost of mining 50 per cent."

Dinkler Hotel Officials Are Promoted in Recent Changes

With the promotion of Frank T. Reynolds from resident manager of the Ansley hotel to the position of assistant to President L. J. Dinkler, of the Dinkler Hotel company, of Atlanta, announcement is made that W. R. Secker, of Charleston, S. C., has been made resident manager of the Ansley, and that T. M. Cunningham, who has been serving as assistant manager of the Ansley and Piedmont hotels, is to be the manager of the new Andrew Jackson hotel in Nashville, Tenn.

Mr. Cunningham recently came to the Piedmont hotel to succeed Will V. Zimmer, veteran Atlanta hotel man, who retires from active hotel connections. Previously Mr. Zimmer, who is president of the Hotel Men's association, was manager of the Piedmont.

Mr. Cunningham left Wednesday night for Birmingham, Ala., with Carling L. Dinkler, vice president and general manager of the company, to act as assistant manager of the Tutwiler and Redmont hotels of that city until mid-July, when he will leave for Nashville.

Modern New Hotel.

The Andrew Jackson is one of the newest hotels of the Dinkler system, and is a $3,000,000 hostelry which will be opened about September 1. The Southern Ferro Concrete company, of Atlanta, is erecting the structure. The new hotel will have 400 rooms and will be one of the most complete and up-to-date in the south.

Another new hotel under construction for the Dinkler company is the Carling hotel in Jacksonville, Fla., which will be opened about February 1, 1926. In addition to new hotels and the Atlanta houses, the Dinkler system also operates the Ralston at Columbus and the Phoenix at Waycross.

While in Atlanta, Mr. Cunningham made a thorough study of the Dinkler methods of operating. He is one of the best-known men in the hotel business in the south.

Mr. Reynolds, whose appointment to assistant to the president is announced, became associated with J. B. Pound in the latter part of 1912 as publicity director for the Ansley, and has since that time worked himself up to his present position. He has served as assistant manager and resident manager of the Ansley.

Reynolds Well Known.

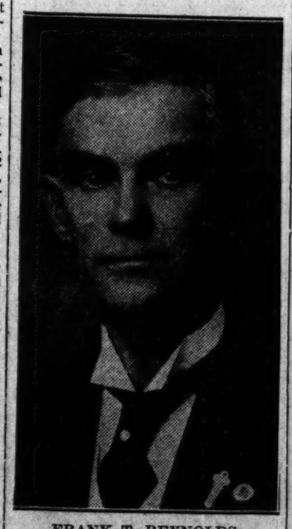

Mr. Reynolds is widely known for his advocacy of good roads and is called the "father" of the proposed $70,000,000 bond issue for good road bonds to be presented at the coming session of the legislature. He will retain his present offices and headquarters in the Ansley, but will devote most of his time in the future to the expansion program of the Dinkler system, visiting the various cities in which Dinkler hotels are located and seeing that nothing is overlooked toward making Dinkler hotels first.

Besides being vice president of the Georgia Hotel Men's association, he is an active Kiwanis club worker, and has been vice president of the Atlanta Hotel Men's association. His newspaper experience began in Dalton, his home town. He served as secretary of the Chattanooga Chamber of Commerce when it was organized over 20 years ago and is prominent in civic work. He has spoken in practically every county in Georgia on good roads, and has been instrumental in inducing 64 of the 161 counties in the state to issue over $29,000,000 to build concrete highways in their respective territories.

He is exceedingly well informed on civic, industrial and business subjects, and is a Mason, having held high Masonic offices in the past.

Dawson Report Not Made Public Though Audit Work Is Completed and Paid For

Holder Refuses to Approve Payment of Audit Asked by the Governor.

The final report of C. R. Dawson, private auditor employed by Governor Walker to make an audit of the state highway department, had not been made public on Wednesday night, despite the statement of W. T. Anderson, of Macon, member of the highway board, that Mr. Dawson "has completed his work and has been paid."

Mr. Anderson made this declaration in a card given out Tuesday night, in which he disagreed with Chairman John N. Holder in regard to payment of the fees of attorneys who defended Mr. Anderson and Stanley S. Bennet, members of the board, when Mr. Holder instituted his successful mandamus suit to compel the board to recognize him as chairman, despite the action of the governor in revoking his commission. Mr. Holder contended, and was upheld by the supreme court, that the governor was without legal authority for this action.

Mr. Holder stated that he would not give his approval as chairman to the payment of these attorneys' fees nor of the Dawson audit, which actions were done by the board during Mr. Holder's absence while his suit was pending in the courts. On Wednesday, Mr. Holder stated that he had nothing further to say in regard to the entire matter at this time.

A meeting of the board has been called for Friday next, at which time a number of contracts are to be let. Chairman Holder stated Wednesday that the meeting would be open to the newspapermen and, insofar as he was concerned, all meetings of the board in the future would be open to the press.

Sam J. Slate, state auditor, who began his audit of the highway department several weeks after the Dawson audit began, expects to have his work completed in two or three weeks' time, and printed for submission to the legislature before that body meets on June 24, he said Wednesday.

"The audit will not only be published in the newspapers after it has been presented to the governor," said Mr. Slate, "but it will be printed in pamphlet form by the state printer.

"We shall do our utmost," continued the state auditor, "to get the information secured by the audit to the people of the state at the earliest date possible compatible with thoroughness and accuracy."

ROME PLEDGES AID TO WILSON SCHOOL

CONSTITUTION BUREAU.

Rome, Ga., May 27.—(Special.)—That Mrs. Woodrow Wilson's home town is to take an active part in the movement to build Woodrow Wilson college in Georgia, as a great national memorial to President Wilson, was indicated in the enthusiastic response of a gathering of representative citizens of Rome, many of them personal friends of the first Mrs. Wilson, who attended a dinner at the General Forrest hotel here tonight, given in honor of R. C. Mizell, of Valdosta, a member of the temporary board of trustees of the proposed college and one of the men who originated the movement and interested Wilson's friends in New York and elsewhere in the memorial project.

Linton A. Dean, who introduced Mr. Mizell, declared that even had not Rome felt such a close kinship with Woodrow Wilson, it would gladly help to erect the new college for Woodrow Wilson college will be a memorial to a principle, as well as to a man, and as such deserves the aggressive support of every city in Georgia. "Rome feels a peculiar appeal, however, in this project," said Mr. Dean, "for through Ellen Louise Axson, who grew up among us, Rome feels it shared in making Woodrow Wilson and formulating those lofty ideals which he interpreted to the nations of the earth.

"Our city will be particularly proud to share in building Woodrow Wilson college, since we have always looked upon President Wilson almost as a member of our own family."

Mr. Mizell told of the unprecedented response which the project is receiving throughout, not only Georgia, but the rest of the nation. "The closest of President Wilson's friends are deeply interested in seeing this memorial built, for not only is it being erected in the state, which above all others has greatest claim upon Woodrow Wilson, but it is being evolved along unique lines, which make it supremely appropriate as a monument to the man whose name it will bear. I am glad to say that the leaders of the movement have already determined that Rome should have a place upon the governing board when that natinal body is selected, for Wilson's intimates fully appreciate how great was the influence of that Rome girl, who became the mother of Wilson's children and was the silent partner in all he did for so many years."

Dr. Cochran to Shorter.

Rome, Ga., May 27.—(Special.)—Dr. T. E. Cochran, dean and professor of education at Judson college, Marion, Ala., has accepted the headship of the department of education and psychology at Shorter college, according to an announcement made by President-elect Furry, of that institution. In this department he will succeed Dr. Furry.

Dr. Cochran is a native of Kentucky. He was graduated with the A. B. degree at the University of Richmond; the A. M. in psychology and education, and the D. B. in practical sociology and religious education from the University of Chicago. He received his Ph. D. degree in education, psychology and sociology at the University of Pennsylvania.

His experience in the field of education has been broad, including professorships and deanships in a number of institutions of learning. Before going to Judson he was director of the School of Education and professor of education and psychology at Wake Forest college, N. C.

Gas Company Elects.

Rome, Ga., May 27.—(Special.)—Sam R. DeFrese was today elected president of the Rome Municipal Gas company and four other Rome citizens were added to the personnel of the company. He will succeed his father, S. E. DeFrese, who after a few months vacation, probably will become consulting engineer for an eastern holding company operating gas plants. He will continue to act as consulting engineer for the local concern whenever his services are needed, it was stated.

Other officials and directors of the company elected are: A. B. Utter, vice president; J. R. Billingsley, secretary-treasurer; Hugh Given, Wilson M. Hardy, S. E. DeFrese and A. Sadd, directors. S. E. Slaton To Speak At Synagogue Sunday At Fund Drive Meet

Former Governor John M. Slayton, Judge Charles N. Feidelson, of Savannah, and several other prominent speakers will deliver addresses Sunday night at a meeting in Synagogue Ahavath Achim, Washington street and Woodward avenue, in the interest of the Palestine foundation fund, Keren Hayesod. The meeting will begin at 7:30 o'clock.

Morris Lichtenstein, chairman of the local Keren Hayesod committee, will preside at the meeting. With this meeting there will be launched the 1925 drive in Atlanta in behalf of the organization. There will be an elaborate musical program.

The Keren Hayesod raises and expends funds in carrying out an extensive program of reconstruction in Palestine. In view of conditions in eastern Europe, Jews find it necessary to emigrate, and Palestine has become their favorite haven, particularly because of the restrictions on immigration into the United States. Thirty-three hundred Jews entered Palestine in March of 1925.

LIFE CONVICT SAWS WAY TO FREEDOM

Word was received at the office of the state prison commission on Wednesday, that John Kennedy, white convict serving a life term and sent up from Fulton county, had escaped from the convict corral in Walker county on Tuesday night. Kennedy escaped by sawing the bars of a window in the camp, it was stated, and was believed to be headed toward Atlanta. Atlanta police were notified to be on the lookout for the man.

Kennedy was convicted for the murder of David Thrailkill, on Decatur street a few months ago, and had served only two months of his life sentence when he escaped.

Jim Jones, another convict from Fulton county, sent up for burglary, also escaped from the Union county camp, it was reported. Jones' term was from 7 to 10 years.

KEY TO TREASURE HOUSE

How to Obtain First Aid to All Helpful Information.

Just think of the vast treasures of words full of rich and rare meaning that lie locked up in our language, hidden away from common use and enjoyed only by the learned few! It is as if, possessing the mineral wealth of the world, ready for the mint, we scornfully turned aside to remain in poverty.

The dictionary constitutes the treasure house of our language. As a people we needlessly deprive ourselves of the great helps at our command. In our daily tasks, not one of which can be performed without the use of words, we possess only the most primitive tools, while we might be equipped with the keenest and most efficient.

As the dictionary is the barred and bolted treasure house, then the coupon printed elsewhere in this issue is the key that unlocks it. It is now possible for every reader to own this new dictionary.

DR. DURHAM TO SPEAK TO JUNIOR CHAMBER

Plans for the membership drive under discussion for the past few weeks will be formulated as well as details of the trip to Tulsa, Okla., by delegates who will attend the annual convention of the Junior Chamber of Commerce organizations next month.

$1,000,000 Construction Program for the Summer Months at

WHITFIELD Estates

—on Sarasota Bay, Florida

HUNDREDS of workmen, drawing the largest pay roll on Florida's western coast, will be unceasingly employed during the summer months to complete the stupendous program of development at Whitfield Estates, the marvelous residential area on Sarasota Bay—just five miles north of Sarasota on the famous Tamiami Trail.

Between now and Fall, more than a million dollars will be expended (under the direct supervision of the Adair Realty and Trust Company, sole selling agents of the property) to beautify and provide even more of the comforts and conveniences that are making this one of the nation's most desirable home lands—in a setting already abundantly endowed with Nature's beauty and blessed with a climate so mild and pleasing that it is famed throughout the world.

Enhancement Assured

Now is the time to choose your lot, for those who purchase now are bound to reap the reward of their foresight. Values are sure to enhance astoundingly during the next few months, for, by October first, ten miles of asphalt-paved boulevards, 65 feet in width will wind through the property, sweeping in majestic curves over the rolling slopes, down along the waters of this beautiful bay.

Twenty Miles of Sidewalks

Twenty miles of sidewalks are being laid, lined with wide parkways planted with every variety of tropical foliage—cocoanut palms, Australian pines, hibiscus, crepe myrtle, bougainvillea and scores of other evergreens and vivid blooms that grow in such riotous profusion beneath Florida's smiling skies.

Finest Water System in Florida

An adequate water system, with a half-million gallon reservoir, a steel auxiliary tank of 125,000 gallons capacity and ample aerating and pumping facilities will supply abundant water—the purest and most delightful to be found in all the section. Twenty miles of mains and pipes are being laid. The System is being installed according to the specifications of the Southeastern Underwriters' Association, so that fire risk is eliminated and the residents of Whitfield Estates will enjoy the lowest insurance rate.

Gigantic Sea Wall Under Way

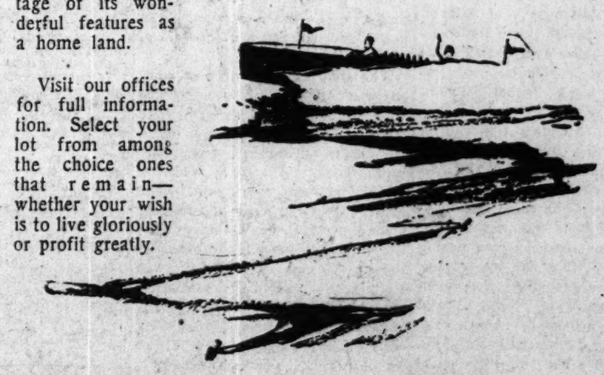

Work is also starting on the sea wall, to run for almost a mile along the water's edge—constructed of concrete reinforced with steel, four feet thick at the base and of the most modern and durable design.

A huge crew of workmen are going steadily forward with the construction of the 18-hole golf course, which was designed by Donald Ross and is being built under his supervision. Its rolling, high terrain, so vastly different from most of Florida's courses, has enabled the great golf architect to produce one of the finest and sportiest courses in the South—with abundant natural and water hazards, excellent fairways and interesting greens throughout its championship length. It will open January 1st, 1926.

Plans have already been accepted for the handsome club house, designed by Pringle and Smith, Atlanta architects. Construction will begin immediately.

With work going forward so rapidly, with all improvements absolutely guaranteed values in Whitfield Estates will rise with even more amazing rapidity than they have mounted since work was first begun. Many have already built there, many more have purchased lots and will build immediately—to take advantage of its wonderful features as a home land.

Visit our offices for full information. Select your lot from among the choice ones that remain—whether your wish is to live gloriously or profit greatly.

TRAFFIC PROBLEMS.

The Constitution begins today the publication of a daily editorial page feature, "Questions and Answers on Safety and Traffic." In this interesting and instructive little daily compilation, prepared by the Atlanta Safety Council, will be found the A. B. C.'s of the traffic laws in Atlanta—about which but few citizens are entirely informed—and the various and sundry practical facts regarding highway safety laws, methods of preventing accidents, industrial, home and school safety, etc.

The answers to the questions are absolutely dependable, and each daily installment will present new phases of the situation that are not only educational, but exceedingly entertaining.

The tragedies and near-tragedies from accidents, not only on thoroughfares but in homes, and the rapidly increasing number of violent deaths, demand that close and thoughtful attention should be paid to just such subjects as are intelligently handled in the little daily feature, which will appeal, and we trust and believe will be helpful, to every reader of The Constitution.

FOR A GOOD CAUSE.

It is hoped the people of Atlanta will be as liberal as possible to the members of the Wheat Street Baptist church (colored) when its members and friends appeal on Saturday, through a city-wide tag sale, for funds to reestablish the institution.

This church, one of the largest colored congregations in the entire south, was burned in 1917. All of the fixtures were completely destroyed. This fire occurred just after the congregation had completed a $20,000 interior and exterior improvement. The same fire destroyed the personal property and homes of 2,000 of the members. Since the fire the congregation has been worshipping in temporary quarters. The members have now under construction on the corner of Auburn avenue and Yonge street a creditable edifice, the first unit of which they hope to complete during the present year so that they may move from the present unsafe quarters.

The city council has granted the church a two-day tag sale Saturday and Sunday, May 30-31.

The Wheat Street Baptist church was established in 1870, during the period of reconstruction. It is one of the old land-marks of Atlanta. Because of having kept its doors open for all these years for all kinds of uplifting movements it has earned the name of the "People's Church."

Following Atlanta's last riot in 1907 the first inter-racial conference held in the city for the purpose of cementing better relationships between the races and healing the wounds inflicted in the hearts of members of both groups by reason of the riot, was held in Wheat Street church. The meeting was called by Dr. P. James Bryant, pastor of the church, who for the past 27 years has been the shepherd of a flock of some 6,000 communicants. At this meeting ex-Goveror W. J. Northern, Rabbi David Marx, Drs. Landrum, White, Wilmer, Bradley and Judge Hillyer were among the persons who spoke.

The Butler Street Y. M. C. A. was organized in Wheat Street church. Notwithstanding the church was in ashes it paid $1,000 to the erection of the new colored Y. M. C. A. building.

The pastor, Dr. P. James Bryant, is in constant demand as a lecturer and preacher throughout the country and has been given many flattering offers to leave Atlanta. He recently declined a call to Detroit and a salary of $1,000 more than he is at the present time paid. He is a colored leader who holds the respect and confidence of the white citizenship, and who has been of valued assistance in handling many inter-racial problems.

NOT "SLEEPY" OCALA.

There are a number of alluring stories sweeping over the country about the fabulous fortunes made in Florida real estate.

Some enterprising correspondent recently sent out the word that William Jennings Bryan had "cleaned up a million." The three-time candidate for president promptly denied the allegation and said he had only made a half million.

Of course the press agents for the million or less real estate firms and corporations and syndicates in the peninsular state are leaving no stone unturned to get the big winnings across to the public.

The latest press agent stunt as to Florida real estate appears in a most attractively illustrated story on the front page of Friday's New York World. It is to the effect that the always popular, and—in Atlanta—much beloved film star, Thomas Meighan, has just plucked a $500,000 plum from a treasure tree at Ocala. It says:

"Thomas Meighan, realtor, is a role in which the picture star is little known. Yet in this role he has made more money than in any single part he ever has played. Last February he purchased large tracts of lands in a sleepy little Florida town called Ocala. Last week he turned over the investment for a net profit of $500,000."

The story is all right, and there is no disposition to doubt the facts, except that "large tracts of lands" in a "sleepy little town" is a rather incongruous situation to harmonize with the lay mind that is unused to land booms and to counting more than three figures in a row. But the story goes on to say:

"In its obscurity Ocala had been overlooked in the Florida real estate scramble. Came Mr. Meighan, Lila Lee and their company. In their wake was much publicity. After six weeks of picture making the town was known throughout the state. Realtor offices opened and land soared. So quietly in the early weeks had Mr. Meighan made his purchases that no one knew just who the master mind realtor was. He reaped $500,000 from his acres."

All of which reads romantic enough to satisfy the most exacting of the publicity directors, but down in central Florida, where Ocala is a metropolis and where Silver Spring, is its suburb, has been the mecca for tourists from all over the world for several generations, there may be some questions as to the "sleepy little town" and the "obscurity" castigations placed against the city that was the scene—away back in the early 90's—of one of the most famous political gatherings ever assembled in America.

Surely The World has not overlooked the "Ocala platform"—born and cradled in this "sleepy little town" in Florida—that for a decade threw the old political parties of this country almost into panic and brought about a veritable political rebellion in sections of the south and west.

It was when the old Farmers' Alliance ceased to function as an unselfish farm organization and decided to promote its leaders to office, that General Weaver and Ellen Lease, of Kansas, and Leonidas Polk, of North Carolina, and scores of other political revolutionists from all over the agrarian sections gathered at Ocala and promulgated a "bill of rights" that became the battle cry of the populist party. Georgia's part in the making of that platform and in the political upheaval that followed cannot soon be forgotten.

Ocala "obscure?" Not a bit of it! It is known throughout the length and breadth of America, and with generations yet unborn the "Ocala platform" will bob up like the history of a revolution in a Latin republic.

NOTABLE CONVENTION.

The third annual convention of the Georgia Association of Evangelistic Clubs will be held in Forsyth June 5-7, inclusive. It is one of the largest—though young—and most important and useful organizations in the state.

The Georgia association is composed of 68 live-wire local groups, and the good work these groups are doing in their communities in building better citizenship, fellowship, brotherhood, and in aiding, with unselfish motives, every worthwhile cause, makes the whole outstanding among the real service institutions in the state. Indeed, the motto of the organization is "service." And first of all is a service to its individual membership in helping every member realize his responsibility to his God and to his church as a soul winner. This is a service that places Jesus Christ in command of all the forces of Christendom, and with an elimination of denominational practices in detail, joins all together as soldiers of a common Savior.

The members of the clubs do not propose to supplant the church and its holy mission on earth; they only propose to supplement the minister in his work and prove that they are vital and interested co-workers for the greatest cause on earth—to win men and women for Christ and to enlist them in active Christian service.

Several hundred business laymen will visit Forsyth on this occasion. The good-time fellowship will be wholesome. The sun will shine, as it always does at one of these gatherings.

My sins away,
My sins away;
For it ain't so far
To the Jedgment Day
When the world will be on fire!

The shadders shake, an' the wind blows col'
An' the ol' ha'nts moan an' cry;
An' you need to pray for the peace o' yer soul

My sins away,
My sins away;
For right over yonder
Is the Jedgment Day
When the world will be on fire!

The "Straight" Goods.

"For a joke," says a correspondent, "I asked a Georgia moonshiner with whom I'm on familiar terms, if he had any 'Scotch' on hand."

"'No,' he replied, 'you mighty well know that I don't handle them highfalutin', doctored-up brands that dunno how to sarch an' sarch around till they hit the spot an' make a feller feel like shoutin' halleluia. Mine's the same honest-to-goodness old moonshine your great-grandaddy took for his stomach's sake three times a day, with a extra sure-sleep 'nightcap' when he went to bed. None o' them fool, gold-label brands for me. My stuff ain't labeled; it speaks for itself!'"

But what can tempt a bird to sing,

With Winter lingering round the place
Spring hides her beautiful, bright face.

For June stands radiant at the door
And brings her birds and flowers.

The Universal Verdict.

Under the headline, "Boys, It Was Worth It," the Liberty Press says: "Every day scientists discover something that makes the old world older and older. It seems that it has taken millions of years to develop men and women to what they are today, and at a cost of much toil and treasure. And, while we can't say much for men, every time we look at women, particularly women from 16 to 20, we feel that time and money and effort have been well spent."

Where the wind blows free,
Long road ending
At a shady tree.—
Cold Day, goodbye!

A Home-Town Opinion.

It would take the dynamite kick of a mad Georgia mule to make some men rise in the world; and even at that, they'd growl because they wouldn't have time to pick a soft place to fall; and if they were able to catch hold of a rainbow up yonder, it would break all to pieces with their dead weight, and they'd come tumblin' promiscuous!

BOTTLED LIGHTNING.

The secret of all power lies in relaxation.

If you have a job to do, do it with all the might that is within you. Then drop every tool with which you have been working and let the world pass by.

There is an art in just sitting down.

I have watched men of power. They make few movements. And nothing is false. Every movement of the hand or toss of the head means something.

William James in one of his delightful essays says: "If you never give yourself up to the chair you sit in, but always keep your leg and body muscles half contracted for a rise; if you breathe 18 or 19 instead of 16 times a minute, and never quite breathe out at that,—what mental mood can you be in but one of inner panting and expectancy, and how can the future and its worries possibly forsake your mind?"

What a vast number of people carry bottled lightning around with them all the time.

It's a dangerous as a stick of dynamite carried upon the hip!

Chauncey Depew celebrated his ninety-first birthday the other day. And he gave as one of the secrets of long and happy life that of not getting excited and viewing all happenings in a calm and sane mood.

We blame too much on the innocent weather. We delve into too much envy of the strong and masterful.

You cannot mock nature and get very far.

I have found that the cultivation of calm and peaceful friends is one of my happiest discoveries.

And I find in nature great sweetness, repose and beauty.

Atlantan, "On the Wing," Says Black Is the Man

Editor Constitution: Taking a crack at "What's the Matter With Georgia" by Wright Willingham in your today's paper. I want to say Wright knows what's the matter and he has said so in a very few words. What Georgia needs and has needed for a long time is a business administration with a business man at its head—a man who has made a success at business. We will never get anywhere although we scheme and hold meetings, talk tax reform, etc., without this. What we need, as Mr. Willingham has said, is a natural leader and Mr. Willingham has picked the very best man in Georgia for this place—Eugene Black of Atlanta. Put Georgia back where she belongs—"The Empire state of the south." Mr. Black can do it. I second the nomination of Mr. Black.

Democracy For Russia.

Grand Duke Nicholas has restated the hopes of Czarism. He says: "After the restoration of the Romanoff family in Russia, the people will be given a chance to decide under what form of government they prefer to live." "After restoration" of that family the people will not have much of a chance. For the Romanoffs will then again control the army and the police as they did in the old days of terror, knout and Siberia. Moreover there was nothing dubious about the people's decision in April, 1917, when Kerensky asked the Czar to abdicate and the latter "bowed before an overwhelming public opinion." That the Bolsheviks later reintroduced a terrorist regime over the unarmed majority under a different name, does not mean that the people "are yearning for the return of the Czarist regime" as the grand duke intimates. The Russian peasants, and they form the bulk of the population, only yearn for bread and corn and a little of life's happiness. If the Bolsheviks finally manage to give them this they will even support the Bolsheviks and in case of a change they will certainly pass by the gentlemen of the old regime, who laughed at their troubles, strung them up in thick clusters on the telegraph poles, shot them down "en masse" when they asked for a constitution or clouted them over the head with a cat o' nine tails before banning them to the rigors of Siberia. But the Russian people are not restricted in their choice to Bolshevism and Czarism only. There is such a thing as sane democratic control. And toward such a form of government the huge mass of humanity known as Russia is slowly turning its face.

Italians For France.

Signor Mussolini has announced that Italy will pay its debt to America and Britain in full. The amount runs into terrific figures and Italy is not a wealthy country. To the contrary, Italy is poorly equipped in natural resources and most of her revenue goes for the upkeep of a great and efficient army. Signor Mussolini does not believe that war will ever be done away with as an instrument for settling disputes among nations and therefore keep the army well-oiled and in good working order. But thousands upon thousands of Italians are migrating to the south of France and to Germany to seek a living. There is no hope for them in their beautiful fatherland and the treasure halls of America have practically been closed. Of course France welcomes the immigration stream. There is always the chance that a goodly percentage of the newcomers will remain in the country permanently, as has been the case formerly in the United States. And France needs manpower. The Riff war has gone a long way to shatter the dream of a French empire with unlimited manpower resources in Africa and the shadow of "the German cradle that is always filled," casts a gloom over the future of the Republic.

America's Gain.

Even the most enthusiastic supporters of the new immigration quota law in the United States never expected that the introduction of the measure would have such excellent results as are being obtained this year. The law was framed to exclude unassimilable immigrants and attract the more desirable classes such as farmers from Teutonic and Scandinavian countries. Figures published in Washington reveal that the number of Danish, Norwegian, Dutch, German and Belgian farmer immigrants is on the increase. These people generally make for the land as soon as they arrive and do not, like the south European immigrant, go to swell the ranks of unskilled industrial workers in the already congested areas. The "Nordic" farmer, so vividly portrayed by Knut Hamsun in his "Growth of the Soil," is part and parcel of the land. He loves it and cares for it as tenderly and carefully as for his children. Only those who have seen the small, intensely cultivated patches of land in Holland and Belgium can understand what an overwhelming feeling of hope and happiness must come over an immigrant who realizes that some day it is possible for him to own a piece of territory as big as the siegneurial domain at home. Recently this writer saw some Flemish newcomers on their way to their first farm job after coming from Ellis Island. During a train halt they got out and scooped up some earth in their hands, took it in the coach with them, rubbed it, smelled it, tasted it and nodded significantly at each other. Children of the Flemish soil they were, for 10 or 20 generations perhaps.

* * * *

Democratic Dirt.

It appears now that Count Michael Karolyi, who was forbidden to speak in public during his recent visit here, brought about a fusion of all liberal Hungarian societies and clubs in the United States by having personal interviews with the leaders and editors of the Hungarian newspapers. A society has been formed which will conform in many respects to the "Sons of Irish Freedom." It will work for the elimination from Hungarian politics of Admiral Horthy, the regent, and for the establishment of a democratic republic. The league here will work in concert with Hungarian republicans of all shades with the exception of the extreme radicals. The move comes as a significant counterpart to the recent decision of Admiral Horthy to allow the former Empress Zita, and her son, Otto, pretender to the Hungarian throne, to take up residence in Hungary. This decision in itself is significant of the trend of thought in the old Hapsburg domains. The proponents of the restoration of the monarchy are coming more and more in the open with their aims. Germany is not alone in this respect. Of course the mass of the people have no such ardent desire to see the Hohenzollerns and Hapsburgs restored to their former glory, but the big landowners, junkers and army officers are yearning for the time when they will again be the dominating class and this "democratic dirt" as the kaiser calls it, will be swept out of Europe.

THE BABYLONIANS.

The dress of the Babylonians was extremely unique.

Possibly one of the best descriptions of their costume is given by the early historian Herodotus, who says: "The dress of the Babylonians is a linen tunic reaching to the feet, and above it another tunic made of wool, beside which they have a short white cloak thrown around them and shoes of a particular fashion—they have long hair, wear turbans, and annoint their whole body with perfumes. Every one carries a seal, and a walking stick, carved at the top into the form of an apple, a rose, a lily, an eagle, for it is not their habit to use a stick without an ornament."

Hundreds of the seals referred to in the above extract have been unearthed. They are in the form of a clay cylinder upon which is cut the particular symbol or mark of each individual, in the case of private seals, and the symbol of each respective office in the case of public seals. Over 600 such seals are now in the British museum. Many of the ornaments referred to by Herodotus have been found and presumably were used on walking sticks.

Among the customs of the Babylonians was one of a very peculiar nature wherein possibly arose the habit which many people have in giving advice to the sick. When a Babylonian became ill he was immediately laid out in the street in order that passersby might give advice and render opinions concerning the sick man's condition. Imagine such thing being the practice during an epidemic of some malady such as the "flu."

Another strange feature of Babylonian life was the annual marriage auction. All of the girls of a marriageable age were gathered together where prospective purchasers could survey them. The girls were put on the "block," one at a time, and the bidding began. She was "knocked down" to the highest bidder, who paid his money and escorted his newly-purchased property to his place of abode. This was true concerning the pretty maidens of the country; with the ugly ones the reverse was the status of affairs. Marriage portions, furnished out of the money derived from the sale of the fair and "petit" damsels, were offered as an inducement to men to take the unpleasing lassies. The man who, for the smallest amount of money, would consent to take the homely girl, carried away the prize.

Again we find a custom of a very shameful nature. The Babylonians required every woman, rich or poor, high or low, beautiful or ugly, to prostitute herself at least once during her life in the temple of Beltis (one of their goddesses). Though this was claimed to be a religious rite, doubtless the real object was to attract strangers and travelers for the purpose of gaining their trade.

The Babylonians wer egreat lovers of pleasure and luxury. The young men attired themselves in richly-colored robes; painted their faces; adorned their heads with highly-colored headdresses; ornamented themselves with many jewels; and drank and ate extensively. The tables at their feasts were loaded with gold and silver plates filled with the richest of foods. And, naturally, along with the gluttony and drunkenness went polygamy.

A Tribute in Verse To Brave Defenders

Editor The Constitution—As I stood in the great throng of sorrowing hearts at the auditorium and watched as each stalwart hero was carried out by tender hands, to his last resting place, the comforting thought to me was, each of these fallen protectors died on duty, in the thick of battle, face to the foe, loved and respected by all. I know the great heart of Atlanta and I earnestly beg that now and in all the coming years each and every loved one of these six heroes may be helped and comforted in every way. I pray that God will give all the dear ones so crushed with sorrow, strength and comfort to bear this terrible trouble. Finally, I submit these lines to the memory of those gallant men who are at rest.

Early one morning just before the break of day,
An alarm sounded, noble men rushed to the fray.
The fire fiend that causes untold grief and woe,
Was flashing its crimson banner above and below.
Into this inferno, gallant firemen, Atlanta's joy and pride,
Fearlessly advanced and—alas!—alas!—bravely died.
Peace to all, beloved protectors so precious and dear,
Our comfort, to know you are safe from all fear.

What Is More Precious After All?

HEALTH TALKS

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

MORE WATER.

A few physicians not particularly interested in the blooming of health resorts still believe mineral waters have some value in the treatment of certain disease conditions. Just what the patient gets in a mineral water and not in ordinary tap or well water, nobody seems to know. For a while it was quite the thing to ascribe the miracles wrought by mineral waters to their radioactivity or radium content, but that lost its interest when people began to learn that all natural waters are more or less radio active, contain more or less radium. I am inclined to agree with Dr. Jesse Feiring Williams, professor of physical education in teachers' college, Columbia university, who tells us in his recent book, "Personal Hygiene Applied," that much of the supposed value of mineral waters lies in the comfortable surroundings, the outdoor activities, the exercise, the baths, perhaps the patient's attentiveness to proper diet, when visiting or staying at the spa. The use of mineral water away from the health resort is therefore, frequently disappearing. As Dr. Williams tersely puts it: Persons in good health do not require special waters; persons with disease should consult a physician. Dr. Williams takes occasion to point out the absurdity of using so-called lithia water. People who are found of all these fishiological adventures should look up Dr. Williams' book—they'll find it illuminating.

A question asked every day is, how much water does one require, and in what quantities and at what times should one take it?

The daily quantity needed for good health varies greatly with different conditions of weather, climate, diet, physical activity. If an average can be mentioned at all it is six or eight glasses of water apart from the water taken in or with food. It is of good habit to drink at least a glass of water on rising in the morning; a glass with breakfast; another glassful midforenoon; a glassful with lunch at midday; another glassful midafternoon; a glassful with evening dinner; another glassful at bedtime. That makes nearly three pints of water in the day, aside from water in or with food. Many of us need much more water than that in the summer time or when we are working or playing.

Some old theories about the ill effect of drinking cold water before a meal or while at a meal or immediately after a meal, are no longer given serious consideration, because physiology has taught us that water taken in such circumstances improves digestion and has no actual ill effect. Particularly is it advisable to drink cold water freely at or near a mealtime if one feels at all thirsty.

A great many elderly folk, or feeble ones, like to drink a pint or so of hot water on rising or in the half hour or so before breakfast in the morning. They find that this helps to regulate the function of the bowel. It is at any rate a harmless habit, and if one prefers hot water to cold in the morning, it is perfectly healthful to take it hot. Sometimes more or less salt is added to the water, but that is often objectionable, since most of us get too much salt in or on our food anyway, and the addition of the salt does not add anything to the physiological action of the water. If a liberal drink of water, hot or cold, is taken first thing on rising, and the impulse to empty the bladder is restrained until after breakfast, this often proves effective in opposing constipation.

When the diet includes a considerable proportion of fresh vegetables and fruits, one needs less additional water. When the diet is largely meat, one needs relatively more water.

50 Degrees.

The temperature of ice water is somewhere around 50 degrees F. That is colder than most of us really like for drinking.

Have Another.

The old-timers based their objection to the drinking of much cold water upon two suppositions. First, the plausible one that the large amount of water diluted the digestive fluid in the stomach and so retarded digestion. Second, you just naturally wanted a nice big drink of cold water when you were thirsty, feverish or warm from work or play, and therefore it was bad for you. If you had sense enough to hate cold water like sin, you would have been compelled to drink a good, big dose of it every little while.

Emergency Disinfection.

A quart of water of questionable purity may be disinfected for drinking by adding to it a drop (or two will do no harm) of tincture of iodin and shaking it up and letting it stand 20 minutes before drinking.

CLUBWOMEN AID LIBRARY SCHOOL

Indorsement of the request of the Atlanta Library school for a city appropriation of $1,200 the first year, $2,800 the next year and $4,700 the third year, to match an increased allotment allowed by the Carnegie corporation of New York, was voted Wednesday afternoon by the City Federation of Women's Clubs at a meeting of that body held at the Piedmont Driving club.

The following committee was appointed by Mrs. T. T. Stevens, president, to co-operate with the library school in urging the city to make the necessary appropriation: Mrs. J. K. Ottley, chairman; Mrs. Frank Neely, Mrs. Kate Green Hess.

Action taken by the federation was the result of a report by Miss Tommie Dora Barker, librarian of the Carnegie library. Miss Barker, as chairman of the library extension committee of the federation, reported on the situation faced by the library school.

The school, which is the only one of its kind in the south, has received, during the past 20 years over $90,000 from the Carnegie corporation. In a recent study and survey of library schools, new standards have been inaugurated, and in order to meet these standards, the Atlanta school has been recommended to the corporation for an increased appropriation.

The Carnegie fund has made an offer to the city to increase the annual appropriation for the Atlanta school from $4,500 to $7,500, provided the city of Atlanta will appropriate the balance necessary to finance the school on the new basis, which for the year 1925-26 will be $1,200.

REVENUE HEARING BY SENATE BODY TO END FRIDAY

Washington, May 27.—(By the Associated Press.)—The special senate committee which has been investigating the international revenue bureau with particular attention to its administration of income tax matters and prohibition enforcement, plans to conclude its hearings Friday, although the resolution under which it is acting would permit it to continue until the end of May.

With the hearings discontinued, the committee, which is headed by Senator Couzens, of Michigan, plans to hold frequent executive sessions for discussion of the testimony it has taken. Its hearings have been held behind closed doors. The report of the committee, which will be made to the senate in December, probably will make recommendation concerning the administration of the tax law and members also expect it to deal with prohibition enforcement.

Tax Reduction Plea By Negro Institute Denied by Committee

The tax committee of council Wednesday declined to grant a petition for a reduction of taxes imposed against Holmes institute, a negro school of Atlanta, when Dr. W. B. Duvall, member of the committee, read a letter written the committee by the Community Chest asking that no further aid be given the institution.

Complaint of the community chest was based on its findings as to the accounting system kept at the school. Dr. Duvall announced also that the finance committee of council also had passed a resolution recommending that further aid to the institution be denied by the city.

The request for the reduction in taxes was presented to the tax committee by B. R. Holmes, head of the institution.

Norcross' Successor On Public Projects Soon To Be Selected

Creation of a committee to select a successor to the late Paul Norcross as engineer of several improvement projects of the city water department was voted by the city bond commission at a session Wednesday afternoon in the office of Mayor Walter A. Sims. Three members of the bond commission and three members of the water committee of council will form the special committee. Members from the bond commission named were: Lee Ashcraft, Frank Inman and H. W. Davis. The three members from the water committee will be named later.

W. Zode Smith, superintendent of waterworks, was asked by the commission to prepare a detailed report of needs of his department covered by an additional appropriation of $60,000. A letter was read to the commission from City Comptroller B. Graham West stating that the city had appropriated $75,000 for the proposed improvements and that this was all the money available at this time for this purpose. Mr. Smith will make his report at the next meeting of the commission.

RUNAWAY GIRL HELD

Dreams of Originating New Hair Mode.

Suspense hung heavily upon the mind of pretty 16-year-old Rebecca Petty, of Greenville, S. C., as she waited impatiently in the matron's ward at police station to learn whether her fate would be immediate return to her home and mother, or whether they would consent for her to remain here a while and realize a cherished ambition to become one of the leading women tonsorial artists.

The pretty young Greenville woman fell into the hands of Mrs. John C. Davis, captain of the women's police bureau, Tuesday night, and readily admitted, according to that official, that she had left her home about six months ago without giving any intimation as to where she was going or even bidding the home-folks a farewell.

Miss Petty dreams of the time when she will even be able to inaugurate new styles in the art of "hair-bobbing," for she predicts that the bob that is now so fashionable will be succeeded by an artistic "short-cut."

CORAL GABLES OPENS OFFICES SATURDAY

Expenditure of $20,000 will be made by Coral Gables, Miami realty company, in establishing new offices in Atlanta to serve the entire Georgia territory, it was announced Wednesday by W. L. Williams, southern sales manager of the organization.

The offices will be located at 185 Peachtree street and will be opened with formal ceremonies Saturday, May 30. A special entertainment program will be offered during the week of June 1, which will be featured by a big ball to be given at the Biltmore to 1,000 guests.

Saturday the new offices will be thrown open to public inspection, with W. P. Dorough, local manager, in charge. Jan Garber's Coral Gables orchestra will play at the opening and during the following week at the new offices.

Atlanta Headquarters.

"Atlanta is our headquarters in Georgia, and we expect to center our Georgia operations here," Mr. Williams said. "Contrary to the opinion of some people, our business is not of disadvantage to Atlanta in any way. We have employed Atlanta builders and architects in much of our work; we have bought much building material in Atlanta and Georgia; we are bringing a stream of visitors through Georgia from all parts of the country. On top of this, I know of more than a dozen men who made money in Florida investment and who brought that money back to Atlanta, paid up their debts and put their surplus money in Atlanta banks."

Mr. Williams stated that George E. Merrick, owner and developer of Coral Gables, and E. W. De Long, general sales manager, will visit Atlanta during the week of June 1 and will be guests of Mr. Williams at the Georgian Terrace hotel. E. T. Purcell, advertising manager, and Walter Bruns, lecturer, will attend the opening of the new offices Saturday.

"We have established daily bus service from Atlanta to Miami and will operate a fleet of buses in this work," Mr. Williams said. "In June we will run a special train and later expect to run other special trains from Atlanta to Miami. We expect to establish in Atlanta one of the finest real estate offices in the country, and our Georgia activities will be centered in this office."

Big Development Program.

Mr. Williams said Coral Gables will carry out a $100,000,000 development program in the next few years.

"We have built up a sales organization from 22 men last year to 318, and now have offices in 30 states," Mr. Williams said. "We now have the largest real estate selling organization in the world."

Mr. Williams formerly lived in Atlanta before he moved to Florida and is now residing at the Georgian Terrace. He formerly was connected with the White Motor company here and was with that organization five years.

FAIRBURN HIGH SCHOOL TO OPEN EXERCISES

Fairburn, Ga., May 27.—(Special.) On Monday evening, June 1, Fairburn high school will close one of the most successful years in all its long history. The main features of the commencement exercises will be the senior class entertainment on Friday evening; commencement sermon by Dr. W. H. Faust, of Atlanta, on Sunday morning; graduating exercises by the senior class; literary address by Dr. M. D. Collins, superintendent of Campbell county schools, and delivery of diplomas by Honorable R. J. Wooddall, chairman of the board of education, on Monday evening.

The graduating class numbers 29, consisting of 17 girls and 12 boys.

Citizens of Campbell county are very much awake to the need of educational advantages for their boys and girls and plans are now maturing for the erection of a splendid building for a county-wide high school and it is hoped that the building may be completed and ready for use for the fall term.

Superintendent E. W. Martin has been unanimously reelected for another year and plans are being made to improve the school along all lines.

FLORIDA HOUSE VOTES TO INCREASE SALARIES

Tallahassee, Fla., May 27.—(By the Associated Press.)—The pay of members of the legislature would be increased from $6 to $10 per diem and the time of meeting would be changed from April and May to September and October, under provisions of a joint resolution, introduced by Representatives Taylor, of Hillsborough, and McKenzie, of Putnam, which passed the house today, 60 to 18, exceeding the three-fifths vote required.

GEORGIA LICENSE LAW POPULAR IN FLORIDA

Thomasville, Ga., May 27.—(Special.)—Over across the line in Florida where many young couples go from Georgia to have the knot tied, the marriage licenses are not issued by the ordinary but by the county judge. When recently a bill was introduced into the Florida legislature to have a law such as Georgia has, to prevent the issuing of a marriage license until after five days' notice had been given, it is said that the judges in the counties of Jefferson, Leon and others near the Georgia line immediately hurried to interview the members of the legislature and did all in their power to defeat the bill.

So many marriages are they called upon to perform for couples from Georgia who do not care to wait for the five days of notice, or do not want their intentions given out so long beforehand to the public, that the business has become quite a remunerative one and they do not want to lose it by having a similar law in Florida.

It is said that the bill was defeated in the legislature.

DARROW AND MALONE READY TO AID SCOPES

Chicago, May 27.—(By the Associated Press.)—Clarence S. Darrow, Chicago lawyer, still stands ready, with Dudley Field Malone, of New York, to aid the defense of J. T. Scopes, of Dayton, Tenn., who has been indicted on charges of violating the Tennessee anti-evolution law. Mr. Darrow said today that published stories that he had volunteered his services with Mr. Malone, were erroneous, and that, if his services are desired, he gladly will join with Mr. Malone in defending Mr. Scopes.

"When I was in Richmond, Va., someone asked if I would not be interested in defending the Tennessee professor," said Mr. Darrow. "I said I would. Then I went to New York, and before I had seen Mr. Malone some of the newspapers asked me about it. Later I saw Mr. Malone and our telegram was sent. Our offer still stands, of course."

Uniform flexibility

means many extra miles of service from balloon tires

BALLOON tires must be more than just flexible. They must be uniformly flexible. Tread, as well as the side-walls, must be flexible.

Miller Uniflex Cord Balloons are built that way. The whole tire flexes evenly from top to bottom. No concentrated stress; no sharp bending of the cords; no excessive distortion. Each ply flexes in harmony with every other ply—internal friction is reduced to the minimum.

The result is an even-wearing, long-lasting tire that'll give you more miles, better service and more complete satisfaction than you ever thought possible in a pneumatic tire.

Put on Millers and travel on tires that are world-standard for quality and endurance. Dealers everywhere—look for the Miller sign.

Millers are original equipment on many popular cars.

SMITH BREAKS LIDO RECORD IN OPEN QUALIFYING

TROTZKY IS RESTORED TO POSITION OF POWER

Moscow, May 27.—(By the Associated Press.)—Returned from political exile, Leon Trotzky, who as bolshevik minister of war organized the military machine that saved the red regime from foreign and domestic foes, has been appointed to a position from which he will have an opportunity to work out soviet economic salvation.

His selection as a member of the presidium of the supreme economic council and chairman of the general concessions committee was officially announced today.

The appointment is to a purely economic and technical post under Dzerzhinsky, chairman of the supreme council of national economy, and removes the former idol of the red army from the orbit of active politics and places him in a position where all his time will be occupied with important reconstruction, economic and industrial problems.

The supreme economic council, of which Trotzky becomes a member manages and directs Russia's national industries. It consists of 12 members.

Communist political observers say it is possible for Trotzky, after completely retrieving his political prestige, to succeed Dzerzhinsky as chief of the supreme economic council. The latter would be given a wider sphere of duty. The communist party congress in November undoubtedly will examine Trotzky's political status anew, to see whether his policies warrant further promotion.

Meanwhile, Trotzky will be entrusted with the important work of drawing plans for the electrification of the whole of Russia, which Lenine considered "the first step toward pure communism for the country." He also is likely to broaden the scope and activities of the concessions committee.

HEALTH MEET PLANNED AT TAYLORSVILLE

Taylorsville, May 27.—(Special.)—A child health program will be held by the Parent-Teach association Saturday afternoon at the Baptist church.

The outstanding numbers on the program are: "Pre-Natal Care," "First Six Months of a Child's Life," "Six to Twelve Months" and "Pre-School Age."

Several musical selections will be an added feature to the program.

Bulletins on 'Care of the Baby," furnished by the state board of health, will be distributed to each mother present.

MORRIS BROWN SCHOOL TRUSTEES END MEET

A stormy meeting Wednesday afternoon marked the close of the sessions here of the trustees' board of Morris Brown college, resulting in the trustees adjourning without raising any salaries and leaving five vacancies.

Bishop Flipper favored having only teachers in the school of the denomination and of southern training and customs, while President John H. Lewis, of the college, pleaded with the board to seek efficiency rather than section or denomination. Presiding Elder F. M. Johnson asked that the report brought in by the committee on teachers, by Chairman R. V. Peacock, of Savannah, and read by Rev. C. A. Wingfield, be adopted.

The move brought a heated discussion which delayed the report, although it was adopted and leaves five vacancies to be filled later. Rev. W. Boyd Lawrence and Rev. C. A. Wingfield were reelected secretaries. Dr. L. H. Smith, of Macon, was reelected treasurer of denomination schools in the state. Dean W. G. Alexander was elected head of the Turner Theological seminary; Rev. John H. Lewis was elected to head Morris Brown; Rev. J. C. Lawrence was reelected president to Central Park Normal and Industrial institute, at Savannah, and Rev. H. E. Davis goes back to the presidency of Bayne college, at Cuthbert, Ga.

The executive board for the institution was elected from the eight conferences of the state. The alumni reported a liberal contribution to the board through its treasurer, Annie B. Thomas.

President Lewis, in a heated statement, charged that two or three of the ministers who are trustees were "tattlers" against the best interests of the school and that they should not be tolerated longer by the board. B. F. Cofer, an alumnus of the school, took a strong position in encouraging the position of the president.

The commencement exercises at Big Bethel church were interesting from almost every viewpoint. More than 2,000 persons were present, and the singing of the students was a feature of the program. The keynote was the address of James M. Henderson, ex-president and presiding elder of the Chicago district of the A. M. E. church. The address was read and held the attention of the audience throughout. He spoke on "A Trained Leadership."

Dr. J. L. Stringer, Dr. B. H. Hannah, Dr. W. O. P. Sherman, presiding elder; Dr. J. T. Johnson, Dr. J. T. Hall, Dr. W. J. Williams, Dr. G. N. Roan, Dr. J. N. Miller, Dr. R. J. Jefferson, Athens; Dr. B. V. Thornton, Dr. J. L. Butler, Dr. John R. Taliaferro, of Rome; Dr. M. A. Fountain, Dr. C. P. Hobbs, of Columbus, composed the executive board from conferences.

The board requested President Lewis, Bishop Flipper and Treasurer L. H. Smith, to secure teachers for the vacancies before school opens.

The session of the board, on the whole, was a good one.

ELECTRICAL EMPLOYEE KILLED AT JACKSONVILLE

Jacksonville, Fla., May 27.—Ashley Garrison, electrical employe, was electrocuted shortly before noon here today when two high tension wires short circuited as he was operating an electric drill. He died almost instantly, examining physicians said.

Garrison and two other men were operating the drill, it is said, and a guy-rope thrown over two city electric power wires while men were in the act of raising some poles caused the short circuit when it drew the wires together.

SALLY LEAGUE

SCARRITT IS HERO.

Asheville, N. C., May 27.—Greenville smothered the Tourists under an avalanche of base hits which were turned into 17 runs and the Spinners took the final game and series here today, 17 to 1. It was the worst defeat the Tourists have suffered on McCormick field since their entry into South Atlantic league baseball in 1924. Dudley, pitching for the Spinners, held the locals to five scattered hits and should have deserved a shutout had it not been for Walsh's error in the eighth inning which sent Allen, who had singled to third, scoring on Redfern's single to left.

COLUMBIA WINS 5 TO 3.

Augusta, Ga., May 27.—Harris held the Tygers at his mercy today, allowing them but five hits, and Columbia took the last game of the series from Augusta 5 to 3. The game was a beautiful pitchers' battle between Harris and Poole, newly acquired Tyger twiler, until the eighth inning, when the Comers scored all five of their runs on six hits. Up to this period the visitors had gotten but three hits off Poole. The Tygers rallied in the ninth, scoring two runs off two walks and two hits, and the game ended with a man on third and one on second when Agnew grounded out.

HOMER GEORGE GOES TO VANDY

Nashville, Tenn., May 27.—Homer C. George, of Atlanta, well-known sports writer, was today named as business manager of the Vanderbilt Athletic association.

Homer George has been identified with Atlanta and southern sports for a number of years. His first venture in the sport field was the founding of "Outdoor South," a sport publication which now is under another management. Prior to that he was manager of the Atlanta theater for several seasons and had been engaged in the automobile business here.

After disposing of his interest in "Outdoor South," George became identified with a sport feature service for newspapers, and, in order to take the position of business manager of the Vanderbilt Athletic association, resigned a place with the Public Ledger Syndicate of Philadelphia. However, he has several series of sport articles for this syndicate which he will complete while serving in his new capacity.

George is well known as a special writer for The Constitution. The latest event of national importance on which he contributed stories to The Constitution sport pages was the Kentucky derby.

SENATORS WIN SLUGFEST.

Philadelphia, May 27. — Washington helped the Philadelphia Mackmen dedicate their new park here this afternoon and then won an old-fashioned hitting bee by a 10 to 9 score. Joe Harris' two homers, one in the fourth with none on and one in the fifth with two on, helped batter Slim Harriss from the peak and his triple in the eighth gave the visitors a tally that prevented the Athletics' two runs in the eighth tying the score.

Eastern Leader Shoots 70; Melhorn Leads Westerners; Jones Will Start Today

Long Beach, N. Y., May 27.—(By the Associated Press.)—Seventy-four leading golfers of the east passed their first test in the eastern district trial rounds of the national open golf tournament today. They played their 18-hole allotments in 83 or better, thereby assuring their participation in the second half of the necessary 36, which will be played on Friday. Tomorrow 65 or more will be selected for the final play of the qualifications.

MacDonald Smith set a furious pace today, posting an exceptional 70 in which he scored six birdies. He was two under par for the round, breaking the competitive record of 71. Martin J. McLeoughlin, of Plainfield, N. J., reported a 73 and he stands tonight second to Smith. John G. Curley, of Nantucket, Mass., and H. C. Lagerblade, of Bristol, Conn., each turned in 74, while the veteran Pat Doyle drove his way to a 75, sharing that score with Walter Hagen.

Then came some other names well known to every follower of golf—Joe Kirkwood, Francis Ouimet and Fred McLeod with 76.

Less Than Half Within 80.

Less than half the field conquered the sand dunes and lakes of the wind swept Long Island course to get within 80. Several were well over 90, while many others bowed in submission to the veritable network of hazards spread and failed to turn in cards.

Kirkwood, famous as a trick-shot artist, negotiated his first nine in par figures and for a time it seemed that the Australian star was about to win through the fame. On his second hole he sank a 40-foot uphill putt from the edge of the green and gained tremendous cheers from a large gallery.

Phillip Turnesa, of the Elmsford club, shot a hole in one with a spade mashie at the 148-yard fourteenth, the ball rolling into the cup after striking the green 20 feet from the pin. His 82 for the round kept him among

Big Field of Fine Horses Entered in Piedmont Show

One of the greatest fields of fine saddle horses ever shown in the south will compete for honors at Piedmont park Saturday when the Governor's horse guard stages a special show, including three classes. The show, planned to encourage interest in fine saddle horses, will be open to the public and no admission will be charged.

Ribbons will be awarded in all three classes and one silver trophy has been offered. The cup is valued at $300 and is being offered by G. F. Willis, of Avondale Estates.

Captain J. S. Shoer of the Governor's horse guard, will be ringmaster of the show, with Lieutenant Theodore Gousby, Lieutenant W. U. Moran and Phil McDuffie assisting him in showing the horses.

Judges for the show will be Colonel W. J. Kendrick, Colonel Darrah, Major J. O. Seamans, Major A. T. Colley and Lieutenant William T. Fletcher.

One of the exceptional horses to be shown here Saturday will be "The Nun," owned by Holland B. Judkins, which was acclaimed as champion in two New York horse shows. Fred Jeter has just purchased a fine horse from Tennessee and will show it here. Frank Adair will be another owner to show his horses. He will enter five in the different classes.

Mrs. C. J. Keremedas, of Atlanta, will enter her "Independence," champion of all classes in the Southeastern fair horse show last fall. "Independence" will be shown by Mrs. Robert Purse, of Chattanooga, one of the south's noted horsewomen.

Altogether there are now 40 entries in the three-gaited saddle class, 26 in the five-gaited class and 28 entries in the pony class.

Included in the program will be a series of cavalry events, in which officers and men from Fort McPherson will be entered to compete with students from the University of Georgia. The university is sending three officers, 10 students and 17 horses here for the cavalry events. Included in this representation is the university's polo team, which will play the governor's horse guard at Fort McPherson at 3:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

Women Golfers of 25 Clubs To Play in Title Tourney

Nashville, Tenn., May 27.—Mrs. Dozier Lowndes, of Atlanta, present southern golf champion, will defend her title against a field of stars in the championship tournament of the Woman's Southern Golf association, to be played over Belle Meade course, beginning Monday, June 1.

Miss Rosalie Mayer, Atlanta, runner-up last year at Memphis, and Mrs Dave Gaut, former southern titleholder, and other women stars will be here for the annual event.

While the list of entries is not yet closed, it is believed that 25 or more clubs will send representatives to the tournament, one of the largest delegations to come from Birmingham, Ala., which city plans to send about 15 golfers, said Mrs. Oscar Noel of Nashville, secretary of the association.

Among the clubs to be represented are: Atlantic Athletic club; Memphis Country club; Roebuck Country club, Birmingham; New Orleans Country club; Greenwood (Miss.) Country club; Mobile Country club; Ansley Park Golf club, Atlanta; Birmingham Country club; Chattanooga Golf and Country club; Punta Gorda Country club, Fla.; Capital City club, Atlanta; Brookhollow club, Dallas; Bristol Country club; Colonial Country club, Memphis; Orlando Country club; Savannah Country club; San Antonio Country club; Galveston Country club; Baton Rouge Country club; River Crest Country club, Fort Worth; Cherokee Country club, Knoxville; Druid Hills club, Atlanta, and the Augusta Country club.

Medal Round June 1.

Low medalist will be decided in the qualifying rounds on Monday, June 1, when the players receiving the 32 best scores will compete for the women's southern championship. The defeated 16 of the first 32 will compete for the Belle Meade trophy, while the players recording the 16 next best scores will try for the president's trophy, and the players making the next best 16 scores will compete for the solace trophy.

First round match play starts Tuesday morning, June 2, in the championship flight. The semi-finals of the championship will be played Friday morning and the finals on Saturday, according to the program.

A list of 27 trophies are to be awarded.

The business meeting of the association is set for Monday afternoon, followed by a tea at the home of Mrs. Frank Berry, president of the association.

Special Contests Tuesday.

The driving contest, approaching and putting, will be staged Tuesday afternoon, the women's two-ball handicap foursome Wednesday afternoon and mixed foursome handicap Thursday afternoon.

Some 200 golfers of the fair sex are expected.

MANNA WINS ENGLISH DERBY

Epsom Downs, England, May 27. Manna, by Phalaric, out of Waffles, and owned by H. B. Morriss, won the derby today. Steve Donoghue had the mount and passed the winning post full eight lengths in advance of a field of 28 runners, winning for the sixth time the most highly coveted of English turf classics.

Donoghue pushed his mount in front from the start and kept him there, even rounding the difficult Tattenham corner with such ease that he completed the mile-and-a-half course pulling up, while those behind were rushing whips and heels.

The much-fancied Zionist, of H. H. Aga Khan, was second, and two lengths farther back in third place came The Sirdar, the entry of the American, A. K. Macomber. The time for the distance was 2 minutes 40 3-5 seconds.

Lord Astor's Cross Bow, which reigned favorite for the past week, and Lord Derby's Conquistador, second favorite, and the French horse, Ptolemy II, Runnymede and others fought for places, but the soft track kept them well in the rear.

A drenching rain had softened the course and the going was heavy. This favored Manna and the second and third horses, which had shown they were good on sticky ground.

The king and queen saw the race and watched the king's entry, Runnymede, go down in defeat. The American and French ambassadors, on special invitation, joined the royal party.

This evening the king, following his custom, gave a dinner at the palace to the leading sportsmen.

GERMAN PATENTS SUIT APPEALED BY GOVERNMENT

Washington, May 27.—(By the Associated Press.)—The government filed in the supreme court today an appeal in its suit to recover German patents from the Chemical Foundation. The government lost in both the district court of Delaware and in the circuit court of appeals.

GRANT BEATEN IN BRITISH AMATEUR

Westward Ho, England, May 27.—America's chances for victory in the 1925 British amateur golf championship were crushed today when Douglas Grant, the lone American survivor, was eliminated by R. W. Crummack, the Lancashire champion.

The play over the rain-soaked links today reduced the amateur championship field to eight players, of which the Argentine champion, J. I. Cruickshank, who brilliantly disposed of his opponent, H. H. Hodge, of the St. George's Hill club, was regarded by the experts as likely to be the contender in the finals, probably against the Scotchman, Robert Harris, who is co-favorite.

Cruickshank won by two holes on the home green after turning one down. He has been picked to defeat Noel Layton, a sturdy and experienced match player, in the sixth round tomorrow, and then to enter the semi-finals.

F. Thompson, of Wearside, who defeated Cyril Tolley yesterday, failed to produce steady golf today and went down before Lieutenant Boumphrey at the 16th.

The defeat of the former Californian, Douglas Grant, by Crummack was the sensation of the round. Grant started well, but began faltering after the third hole and failed to play up to the standard again. Harris had a see-saw match with Major C. O. Hezlett, neither playing brilliantly, but the Scotchman holed a long putt for a birdie 2 and the 16 and halved the 17th.

THREE QUALIFY FOR AUTO RACE

Indianapolis, Ind., May 27.—(By the Associated Press.)—The field of eligibles to start in the thirteenth annual 500-mile race at the Indianapolis motor speedway Saturday was increased to 21 today with the qualifying of Ralph DePalma, L. L. Corum and Ira Vail.

DePalma made the best time of the day for the ten miles trials, his average being slightly over 108 miles an hour. Vail made a gait of 104 miles an hour and Corum showed 103 miles an hour. Corum was co-winner with the late Joe Boyer of the 1924 race.

HOLLINGSWORTH HEADS TANKMEN

"Spec" Hollingsworth, captain of the 1924-25 Georgia Tech swimming team, was reelected to captain the 1925-26 team at an annual election Wednesday morning. Boland Glover was again named as manager and will serve his second term next year.

The members awarded varsity letters included Captain Hollingsworth, Manager Glover, Bloodworth, freshman manager; Noyes, Wardlaw, Bruce and Norfleet. The varsity swimmers will also be awarded gold varsity watch charms. The freshmen getting numerals included McCutcheon, captain; Green, Merry, Endel, Glenn and Galdwin. The freshmen will be awarded silver watch charm T's, a new custom inaugurated this year.

SENATORS SIGN VA. COLLEGIAN

Washington, May 27.—(By the Associated Press.)—Bill Dietrick, star shortstop of the University of Virginia baseball team, has been signed by the champion Washington Senators, it was announced here last night by Manager Harris.

Dietrick is a right-handed batter and has been highly recommended for his brilliant fielding. He will report after his final examinations on June 6.

Two National Motor Events Ordered for Atlanta Races

Plenty of speed and a carload of thrills were assured places yesterday in the Lakewood motorcycle races to be staged June 13 at Lakewook park, when Gus Castle, in charge of arrangements here, received formal notice from the American Motorcycle association that Atlanta has been awarded two national championships.

The races will be staged as the feature of the entertainment of the Southern Motorcycle Rally and Gypsy tours, to be held here June 12 and 13.

The five-mile and 15-mile events are those in which national championships for 1925 will be decided. While Atlanta had one national championship event in 1922, the meet this year promises to eclipse all race programs in Atlanta since 1919, when Gene Walker, now dead, and Ralph Hepburn speeded through a big championship program to victories.

Hepburn has been invited to enter the races here June 13, but is delaying his decision until the finish Saturday of the Indianapolis 500-mile motor classic, in which he will pilot a four-wheeled machine. He qualified for the event Tuesday. Should he win, it is probable that he will quit motorcycle racing for the auto speedway. Otherwise, he is expected to accept the invitation to race here in the motorcycle championships.

The championships to be decided here are the only championships to be run this year south of Chicago. The 1924 championship in the five-mile event was held by Gene Walker, Birmingham boy, who was killed in South Bend, Ind., last year.

The 15-mile event has not been run for several years, due to addition of the 25-mile event in championship classes. This year, however, the American Motorcycle association, decided to resume the running of the 15-mile event. Hepburn held the title in the event the last year it was run.

BIRMINGHAM PLAYS BLACK CRACKERS

Atlanta's Black Crackers will open up a three-game series with the Black Barons from Birmingham this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock on Spiller Field in the first colored baseball games of the season for Atlanta.

All of the proceeds from the game this afternoon will go toward the Firemen's Relief fund and according to all reports a real old time negro baseball game is certain to result.

The Black Crackers, formerly members of the Black Southern Baseball league, have been completely reorganized and are playing under a new management, with the hopes of reorganizing and completing an eight-club league.

Practically all of the members of the Black Crackers are former Atlanta negro college stars and have been playing semi-pro baseball for the past several years. Of the old guard that is left, Poindexter, the shut-out king, the sensational Kid Charles Clark and Nish Williams will appear this afternoon for the first time in several years.

The Black Barons have been playing regularly for the past two weeks and are ready to give the Atlanta fans some real baseball this afternoon.

Bedient Hurls 5-to-1 Win; Cullop Hits 11th Home Run Scoring Good Ahead of Him

Little Rock, Ark., May 27.—(Special.)—The folks back home can thank Nick Cullop for a baseball game. The return of the home-run king to the lineup here today was directly responsible for the Crackers' 5 to 1 win over the Travelers, and return of the Crackers to top place in the league standing.

New York, May 27.—Further private condition reports had no apparent effect on the cotton market today. Trading was quiet with prices easier on prospects for showers in the southwest and more favorable weekly reports from the weather bureau than expected. October sold off from 22.58 to 22.38 and the close was at the lowest, with the general market barely steady at net declines of 18 to 50 points.

The market opened barely steady at a decline of 6 to 8 points in response to lower Liverpool cables than expected but held fairly steady in early trading on apprehensions that the weekly report of the weather would emphasize unfavorable features in the development of the crop. Prices rallied to within a point or two of yesterday's closing quotations. But the weekly report appeared to disappoint recent buyers and the forenoon market turned easier.

Selling became a little more active following private reports of showers at a couple of points in Texas and the official forecast for scattered showers in Texas and Oklahoma, but general business remained quiet on the decline. July sold off from 23.16 to 22.92 and December from 22.73 to 22.54 or 19 to 26 points net lower on the more active points.

Four more of the private end May crop reports were issued with condition figures ranging from 74.8 up to 75.2 with estimates of the acreage increase running from about 6 to 6.4 per cent. These reports were not far out of line with the figures issued earlier in the week and their reception was regarded by local brokers as an additional indication that the end of May condition was considered pretty well discounted.

There were rumors that Japanese interests, credited with having taken up cotton on contract here today, January, March and the present month, might take up additional supplies in July, but July was relatively easy, closing 58 points over October, compared with 60 points yesterday.

Exports today nil. Exports so far this season 7,711,765. Port receipts 2,509. United States port stocks 555,072.

QUIET MARKET AT NEW ORLEANS.

New Orleans, May 27.—The cotton market today was a very quiet affair, about the only spurt of activity taking place right at the close when there was considerable selling on a rumor of rather general rains in Texas. After opening a few points down owing to disappointing Liverpool cables the market promptly recovered the initial loss, July trading at 23.51 and October at 22.22. These were the day's highs. After the weekly crop report the market eased off somewhat and there was a further slight decline to 23.33 for July and 22.06 for October on the official forecast for unsettled and showery weather in the west. These figures remained the day's lows until just before the close when July broke to 23.27 and October to 22.00. The close was at the bottom showing net losses for the day of 22 to 24 points.

In the absence of any definite weather developments the market following the moderate break on the weekly weather report, which was considered slightly better than expected, and the forecast of showers for the west, ruled almost stagnant all day. There was little disposition to enter upon new commitments on either side of the account in advance of the forthcoming government condition report. Even the publication of several more private condition reports failed to excite interest as most of them were in line with those issued yesterday.

In the last quarter of an hour, a wave of selling developed based on a report of general rains in Texas and said to be engineered by those seeking to force a reaction, and all active months were forced down to new lows for the day.

Four private condition reports were issued during the day, the first making the condition 75.2 and the acreage increase 6 per cent. The second made the condition 74.8 and the acreage increase 6.4. The third made condition 75.1 and the acreage gain 6.3 while the fourth made the condition 74.9 and the acreage 43,600,000 acres, no per cent of gain being given.

Exports today 6,354 bales all from Houston, Texas.

Spots in New Orleans.

New Orleans, May 27.—Spot cotton closed steady, 20 points down. Sales on the spot, 1,067; to arrive, 272; low middling, 22.40; middling, 23.80; good middling, 24.40; receipts, 913; stock, 124,430.

Coffee.

New York, May 27.—Coffee futures recovered today a good part of yesterday's decline, owing to reports of steadiness in Brazil and renewed covering or trade buying. The opening was 7 to 15 points higher. Active months sold 52 to 59 points above yesterday's closing prices. July advancing to 18.00 and September to 16.32. The close was several points off from the best under realizing, the general list showing net advances of 15 to 50 points. Sales were estimated at 51,000.

Closing quotations: July, 17.92; September, 16.10; October, 15.90; December, 15.15; January, 14.85; March, 14.50.

Spot coffee steady; Rio 7s, 20 to 20½; Santos 4s, 23¼ to 24. Cost and freight offers included part Bourbon 3s and 4s at 21.50 to 22.75.

News, Views And Reviews

Stock Letters.

FENNER & BEANE.

New York, May 27.—A strong tone characterized general list in today's market and almost every stock traded showed more or less of an advance. The old favorite leaders were again very much in evidence, such as U. S. Steel, Baldwin and Mack Truck. Mack Truck on heavy trading was gradually advanced to a new high record level and is most likely to be advanced to around 200. Mack Truck is at present earning well over $20 a share and as new plant capacity comes into operation the company's earnings are expected to steadily increase to close to $40 a share within a few years. During the last hour trading switched into railroad group with Reading the leader. Market showed plenty of strength and steadiness and demonstrated its ability to absorb all offerings.

LIVINGSTON & CO.

New York, May 27.—The market seems reactionary but at the same time does not show much tendency to go lower. Because of the easy money rates and the indications that business is improving, people do not want to sell their stocks. Consequently little liquidation has been brought out and the market seems to be correcting itself by a churning process rather than by a setback. Stocks are at a very high level but we believe still higher prices are coming although the period of correction may run somewhat longer. Car loadings reported today established a new high record for 1925 indicating that the huge consumption of goods in this country is continuing even though buying is on more or less of a hand-to-mouth basis.

JNO. F. CLARK & CO.

New York, May 27.—Earnings so far published bear out the general contention that the carriers as a whole have done better than in April of last year. Weekly reviews of the steel industry lent color to the theory that that trade is nearing the turn of the road.

Should reactions occur and such would be only natural, they present opportunities to purchase the good issues. The market in discounting future conditions is likely to work much higher.

Cotton Letters.

LIVINGSTON & CO.

New York, May 27.—The market is largely a local professional affair without definite trend. The trade generally is awaiting the bureau report on Tuesday next. Meantime, owing to the absence of hedge offerings and aggressive short selling the supply of contracts is limited and the continued scattered demand from shorts is sufficient to sustain values and a narrow trading market is indicated.

FENNER & BEANE.

New York, May 27.—Current rumor has it that the block of the local stock being worked up for shipment will amount to about 17,000 bales destined to Japan. There is nothing in the new crop situation to sustain prices so steadiness must be ascribed to strength of spots in south. July in both New York and Chicago is at substantial premiums over new crop and sellers in the market fear that a similar or larger premium will obtain here. There is nothing at moment to indicate much change in prices until after the bureau report.

H. & B. BEER.

New Orleans, May 27.—(A. V. Curran & Co., correspondents.)—Rain is claimed to be needed in many localities of Oklahoma, especially in west central and northwest portions, scattered counties of Georgia and a general rain is wanted in Alabama and in south central Texas.

Since the weekly government review was made up to yesterday morning, it is likely that the cool wave came too late to figure much in the official weather and crop report and it is likely that the low temperatures, and their effect on the plant, will continue to be dwelt upon in next week's review.

POST & FLAGG.

New York, May 27.—May and June condition is not accepted by the actual trade as a reliable index to the size of the crop as it has too often proved deceptive through frequently serving as a basis for speculative operations for the decline. Still a satisfactory condition at that time is not calculated to stimulate demand and expectation now appears quite general that the May report will be over rather than under 75 or about 10 points better than last year and about three points above the 10-year average.

C. P. ELLIS & CO.

New Orleans, May 27.—The recent inactivity has been accentuated by the restrictions to trading, occasioned by the approaching initial bureau crop condition report, and pending the issuance of the latter, we expect no important price changes, unless there should be some unusual weather development such as the appearance of timely rains in the drought sections of the belt and especially in south and southwest Texas.

HUBBARD BROS. & CO.

New York, May 27.—The general opinion prevailed a few days ago that there would be some short covering but it looks as if the market would show very little change before the bureau in so far as there are only three more days left and unless something of a decidedly bullish character makes its appearance, the tendency will be to possibly take a chance in going over the bureau short in anticipation of a bearish report. However, this is merely guess work and it is extremely hard to foretell just what will happen before the bureau. Outside of possible short covering, we do not expect very much change. Liverpool futures are due tomorrow. July, 12.36; October, 11.95.

ORVIS BROS. & CO.

New York, May 27.—The main feature was the weekly weather report which read favorably except noting the lack of moisture in portions of Texas and retarded growth because of the recent cold weather. The cloth markets continue experiencing only moderate demand and mill curtailment talk persists. We continue of the belief that sales on rallies are advisable. Liverpool due July, 12.37; October, 11.96.

Grain Letters.

FENNER & BEANE.

Chicago, May 27.—WHEAT: Weakness in Liverpool and scattered rains over the northwest offset the bullish crop reports emanating from the winter belt. Profit-taking was liberal, and while excellent buying was uncovered on the dips, there was enough wheat put on market to make it reactionary. We feel wheat a purchase on all substantial setbacks.

CORN: Dipped in a moderate trade with fair buying developing on the weak spots. Reports from the country were mixed as to what extent if any corn had been hurt by recent freeze.

OATS: Off with other grains. Trade simmered and scattered selling through commission house sufficed to take edge off the market. Demand for cash was moderate with the basis easy.

JNO. F. CLARK & CO.

Chicago, May 27.—The Missouri weekly report says crop was in bloom, therefore sensitive to cold, but beyond this no statement was made. At moment, weather is somewhat unsettled but forecast does not promise any important precipitation. Export and domestic demand for old wheat, both slow at present, moderate sales to go to store being made for delivery on May contracts. The immediate future of prices depends upon amount of rainfall but it seems unwise to expect any permanent lowering of prices.

Daily Cotton Review

Washington, May 27.—Cotton prices on the New York cotton exchange today opened at declines of 6 to 8 points. July futures opened at 23.18, were 23.15 at 11 o'clock and closed at 22.96, as compared with 23.18 yesterday and 23.65 one year ago, and on the New Orleans cotton exchange they closed at 23.27, as compared with 23.51 yesterday. On the Chicago board of trade July future contracts closed at 23.45, as compared with 23.72 yesterday.

The average price of No. 5 or middling spot cotton in 10 designated markets today declined 21 points, closing at 23.83 per pound. Middling spot cotton at New Orleans was 23.80, as compared with 24 cents yesterday.

Spot sales in 10 designated markets were 2,465 bales, against 2,479 bales yesterday. There were no exports reported today.

Total bonds sales $14,633,000.

New York, May 27.—(By the Associated Press.) — Conflicting price movements continued to characterize today's uneven bond market, although trading was marked by an under current of strength. Quiet accumulation of high grade investment bonds held up the general average of prices, but semi-speculative issues continued to sag under the weight of realizing sales.

The interest of investment circles was centered chiefly in announcement that spirited competition for a $33,000,000 Norwegian loan had resulted in the award of the government's financing, which has hitherto been handled by J. P. Morgan & Co. and the National City company, to another syndicate headed by Blair & Co. Offering of the 40-year 5 1-2 per cent bonds will be made next week. At the same time it is expected that a Morgan group will place on sale a $45,000,000 Argentine issue, which it recently obtained in competition with the Blair syndicate.

Price changes in stock exchange trading were generally narrow and insignificant. Among the rail issues, which lost ground on profit taking were several of the St. Paul obligations, Kansas City Southern 5s, Denver & Rio Grande 5s, Central Pacific 5s and Union Pacific refunding 4s. Chesapeake & Ohio convertible 5s were the only outstanding strong spots in the railroad list.

Recent advances in gasoline prices provided the incentive for renewed buying of oil company liens, which scored moderate gains. Motor bonds followed the upward trend of these stocks.

South American obligations were more active than usual in anticipation of the approaching Argentine bond offering. Swiss 5 1-2s rose to a new high price for the year.

Building Activity Proves Good Business Stimulant

New details regarding this year's heavy building activity as they come to light from time to time serve only further to emphasize its genuine character. Preliminary estimates of April building indicated that April was a record month for the value of new building under way or contemplated. Further statistics, as compiled by the F. W. Dodge corporation, show that in actual volume last month was also very unusual. The actual volume of new contracts awarded for residential types of building, as indicated by millions of square feet, was the greatest for any month in any other year shown in the above chart, which includes figures for 27 states. Business and industrial construction contracts also experienced a sharp advance in volume.

To thousands of people the country over, the fact that home building is being accomplished in such large volume is pleasurable news, for despite the almost superhuman post-war efforts to replenish the lack of homes created by failure to build during the war, there are even now none too many homes in this country. In a good many cities there may now be a slight surplus of homes, but it would take very little to wipe out this surplus. Home seekers may well feel cheerful, therefore, over the activity in the home-building industry. Prolongation of this activity means a lessening in the pressure of demand and insurance against abnormal rental charges.

To the business world this year's building activity cannot seem otherwise than reassuring. For the construction industry, with its thousands of employees and the thousands to which it gives work indirectly through purchases of lumber, iron, steel, hardware and other commodities, to say nothing of the home furnishing industries affected, exerts a powerful influence upon business trends, an influence perhaps not held by any other industry.

The Day in Finance

Rail Share Holders Await Action of I. C. C. on Merger Question; Wall Street Impatient Over Nickel Plate Hearings.

New York, May 27.—Strength and activity continue in the stock market. Most of the advances, however, are in specialties. The average price continues below the new high level for all time, established at the close last week. Disinterested students of the market are beginning to get the feeling that either industrial stocks are too high or rails are too low. Until the interstate commerce commission takes a definite stand on the railway merger question now before it no great upward price movement is expected in the rails. On the other hand, while the feeling is growing that industrials "look high," there is no prospect for a sharp decline in these issues as long as money continues to show even slow improvement.

Wall street is becoming impatient over the Nickel Plate merger hearings now being held before the I. C. C. So far instead of going into the fundamentals of the railway merger problem and reaching a decision these hearings have been largely confined to the side issue raised by minority C. & O. holders over terms. As Wall street sees it congress has authorized the commission to go ahead with mergers; counsel for the proposed Nickel Plate merger has told the commission to make any changes desired in the proposed terms. But still the commission arrives at no definite decision.

Wall street thinks it high time that the commission made up its mind on the question so that the railroads involved in the proposed Nickel Plate merger and others know where they stand on this important issue.

Ford, chairman of the committee. Mr. Ford has written to other cities to get information concerning telephone rates in those cities. PUBLIC UTILITIES STRONG ON CURB

New York, May 27.—(By the Associated Press.)—Revival of bullish operations on large scale in the public utility issues featured today's strong curb market. National Power soared nearly 20 points to 326 and then dropped to 322 1-2 and Commonwealth Power jumped over 10 points to 170, closing just below the top. Net gains of 1 to 2 points were recorded by American Light and Traction, American Power and Light, Electric Investors, Lehigh Power Securities and Northern Ohio Power.

Chrysler Motors was again the outstanding feature in the industrial group, jumping over 6 points to a record top at 105 1-2. Kelvinator moved up over 2 points to 31 and Chapin-Sacks advanced 2 points to a new high at 37 but cancelled its gain on profit-taking. Universal Pictures advanced a point to 27 on reports of expanding operations. Victor Talking Machine was again in supply, dropping 4 points to 76. Interest in the radio shares was divided between an advance of 1 5-8 points in Thermiodyne and another jump of nearly 3 points in David Grimes.

Oils displayed a firm undertone, Humble climbing nearly 2 points to 64 and most of the other active issues improving fractionally.

Sugar.

New York, May 27.—The raw sugar market was easier today. Late yesterday there were additional sales of at least 150,000 bags of Cuban for prompt and June shipment at 4.45, an advance of 1-32, but today offerings increased and prices declined 3.32 to 4.37 for spots, duty paid. Today's business included 11,000 bags of Porto Rican, first half June shipment, and 10,000 bags of Cuban afloat at 4.40; 6,500 bags of Porto Rican, first half June clearance, and 5,000 bags of Cuban afloat at 4.37.

Raw sugar futures were easier under increased commission house selling promoted by the easier tone in the spot market and the unfavorable European markets, where Javas were said to be pressing for sale. Prices declined 5 to 8 points, but rallied partially near the close on covering and were finally 3 to 6 points net lower. July closed 2.70; September, 2.84; December, 2.88; March, 2.92.

Refined sugar prices were advanced 10 points to the basis of 5.70 for fine granulated by several refiners, although they were still accepting orders at 5.60. The general range of prices was from 5.55 to 5.70. Only a moderate inquiry was reported.

Refined futures were nominal.

Cottonseed Oil.

New York, May 27.—After starting lower today with lard and grain, cottonseed oil recovered on removal of hedges against cash business but finally eased again under liquidation and in sympathy with lower cotton. Closing bids were 1 to 15 points net lower. Sales, 19,700 barrels. Tenders, 1,700 barrels. Prime crude, 9.25, sales; prime summer yellow, spot, $10.25@10.35; July closed, $10.52; September, $10.88; October, $10.70; December, $10.10, all bid.

Total stock sales, 1,576,400.

New York, May 27.—Strength and activity of the motor shares, a dozen of which broke through to new high levels for the year, was the outstanding feature of today's irregularly higher stock market. The day's sales again totalled about one and one-half million shares.

Reports of record breaking production and largely increased earnings provided the groundwork for the advance in the automobile stocks which was led by the Maxwell issues. Maxwell Motors B, which was reported to harbor a large short interest, was run up nearly 8 points to a record top at 106, and then slipped back about a point from the high. The B certificates closed 5 1-2 points higher at 103 3-4 and Maxwell A and the A certificates advanced 2 and 1 1-2 points respectively. The B stock had sold as low as 33 1-4 this year.

Revival of a demand for Mack Truck sent that issue up over 4 points to a new peak at 184 7-8 Other automotive issues to top their previous high prices were Pierce Arrow common, preferred and prior preferred, Studebaker, Hudson, Paige-Detroit and Eaton Axle, buying of the last named being stimulated by a resumption of dividends on the common stock.

Public utilities also took on a new lease of life, International Telephone leading that group by climbing nearly 10 points to a record top at 102 on publication of the annual report showing earning of $18.11 a share on the common stock last year, as compared with $8.40 in 1923. American Water Works moved up to a new top at 64 1-2 and then eased a point on profit taking.

The establishment of a new 1925 record in car loadings for the week ended May 16 stimulated the demand for the railroad shares with the best gains being recorded by the coalers. Reading climbed 2 1-2 points to a new top at 85 3-8 and net gains of a point or more were recorded by Baltimore and Ohio, Chesapeake and Ohio, Delaware and Hudson, Lackawanna and Missouri Pacific preferred.

Oils showed moderate strength with a continuation of heavy buying in Independent Oil and Gas, which closed a point higher at 32 1-4. Most of the other oils improved fractionally.

Moderate improvement also was shown by standard industrials. American Can closed more than a point higher at 189 3-8 and Baldwin and United States Steel showed fractional gains at 114 5-8 and 117, respectively. Several specialties were under accumulation, new 1925 highs being established by Allied Chemical, Ahumada Lead, International Cement, Consolidated Cigar, Simmons Company, F. G. Shattuck, Robert Reis and Goodyear preferred.

Heaviness cropped out in United States Industrial Alcohol, American Agricultural Chemical preferred, General Baking, International Business Machines, May Department Stores, National Distillers and Reynolds Tobacco B. Marine preferred broke to a new low for the year at 36 3-8.

Call money again held steady at 4 per cent. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged with business quiet.

Foreign exchange rates were irregular. Demand sterling held fairly steady, just under 4.86, but French francs broke below 5 cents to a new low record for the year. Reports persisted that the French government was planning to "peg" francs at 100 to the dollar.

THE CHASE NATIONAL BANK OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK, TRUSTEE

For detailed information in regard to these bonds attention is directed to a letter from Mr. J. I. Mange, president of the company, which is available on request and which he has summarized substantially as follows:

BUSINESS AND PROPERTY—The company and its subsidiary and affiliated companies own, control or operate public utility properties which have been in continuous successful operation for varying periods up to 73 years, supplying electricity and (or) gas to over 138,000 consumers, serving a total population estimated at more than 600,000 in more than 400 communities in New York, Massasetts, Connecticut, Vermont, Ohio, New Hampshire, Maine, Kentucky and Tennessee. The properties include electric power stations with a generating capacity of 82,600 K.W.; 1,215 miles of high tension transmission lines with additional lines under construction; gas plants with a daily capacity of 4,435,000 cubic feet and 241 miles of gas mains.

CONSOLIDATED EARNINGS for the 12 months ended March 31, 1925, gross earnings of subsidiary and affiliated properties now operated and including other income, totaled $10,094,013. Net earnings after expenses, maintenances, taxes (except federal income) and after deduction of income applicable to minority common stocks held by the public, were $3,927,355, equal to over twice the total of fixed charges of subsidiary and affiliated companies and annual interest requirements on funded debt of the company, including this issue. The above earnings reflect only annual dividends receivable from the Manila Electric Corporation and other minority investments and not total earnings applicable to the company's holdings. Of the net earnings, approximately 85% was derived from electric light and power operations; 6% from gas and 9% from miscellaneous sources.

SECURITY—The secured gold bonds (including this issue and the $2,800,000 of the series due 1954 now outstanding), constituting the senior funded debt of the company, are its direct obligation and are secured by pledge with the trustees of substantially all of the stocks and notes of important subsidiary companies directly owned by the company, together with a majority of the stock of its most important affiliated company. The appraised value of the properties of subsidiary and affiliated companies, as determined by Edward J. Cheney, engineer, plus net additions at cost and net current assets, after deducting all underlying liabilities and equity for minority interests, is over $35,000,000 or over $2,000 for each $1,000 bond.

SINKING FUND—The indenture provides for a sinking fund for the bonds of this series, payable semi-annually beginning January 1, 1926, equivalent to 2% annually of the principal amount of such bonds at the time outstanding, to be applied by the trustee to the purchase of bonds of this series, so far as obtainable at not exceeding 101 and accrued interest within 50 days. Bonds so purchased or redeemed are to be cancelled.

FRANCHISES AND MANAGEMENT—Franchises and rights appurtenant to the various properties are without burdensome restrictions and afford ample protection to the company. The properties are under the supervision of the J. G. White management corporation, insuring efficient and economical management.

SOUTHERN SHOWS HUGE EARNINGS

Southern Railway earned within $1.06 of the entire annual dividend during the first four months of this year, according to the statement of earnings issued Wednesday. The report gives the surplus for the four months ending April 30 as $5,727,000 after taxes and charges, which amounts to $3.94 a share on the common after the preferred dividend. This compares with $2.67 for the same period in 1924.

The net operating income for the four months is shown to be $9,950,673 against $8,432,031 for the same period last year, an increase of approximately a million and a half.

The buying public during the last few months has discounted some of the increased earnings in Southern with the resulting rise in the price of the stock. There have been frequent predictions that the issue would soon break through 100, and Wall street Wednesday was predicting a higher price for the common and an increased dividend based on the assumption that litigation over the back preferred dividends will be settled satisfactorily.

CONSCIENCE IS VICTOR

Chicago Man Admits Tipping Waiter in Georgia.

There was some doubt at the capitol on Wednesday as to whether Anton Hartwick, of Chicago, was sincerely penitent, as he wrote in a letter to Governor Walker, or whether he was poking a little sly fun at one of Georgia's laws. Anyway, the sense of Mr. Hartwick's letter was as follows:

Four years ago, he ate dinner on a Pullman diner passing through Georgia. He tipped the waiter 15 cents. Leaving the diner, he noticed a sign declaring that tipping was illegal in Georgia.

Last Sunday Mr. Hartwick became conscience stricken. He taxed his memory to check up on the sins he had committed. And prominent among them was this 15 cent tip in violation of the law of Georgia. So he wrote the governor, made his confession and now awaits punishment.

The fact that the anti-tipping law has since been repealed may have some bearing upon the sentence imposed on Mr. Hartwick, it is stated.

INQUEST FOR AGED FURNITURE DEALER TO BE HELD TODAY

John M. Nettles, 61, of 406 Angier avenue, was found dead Wednesday morning in his furniture store at 234 Decatur street. A coroner's inquest will be held at 9 o'clock this morning at the funeral parlors of Awtrey & Lowndes. It is believed he died of natural causes.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Ettie Nettles; three sons, J. M., Jr., Hoke and Joe B. Nettles, and one daughter, Miss Evelyn Nettles.

The body is being held at the funeral chapel, and funeral arrangements will be announced later.

Barbecue Is Planned For City Officials At Moseley Park

Mayor Walter A. Sims, members of city council and members of the board of county commissioners and other city and county officials will be guests of the Moseley Park Improvement association at a barbecue to be given at the park at 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon, it was announced Wednesday by L. L. Wallis, superintendent of parks.

The Moseley Park swimming pool will be opened Saturday. Several short talks will be made by the officials. The plans for the further improvement of the park being carried out by the improvement association will be outlined.

Citizens of the Moseley Park section are planning for a big day at the opening of the swimming pool. A special program of water sports has been arranged for the occasion.

TECH HIGH GRADS HONORED AT DANCE

Graduates of Tech High school were honored with a dance Wednesday night on the roof garden of the Asslev hotel by the Parent-Teachers association of the school.

Mrs. George Gibear, president of the association, had charge of the entertainment. Over 600 invitations were sent out. Entertainment was furnished by some of the members of the Forsyth theater, in addition to special singing and recitations.

Professor W. O. Cheney, principal of the school, gave an address.

CRIPPLED CHILDREN TO ATTEND CONCERT

A large number of children of the Scottish Rite hospital will be honor guests at 2 o'clock this afternoon at a concert to be given by the Boys' High School orchestra at Egleston hall.

The orchestra consists of 25 students of the institution and has been pronounced by many critics as the finest prep orchestra in the south. The musicians have played perhaps before more schools and charitable institutions than any other orchestra in the city and holds the reputation having traveled more extensively and for being one of the busiest prep orchestras.

ATLANTA BANKER LEAVES FOR FLORIDA

Mr. Camp is one of the most popular banking officials in Atlanta. He has been connected with the Atlanta Trust company for five years and prior to that time was with banks in New York. He is a native of Atlanta.

Weekly Crop and Weather Summary of Cotton Belt

Washington, May 27.—(By the Associated Press.)—The weekly weather and crop review of the department of agriculture today says:

The weather during the week was rather favorable for cotton and very good progress was noted in most sections until near the close when growth was checked in northern and eastern portions of the belt by cool weather. Late-planted cotton, however, is beginning to show need of moisture in many localities.

In Texas cotton grew well in the north and the Rio Grande districts; elsewhere the early planted made fair progress, but the late crop needed moisture; there was little complaint of insect damage. In Oklahoma and Arkansas progress was very good except that late cotton made only fair advance in the former state and the coolness the latter part of the week checked growth in the latter. Growth was generally satisfactory in Louisiana with plants squaring heavily.

Advance was rather slow in Mississippi and Alabama because of cool nights, and stands are irregular in the latter state, though mostly good. Growth, stands and general condition of the crop are mostly satisfactory in Georgia, though late cotton is very irregular and its growth was slow. Improvement was noted in Florida and showers were beneficial in the Carolinas, but cool weather near the close of the week was unfavorable. Germination has been rather poor in Virginia, but stands are mostly good in southern Illinois, and conditions were favorable for cotton in the far southwestern states.

Good Showers.

Pastures and meadows were benefited by showers in the upper Ohio valley and the Atlantic coast states, and some improvement was noted in the east gulf districts. Considerable damage from frost appears to have resulted to fruit, especially the small varieties in the lake region and some north-central states. There also was some harm from hail and windstorms in the northern Appalachian mountain section. Citrus fruits in Florida show improvement since the rain, but much fruit was lost by dropping during the recent drought. Apples are reported as dropping rather badly in North Carolina.

Garden and tender truck crops have suffered severely from freezing in many interior northern districts, but these made fairly good progress in other sections of the country, with rain in the east and southeast beneficial. Truck crops show some improvement in the southeast, but general rains are needed over the eastern half of the country. Potato planting is well advanced in the northeastern states but this crop made slow growth in most interior districts. Cane grew well in Louisiana.

The progress and condition of oats are generally fair. Barley and rye are making fair progress. Rice is coming up nicely in Arkansas but needs rain in Louisiana. Corn suffered a severe setback by cold weather in some localities, which will necessitate replanting. Rains were beneficial in the middle Atlantic area, but moisture is needed in most of the south.

North Carolina—Beneficial rains at beginning followed by warmth favorable; much to cold at close. Excellent advance of cotton, corn, tobacco and truck until Sunday; very poor thereafter. Wheat heading to maturing; harvesting oats in east. Apples dropping badly. Mayflower aches and dewberries ripening.

South Carolina—Condition of cotton fair and improved by mid-week heat stands now very good and chopping general, but considerable replanting; few weevils south and east. Early corn vigorous and intermediate shows good stands planting continues. Cereal harvests quite general with only fair results. Tobacco, truck and minor crops made slow growth and need soaking rains.

Democrats See Chance To Get Control of Senate In Next Year's Elections

Republicans Realize Odds Against Them; Dawes May Prove of Benefit to Opponents.

BY MARK SULLIVAN.

Washington, May 27.—The story that the democrats are to have a new national chairman has its foundation in a striking recent rise of spirits and zeal for activity among some of the party leaders. Whether the story turns out to be literally correct or not will depend largely on John W. Davis. By custom and tradition, Mr. Davis, as the party's recent candidate for president, even though defeated, has a kind of regency responsibility and custody of the party's fortunes, during the four-year interval until some one else is given the next nomination.

The party is organized around Mr. Davis and the present national chairman, Clem Shaver, is his friend and personal manager. Everybody takes it for granted that Mr. Davis does not look to another nomination and that, therefore, he and his chairman will withdraw from the foreground at a time appropriate to the party's good fortune. But it is a fair guess that Mr. Davis, as a matter of sound judgment, is not likely to regard the appropriate time as having arrived just yet.

Seek to Curb Factions.

The retirement of the present chairman at this moment would run the risk of reviving last year's cleavage of the party into a McAdoo faction and a Smith faction. Every person proposed as the new chairman would be scrutinized jealously by the respective factions to see if he ever had any affiliation with the other. A new chairman could only be named by a meeting of the entire national committee consisting of one hundred and four men and women, two from each state and territory. A meeting of the national committee for this or any other purpose just now would be subject to the same objection that made it expedient to defer those harmony and get-together meetings that were proposed by various enthusiastic leaders for last spring, namely the danger of the meeting splitting into two mutually antagonistic groups.

The most thoughtful democratic leaders regard the existence of this schism as the biggest advantage the republicans have over them. They charge the republican papers with stirring it up from time to time, and regard it as their own best policy to do nothing until time shall soften that rancor and other issues eclipse it.

Rising Hopes Manifest.

Probably the choosing of a new chairman will come as soon as it is deemed possible to hold a meeting without running the risk of a repetition of the New York convention last year. Meantime, what is happening among the democrats is a striking rise of hope and energy among those leaders who are charged with electing democrats in next year's senatorial and congressional elections. They realize, as the republican leaders also realize, that the democrats have a good chance to gain control of the senate.

The present republican majority is 14, which means that whenever seven republicans vote with the democrats the republicans have no majority at all. The republicans have already voluntarily subtracted four from their precarious majority by formally expelling four—Senator LaFollette and his three associates. That is the dangerous position of the republicans as they face next year's elections.

Democrats Have Odds.

In these elections, the statistical and geographical conditions of the fight run strongly against the republicans. They must win 26 out of the 33 senatorial elections next year in order merely to hold their ground. It is almost beyond possibility that the republicans should be able to do that well. Then add to the statistical and geographical conditions running against the republicans, the apparent fact that the republican vice president, Dawes, intends to travel up and down the country working for the defeat of such republican senators as do not agree with him about the senate rules. All this constitutes the reason the chairman of the democratic senatorial committee, Senator Jones, of New Mexico, and the chairman of the congressional committee, Oldfield, of Arkansas, are described as extraordinarily endowed with the "pep" that is based on hope and good luck. Probably, however, the fighting will be done by these two, with no change in the national chairmanship.

If the democrats should do as well in the senatorial elections next year as they confidently hope to, the McAdoo-Smith schism would be eclipsed and forgotten, and the party could hold all the meetings necessary to make it a formidable contender for the presidency.

FLORIDA NO-GAMBLING MEASURE HITS SNAG

Tallahassee, Fla., May 27.—(By the Associated Press.)—An unsuccessful effort was made today to place the anti-gambling bill on the senate special order for consideration at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning. The vote against the proposal was 17 to 12.

The proposal of Senator Edge followed action of senate judiciary committee "B" in reporting the house bill favorably with amendments, which eliminated all reference to man or skill, and making the violation of the provisions a misdemeanor instead of a felony.

Members of the committee said the bill as reported out of committee would make it apply primarily to race track gambling and cock fighting. They would rely on the present law to take care of gambling on prize-fighting, baseball and football games, they said.

Discussion and motions that consumed several minutes followed the proposal of Senator Edge to make the measure a special order for tomorrow, during which he declared he merely wanted to get some definite action on a matter in which the people of Florida were vitally interested. Delegations had come to Tallahassee to present their views on the bill, he declared, and suggested that some action was demanded and expected. After the discussion had continued for several minutes he stated he had no intention of delaying the proceedings of the senate, but he believed he would soon find out who was for and against the bill.

Senator John W. Coe, of the second district, in objecting to the special order, expressed belief that the measure was not one of statewide interest, and therefere it was not proper to make a special order for a measure of interest to a minority of one section of the state.

He was followed by Senator Scales, of the Twelfth, who made a substitute motion, which was finally ruled out of order, that measures be taken up in the order in which they appeared on the calendar. Senator Scales declared that if special orders were continued the senate would never get to the bills on second and third readings.

THAW'S ATTORNEY DENIES LAVISH SPENDING BY CLIENT

New York, May 27.—(By the Associated Press.)—Some one is taking advantage of Harry K. Thaw's presence on Broadway to press agent himself, according to Batholomew B. Coyne, Thaw's attorney.

Coyne denied today that Thaw showered tips recklessly in a cabaret Sunday as reported in several newspapers. The attorney said Thaw merely dropped into the place for a little recreation. He declared that while patrons of the cabaret may have had a hectic time, Thaw himself described it as dull.

Thaw came to New York to consult Coyne on legal matters, the lawyer says. At his hotel yesterday Thaw said he might remain here for "half an hour or three weeks."

"I'm simply here on business and I'm going to attend to that business and leave," he said.

One investigator of Thaw's cabaret visit reports that only one $100 bill was produced and that to pay the check for $91. When the change came Thaw gave a tip of $2 to the waiter, who was transfixed with indignation, this account says.

Another report says that Fawn Gray, dancer, credited with having been entertained by Thaw in the cabaret, is wearing a bracelet with two rows of diamonds.

ROBBERS BESIEGE TOWN AND ESCAPE WITH LOOT OF $2,500

Kentland, Ind., May 27.—(By the Associated Press.)—Between eight and twelve men in automobiles early today besieged the town of Brook, home of George Ade, humorist, blew open the vault of the State Bank and escaped with approximately $2,500.

Telephone and telegraph wires leading out of the town were cut and the men proceeded in a leisurely and efficient manner to dynamiting their way to the money. Frightened citizens were held at bay and were eyewitnesses to the robbery.

Members of the band patrolled the various corners in the town, stopping at the point of weapons all persons who ventured from their homes to investigate the five dynamite explosions that shook the place. Their "job" completed, the men clambered into two automobiles and made their escape.

GERMAN DIPLOMAT OUSTED FROM POST

Berlin, May 27.—(By the Associated Press.)—Wilhelm Jaenicke, son-in-law of the late President Ebert, has been suspended from his post as attache to the consulate general at Milan, Italy, pending disciplinary proceedings. It is alleged that while a guest at an Italian hotel on May 13 he wrote on the register:

"In your comfortable hotel we forgot that Von Hindenburg had been made president of Germany."

Men Too Tame Do Not Please Queen Marie

Bucharest, Rumania, May 27.—Queen Marie of Rumania has just completed a series of newspaper articles, the first of which will be published in England and America next week.

There are indications that these articles will prove the sensation of the year in European court circles.

It is the first time that a reigning member of royalty has actually written a series of signed articles for the press. The queen tells in a vivid and intimate way her experiences in European courts, and gives her philosophy of life, love and work.

In one of the articles, for example, the queen will discuss her "experience with men." She will say: "I, for one, would consider life a dull business if there were no men. Do I like taming them? Yes, decidedly yes. But I do not like them too tame. I like playing with fire as does any woman worth her mettle. But I always played fair or tried to. I am no longer young, but this does not make much difference, I have discovered. I still find more inflammable stuff around than I have use for. My heart is not old. It never will be."

In a letter to Loring Pickering, manager of the North American Newspaper Alliance, Queen Marie explains that these articles are being written "especially for the American public" and adds: "With them I send a very genuine message of friendship and good will. I have already often expressed my great liking and admiration for America and its people. I feel a certain pioneer kinship with them. I sympathize with their sincerity and their vigor."

THOMAS MARSHALL NEAR RECOVERY, ATTENDANTS SAY

Washington, May 27.—(By the Associated Press.)—Despite his 71 years, Thomas R. Marshall, former vice president, who is suffering in his suite at the New Willard hotel here from nervous exhaustion and a cold, was said by his attendants tonight to be making his way slowly toward recovery. Dr. B. L. Hardin, his physician, declared his condition improved through the day, but estimated that it would take a week to put the patient on his feet again.

Miss Coppedge Weds Mr. Sharp At Beautiful Church Ceremony

A beautiful wedding of last night was that of Miss Sarah Evoline Coppedge and Marion W. Sharp, which took place at the St. Paul Methodist church on Grant street at 9 o'clock. The impressive ceremony was performed by the pastor of the church, the Rev. L. W. Collins, who was assisted by Rev. J. E. Ellis, of Augusta.

The decorations were elaborate and effective. The choir loft was banked with palms and green foliage and these same stately plants were used in the chancel and covered the steps which lead up to the altar on either side. At the center of this effective arrangement a tall cathedral candelabra holding 21 burning tapers was banked wih easer lilies and white gladioli, and at each end the same beautiful flowers decorated a seven-branch candelabra. The chancel rail and the rest of the church was gracefully decorated with southern smilax, and the family pews were marked by baskets of lilies and gladioli and white satin ribbon streamers.

Bridal Party.

As the bridal party entered the church the wedding music was rendered by Mrs. Annie Mae Taughman Norton, who is organist at St. Paul's. During and after the ceremony beautiful selections were sung by Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Timms and Mrs. Arthur Styron.

The first of the attendants to enter down the center aisle was Mrs. Burner Scott, whose gown was a beautiful model of peach satin back crepe with a chiffon overskirt and a large gracefully draped bow forming a sash on one side and effectively trimmed with French roses. DeWitt Hopkins entered with Mrs. Scott. Next came Mrs. William H. Martin, whose becoming gown was a model in blue made on the same lines as Mrs. Scott's and the other attendants. Thomas Crowe accompanied Mrs. Martin and as they approached the altar down the left aisle of the church Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Styron entered at the right. Mrs. Styron's gown was of nile green. Miss Dorothy Dukes, junior bridesmaid, entered with William Coppedge, Jr., and wore a dainty coral gown. Mrs. Travis Douglas, sister of the bride, came down the center aisle alone, and her gown was the same beautiful model in orchid.

Next came Mrs. William H. Coppedge, who was her daughter's matron of honor. Her handsome gown was of coral crepe gracefully draped with chiffon and effectively trimmed in French roses.

The little ring bearer, Master Holland Smith, of Cartersville, attired in a full dress suit, came next bearing the ring on a silver tray. Then came the dainty flower girl, Miss Louise Green, attired in a French model of white chiffon scalloped and lace trimmed. From her curly hair fell a miniature bridal veil. From her arm hung a basket filled with white rose petals which she scattered as she preceded the bride.

Lovely Bride.

The beautiful bride entered with her father, William H. Coppedge, and was met at the altar by the groom and his best man, Virgil Cook, Jr.

Her bridal robe of duchess satin was veiled in chantilly lace and embroidered in seed pearls and crystals. A wide girdle formed a large bow on one side and hung in graceful folds below the hem of the dress. A court train of tulle was held at the shoulders by tiny bunches of French flowers. A soft veil of the same gossamer material was caught to the dark hair of the lovely bride with orange glossoms forming a band and ending in sprays at either side. Loops of satin ribbon were effectively combined with these sprays and fell gracefully from the beautifully draped veil.

The dainty white slippers had orange blossoms as decorative ornaments. The bride carried a real lace handkerchief, which is a family heirloom and has been carried by all the brides of the family for generations past.

Informal Reception.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Coppedge, on Milledge avenue, for the wedding attendants and the out-of-town guests. Mrs. L. A. Sharp, of Conyers, mother of the groom assisted in the entertainment of the guests.

Wide interest centers in the marriage of this young couple. Mrs. Sharp finished her education in Atlanta a very short time ago. She has never made a formal debut but is considered one of the most popular members of the college set. Mr. Sharp came to Atlanta from Conyers, Ga., some years ago and is connected with the Atlantic Ice and Coal corporation where he holds a responsible position.

After a short wedding trip to the mountains Mr. and Mrs. Sharp will be at home temporarily with the bride's parents.

IF GROCERIES
RUGS
and Draperies?

Ten years ago it was a rare thing for people to pay cash for foodstuffs.

Today the cash grocery stores do approximately 90% of the business done in foodstuffs in this city.

Why is this? The answer is simple. The public soon learned that substantial savings could be effected in the cost of providing for the table BY PAYING CASH.

The same reasons which enable the cash grocery stores to sell for less enable this firm as distributors of Oriental and Domestic Rugs and Draperies to sell for less.

It is no more logical why one piece of merchandise should be sold for less on a cash basis than any other merchandise.

Think this over, then visit our store; see for yourself that our prices mean absolutely a 22 1-10% average saving.

A Proud Man's Compensations

An Editorial by James Wallen

Lord Leverhulme, great English manufacturer of soap, had many points of pride. He was a strong man who worked for the glory of achievement.

But, with all his success at mass production, the amazing volume of his factories interested him less than quality. Lord Leverhulme made good soap.

No man can take much comfort or feel a glow of satisfaction from flooding the world with unworthy goods.

The pleasure that comes to a merchant from the placing in the households of his community things of beauty and value is one of the cherished compensations of life.

Those who compose the house of Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose are men, who, like Lord Leverhulme, have pride of craft. They believe that only when merit is concerned is a thing well sold, Virtue brings more than its own rewards in storekeeping. It fetches to the portals of the store a consistent, loyal trade. Every day is a red letter day in the Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose store. It is not necessary for this house to await an extraordinary event to enjoy the bracing zest of sturdy business.

The Love Cycle

BY MILDRED BARBOUR

The Refusal.

Weston was alone in his library when Mansfield called.

The house was in darkness except for the reading lamp over the table and a single gas jet in the kitchen. Weston practiced economy rigidly despite his millions.

Mansfield had to wait for a long time after his ring before a rather slovenly servant answered. She was old and fat after years in Weston's employ, and so privileged that she admitted the visitors with no very good grace over having been disturbed.

"He's in there," she said shortly in response to Mansfield's question, and motioned toward the library door.

Mansfield felt his way through the semi-darkness of the hall and entered the library which had not changed in a single detail since his childhood. It was an austere, high-ceilinged room, with an atrocious black marble mantel and an open grate in which no fire had ever burned to Mansfield's recollection. There were plenty of good books, rather musty with age and disuse, behind the glass doors of the old bookcases. Above them were hung, on the same nails of 30 years ago, dismal pictures which had been fashionable in the early nineties. There was "The Return of the Prodigal," "In Disgrace" and three or four others.

Weston was sitting in a decrepit chair under the reading lamp. His gray hair was untrimmed and he still wore side-burns.

"Strange to see you outside of business hours," he greeted his son-in-law with enthusiasm. "As they say in books—to what am I indebted for the honor of this visit?"

"I wanted to talk to you privately," Mansfield told him.

"Well, have a chair. There is a cigar humidor on the table. I'd rather you'd smoke one than those cigarettes. Even the smell of them gives me a headache."

Mansfield declined with a gesture, drew up a chair, and, leaning forward with his elbows on his knees, said earnestly:

"I have come to you, sir, as a last resort; I need some money badly."

Weston removed his cigar from his lips frowningly.

"What for?" he asked bluntly.

Mansfield hesitated.

"May I ask you to trust me, sir, when I say that it is essential without telling why."

"Certainly not," his father-in-law replied decisively. "Where has all your money gone? You make a good salary. You ought to have saved a lot."

"I haven't saved anything," Mansfield replied wearily.

"Why not?"

"Well, my expenses are pretty heavy. Helen wants nice things; there is the education of the children and the two houses and the cars. It gets into my resources pretty far."

"Then cut them down," was the cold advice. "Live within your means, young man, and you won't be in trouble."

"But I can't ask Helen to give up the things she loves," Mansfield insisted, "and you wouldn't want her to be deprived of anything yourself, sir."

"Humph—I guess she does not need more than her mother had, and let me tell you this: her mother would turn in her grave if she knew the way Helen throws money away."

"But Mrs. Weston made sacrifices to give Helen everything she wanted when she was a girl."

"My wife made sacrifices all her life; she was a real woman, not a dressed up doll. And I made sacrifices, too, don't forget that! Let me tell you this, young man—at your age I was making $200 a month and glad to get it. I had a wife and a child and a home, and we lived well."

"But times have changed, sir. The high cost of living—"

Weston brushed aside his son-in-law's protest.

"The high cost of being a fool," he grunted. "No!" his clenched fist came down on the arm of his chair with a bang, "you get no money from me for your foolish extravagances. Live within your means. You make enough to support ten families, and if you want to squander it on cars and servants and liquor and clothes and all the flubdub that you call society, none of the money I work for is going into it! That's final!"

Mansfield was silent for a long time. He felt the net closing about him. It had taken all his pride to come to his father-in-law for a loan. He had expected it to be a difficult ordeal, but he had hardly anticipated a flat refusal.

He realized now that the Davidson woman and her so-called husband actually had gained entree to his home; he dared not temporize, but he saw the futility of further conference with his father-in-law.

"I'm sorry, sir." He rose and pushed back his chair. "I'll just have to try elsewhere, and I'd rather have kept it a family matter."

Weston only grunted a "good night."

Little Cinderella

THE PRINCE'S MESSAGE.

This is one day's part of the famous story of "Cinderella." Soon the story will be complete, and if you have saved the dolls you will have the entire set with which to act out the fairy tale.

The next day the prince sent forth word that he had found a glass slipper and that whoever could wear the slipper should be his bride. It was sent around by messenger from one house to another and every lady, whether young or old, was eager to try it on.

At last the messenger came to the house where Cinderella and her step-sisters lived. The step-sisters were so sure they could wear it that they began to quarrel to see which should try it on first. Finally it was given to the eldest, but push and pull as hard as ever she could she could get only her toes in. Then the second sister tried, but that was worse than ever, for not even her toes would go in.

(Color this stepsister's ball dress green. Her beads and fan should be gold. Tomorrow we shall see the stepmother.)

BEAUTY CHATS
BY EDNA R. FORBES.

THE FRECKLE SEASON.

The freckle season is not yet but will come soon. So before the sun grows too hot it might be well to consider freckle remedies, and better yet, freckle preventives.

We'll not discuss veils. No healthy girl wants to go veiled in the summer time, there are too many other ways not to freckle. There's cold cream, vanishing or the ordinary sort, which can be used on the skin before going out, wiped off and then covered with powder. The only trouble is that the cream works out unless the complexion is dry. There are large, shady hats that are better, for they keep the head cool and shadow the face, and the new ones, flower trimmed, are quite charming.

Here are "cures." Try equal parts of peroxide and ammonia, painted on the freckles with a brush, for it is a strong bleach and need not be used all over the skin. If it makes the skin sore, use once a day, and half an hour after using rub on cold cream.

Try barley water, an old time remedy. Make as the cook books direct for drinking, only much thicker. Add equal parts spirits of wine, or if you cannot get this, witch hazel. Rub it all over the skin, it is a very good bleach.

Or buy one pint of emulsion of almonds and add one drachm of simple tincture of benzoin. Mix slowly and thoroughly, and use this freely all over the face. Or slice cucumbers thin, barely cover with water and simmer. Then press them through a coarse bag to squeeze out the juice. Add a drachm of tincture of benzoin to a pint of this, and a few drops of eau de cologne if it seems sticky. Rub this all over the face too. While treating the face with these bleaches, rub the stuff into the hands as well.

Dot—You will have to improve your physical condition besides using local means to clear your skin of blackheads and the other troubles. After the pores of the skin have been overworked because there has been a sluggish condition in the system, it will take a long time for them to contract to their normal size. Always close the pores by an ice rub or with very cold water, after each time you have massaged with a cream.

A full daily hot bath all over is a great help in such cases as yours, as keeping the pores all over the body cleared and active, will relieve the pores of the complexion of any extra secreting, and gradually there is a general improvement.

Charlotte H.—You can gain the few pounds that you need by drinking a quart of milk every day, one pint of which take hot just before retiring. Olive oil taken in the salad dressing will also be helpful.

Mrs. Speer Gives Tea for Mrs. Meegan.

A beautiful affair of Wednesday was the tea at which Mrs. W. A. Speer entertained at her home on Peachtree road in honor of Mrs. James Meegan, who is the guest of her sister, Miss Annie Flynn.

Throughout the handsome home lovely baskets of fragrant lilies, sweet peas and snapdragons were used as decorations, the exquisitely blending shades of pink, lavender and yellow being carried out in detail.

On the handsomely appointed table in the dining room, which was overlaid with a real lace cover, was a beautiful silver loving cup filled with madonna and butterfly lilies and sweet peas. At intervals on the table were graceful baskets of these same fragrant flowers and alternating with these were tall silver candlesticks holding burning tapers. Dainty compotes were filled with nuts and mints.

Miss Frances McKenzie, charming granddaughter of the hostess, served punch from a beautiful bowl embedded in ferns and flowers. The guests included about 55 friends of the honoree.

Program Announced For Howard Matinee.

A remarkably fine program is scheduled for the Better Films matinee Saturday at the Howard theater at 9:30 o'clock, when a program combining a feature picture, Jackie Coogan in "Trouble," a "Snooky" comedy and an educational, "The Life of an Ant," will be given.

The Coogan picture needs no explanation, for Jackie has been proven by vote to be the most popular of all the matinee stars with youthful Atlantans. Snooky is a prime favorite for popularity in the animal class, dividing the honors with several dog heroes, but the educational feature is of such an unusual nature that it deserves a special description.

Through the efforts of Louis H. Tolhurst, a Los Angeles microscopic expert, as described in the Literary Digest, insects have been introduced into motion pictures for the first time, through means of powerful magnifiers, becoming for the time being monsters possessed of terrific energy, and exceeding in the work and play of their minds and bodies, the interests of human beings. They show dramas of love, hate, industry and fidelity, in which the actors show far more abandon, sincerity and zest than their human rivals. The picture Saturday, with an ant hero, will be followed by a series of insect pictures of equal interest.

The Saturday chaperons will be Mrs. W. L. McCalley, chairman; Mesdames John W. Lloyd and J. G. Courtney, from Calhoun P.-T. A.; Mesdames A. V. Toney and J. B. Davies, from Lee Street school, and Mrs. N. E. Russell, from Kirkwood P.-T. A. At the Alpha, Mrs. L. C. Holsenback will be in charge. The admission at both theaters is 10 cents.

THOMAS WARREN KILLS SELF AT SPARTA HOME

Sparta, Ga., May 27.—(Special.)—Thomas Warren, 57, retired farmer and native of this county, committed suicide here last night by placing a revolver of large caliber against his temple and sending a bullet through his brain. Members of his family who were in the house at the time, rushed to his room when they heard the report of the pistol, but death had been instantaneous.

There were no eye witnesses to the tragedy and an inquest was held by Coroner Sharpe. The verdict being "that he came to his death by his own hand."

He left no note, nor can his family give any reason for his rash act. He was one of the oldest members of the Sparta Baptist church and had lived in Sparta several years since retiring from active farming.

He is survived by one son, William Warren; four daughters, Mrs. Dewey Jackson, of Warrenton; Misses Myrtle, Mary and Susie Warren, all of Sparta.

His wife preceded him to the grave many years ago. Funeral and interment services were held this afternoon.

ATHENS PAGEANT CREATES INTEREST THROUGH STATE

Athens, Ga., May 27.—(Special.)—The pageant staged here by the state college of agriculture for the entertainment of the County Commissioners' association caused more favorable comment than any similar entertainment ever staged in Athens and Dr. Andrew M. Soule, president of the state college of agriculture, has received many letters commending the college on the extravaganza on the development of agricultural education and development in the state.

One letter, from the head of a large manufacturing concern in Atlanta, suggests that the pageant be presented to the people of the state on a larger scale and if it cannot be taken to the people that it be staged in Athens for similar conventions.

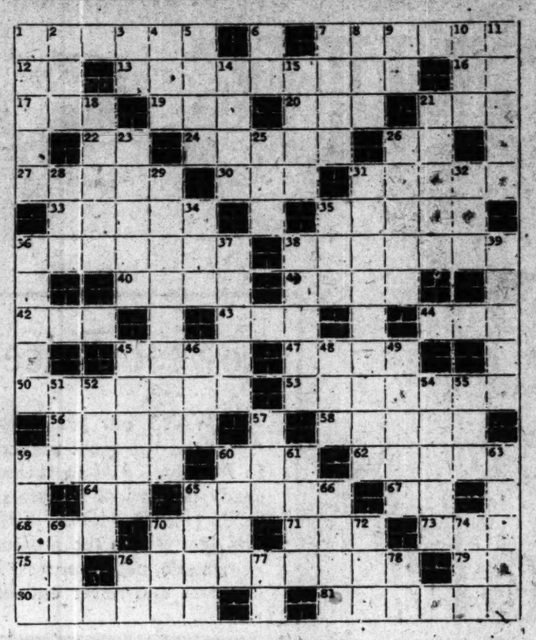

"I thought that this pageant was one of the most wonderful expositions that I had ever seen—a wonderful education to me, and, unquestionably, a wonderful education to every man, woman and child who had the pleasure of seeing it," wrote this prominent Georgia business man.

Health Class Is Given Luncheon On Wednesday

Mrs. W. B. Price-Smith, president of the Margaret Blair health class, entertained the members of the class at a pretty buffet luncheon Wednesday at her home on West Eleventh street.

The attractively appointed table in the dining room was overlaid with a lace cover and adorned in the center by a large plateau of pink sweet peas, blue hydrangea and lavender sweet peas. These lovely flowers were artistically arranged throughout the reception rooms.

Mrs. Wilmer Moore, Mrs. John Owens, Mrs. Holmes Weaver and Mrs. M. L. Thrower assisted the hostess in entertaining.

The meetings of this class have been discontinued for the summer but will be resumed in the early fall, when Mrs. Margaret Blair, of Los Angeles, Cal., noted health lecturer and for whom the class was named, will return to the city for a visit.

Mrs. Blair was among the distinguished lecturers in Atlanta this past winter. She was sponsored by The Atlanta Constitution and her lectures attracted the attention and interest of hundreds of Atlanta women.

Immediately following her lectures in the city, the Margaret Blair health class was organized and Mrs. W. B. Price-Smith elected president of the class. At the meeting Wednesday the members of the class were enthusiastic in their appreciation of the services of Mrs. Smith and her helpfulness to the class.

Better Plants.

Don't wonder why the plants die when kept in a gloomy, sunless part of the room. Very few plants do not require sunshine and while some will bloom without direct rays, they are very few. You will find best results are obtained with plenty of sunshine, air and good warm rain for watering purposes.

KNOWING WHAT YOU DO ABOUT NUCOA, DO YOU WONDER THAT MOTHERS ALL OVER THIS COUNTRY GIVE IT A HEARTY WELCOME

Over in Europe they say we Americans spoil our children.

That may or may not be true.

But we certainly do take good care of their health. Their sleep. Their clothing. And their food.

Nucoa is such a good food for children.

And the rich food value of Nucoa isn't its only appeal to Mothers, by any means.

Here are five of the many reasons why Nucoa is becoming more and more the fashion in American homes everywhere.

Think of them especially as a contribution to your care of your children:—

1. CLEANLINESS. Nucoa is produced under model conditions of absolute sanitation with every modern appliance to keep human hands away from it.
2. PURITY. Nucoa is a vegetable product. It is naturally wholesome. It is refined to the point of delicacy.
3. VITAMIN A. Nucoa contains the precious Vitamin A in abundance. Without this Vitamin the human body cannot grow. And the Vitamin content varies less in Nucoa than any other similar product.
4. FLAVOR. Nucoa is not exactly like anything else in flavor. It is individual and satisfying—and, by the way, so easily digested that hospitals prescribe it in specified cases.
5. UNIFORMITY. Nucoa is always the same. In control of every day's production of this great food is a responsible expert—a modern scientist on guard. This man with his Master Standard and a national system of reports, protects the quality of every pound of Nucoa that goes into your home. It is a personal service to you.

Nucoa sells everywhere for about 35 cents per pound

Kewanee, Illinois.—"When I was married about a year and a half I took

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound because of ill health. I did not have any children. I now have two healthy little girls and I am sure I would not have had them had it not been for your medicine. Last spring and summer I got all run-down, irregular, and I had awful headaches, and my back and side hurt me so that I could stay up only a short time. My limbs would get so tired and ache till I could cry. I started to take the Vegetable Compound again and used the Sanative Wash, and it was not long till I was relieved. Now I do all my own work and help others. I sure praise Lydia E. Pinkham's medicines to any one I meet that is suffering from similar troubles. I think if mothers with girls would give it to them when they come to womanhood it would make them stronger. People who have known me all my life are astonished to see me now as I was always sickly when in my 'teens and until I started taking the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. MARY R. Clubwomen Pledge Support To Library Training School

That Atlanta is in danger of losing the Library Training school at Carnegie library unless prompt action is taken by council was set forth by Miss Tommie Dora Barker, librarian of Carnegie library on Wednesday afternoon at a meeting of the executive board of the Atlanta Federation of Women's Clubs held at the Piedmont Driving club. In Miss Barker's talk she declared that Atlanta is indebted to the Carnegie foundation for this, the only library training school in the south, and that in the course of the years that it has been in existence the Carnegie foundation has expended more than $90,000 on its upkeep.

Experts who have recently included the Atlanta Library Training school in a nation-wide survey of this field, have ruled that the school must be reorganized in order to meet new standards, and that to do so it will be necessary to provide the school with a double appropriation. Carnegie foundation agreed to furnish two-thirds of the increased amount provided Atlanta council will give the other third. It is estimated that this will call for an appropriation of $1,200 by Atlanta the first year, $2,800 the next year and $4,700 the following year. With the double appropriation the school can be brought up to the full professional standard. As a time limit of three weeks is given by the foundation, Atlanta club women voted to throw the full weight of their organizations to the support of Miss Barker in bringing this matter before council. Mrs. T. T. Stevens, president of the federation, appointed Mrs. John King Ottley, Mrs. Frank Neely and Mrs. Kate Green Hess as a committee to aid Miss Barker.

Much attention was given at the meeting to plans for the General Federation council to be held at West Baden, Indiana, June 1 to 6, and to the Georgia Federation council to be held at Tallulah Falls school one week later. Mrs. Alonzo Richardson, director for Georgia in the general federation, was a guest of the occasion and spoke of Georgia's failure to appropriate money for maintenance of general federation headquarters in Washington. The federation immediately voted $10 for this purpose. Mrs. R. K. Rambo also spoke on the West Baden meeting. Mrs. Rambo has been appointed official hostess for the Georgia delegation at West Baden by Mrs. Oswell P. Brantley, president of the Georgia federation, at the request of the hospitality committee for the council. The approaching council meeting at Tallulah Falls school on June 9 to 12 centered interest durind a brief talk by Mrs. John King Ottley, president of the board of trustees of the school. Mrs. Ottley outlined plans for this meeting which indicate that the gathering will be of exceptional importance throughout the states in club and educational circles. At the suggestion of Mrs. Ottley it was decided to postpone the annual meeting of the Atlanta federation from the customary date in May to Wednesday, June 17, as the present officers and executive board of the Atlanta federation are scheduled to important parts in the entertainment and the program of the council.

Mrs. Albert Thornton, Mrs. A. P. Coles and Mrs. Spencer Atkinson, past presidents of the Atlanta federation, were guests and speakers at the meeting, Mrs. Thornton referring in her talk particularly to the splendid work done by the committee on international relations in the Atlanta Woman's club with reference to securing Candler field.

A distinguished guest of the meeting was Mrs. Robert Blackburn, who was introduced by Mrs. Stevens as Atlanta's newest addition to the ranks of successful authors. Reports featured the remainder of the meeting. Included among the chairmen and presidents reporting were: Mrs. Willard C. Patterson, president of the Georgia Playmakers, who reported $557.40 made for Tallulah Falls schools through the production put on by the Potter-Spiker players; Mrs. Arthur Hazzard, who reported $400.40 made for the federation's founders' scholastic fund; Mrs. W. B. Price-Smith, who reported 12 scholarships bestowed through the federation this year; Mrs. A. P. Treadwell, who reported civic improvements in Ansley park; Mrs Frank Pogue, who announced formation and federation of a new club; Mrs. Oscar Palmer and Mrs. E. D. McDonald, each of whom sighted outstanding accomplishments. Mrs. Katherine Connerat was presented and gave an outline of the magnificent concert series planned by the Atlanta Music club for next year.

DR. SHELTON SPEAKS TO NORMAL STUDENTS

Athens, Ga., May 27.—(Special.) Diplomas were delivered Wednesday to 265 students at the State Normal school, who, according to Dr. W. A. Shelton, the baccalaureate orator, are now prepared to sacrifice everything for the higher service to humanity.

"Education," the speaker said, "used to mean preparation to make material success. Nowadays education, instead of meaning what the slogan says 'learn and earn' qualifies one for serving for small monetary considerations in the interest of humanity."

"The monetary interest," said Dr. Shelton, "sinks in the background and becomes secondary to the intellectual and spiritual motive."

Dr. Shelton, who is dean of the school of liberal arts of Emory university, delivered one of the most inspiring and interesting addresses ever heard in Athens. Speaking to hundreds of students and visitors in Pound auditorium, who came from all parts of the state to witness the graduation exercises, he referred to the marvelous physical and spiritual progress of the world and declared that the graduates to whom he was speaking Wednesday are entering a world far better than any ever known.

The exercises were opened with music by the orchestra, after which Dr. J. M. Pound, president, introduced Dr. J. J. Bennett, pastor of Prince Avenue Baptist church, who delivered the invocation. Dr. Shelton then spoke, after which B. S. Miller, of Columbus, chairman of the board of trustees, delivered the diplomas to the 265 members of the senior class, one of the largest, ever graduated from a Georgia school.

THIEVES REAP RICH HARVEST WEDNESDAY

Burglaries, the old pocketbook "flim-flam" game and other forms of robbery Wednesday were reported to detectives as having taken place during the day and late Tuesday night.

In the raid upon Atlanta homes conducted by thieves, six gold watches were taken in addition to a quantity of other jewelry and wearing apparel.

One of the places looted by burglars was the grocery store of Ross & Chambers, 721 South Pryor street, where hams, bacon, sacks of flour and staple groceries were taken. Police believe the robbers had use of a motor truck in getting off with the loot.

Those losing jewelry to thieves were: Miss Nellie Glover, 32 Rhinehart street, who reported loss of a gold wrist watch; C. H. Smith, 80 Whitehall street, platinum diamond ring; T. L. Ficklin, 197 West Peachtree street, gold watch and $7; J. W. Jones, 25 Lyons avenue, gold watch; Mills Speer, 15 Frank street, gold watch; Mrs. C. H. Everett, 244 Garden street, gold watch, pin and necklace. A platinum wrist watch set with two diamonds was stolen from Fred W. Ivey, 75 Greenwood avenue, and a diamond ring was taken from Green Horton, of Kirkwood. Thieves who invaded the home of Mrs. I. L. Bryant, 414 East North avenue, took a shotgun and three dresses.

The victim of the pocketbook game was Gertrude Gaston, negro woman, from Breckenridge, Mass. She collected from the office of the Western Union Telegraph company $45 that had been sent by Massachusetts relatives, only to lose it to two new "friends" who gained her confidence.

Bachman, chairman of the subcommittee on finance and housing, presented the report of that committee, which was adopted tentatively. E. A resolution was adopted appointing a committee to prepare a fitting testimonial upon the death of the late chairman, Mr. Norcross.

ALL KINDS OF ALPHABETS

China Has Largest Number of Letters and Uses Them All.

In the old days the first thing that children were taught in school was the alphabet, known as the A. B. C's. Then when the child learned to count the 26 letters it had quite a good start on arithmetic.

Where would the beginner be after learning the Chinese alphabet? There are more than 200 letters in that, and the Chinese laundryman' uses them all when we accuse him of a shortage in the weekly wash.

Next in size comes Sanskrit, the ancient Aryan language of the Hindus, with 44 letters, then Russian, 36; Persian, 31; Turkish, 28, and Spanish, 27. Those with less than our 26 are French, 25; Greek, 24; Latin and Hebrew, each 22; Italian, 20, and Celtic, 17.

Get the new Universities Dictionary so that you may be sure that you are using every letter of our alphabet correctly. This volume contains all of the words necessary for everyday use—and more than the Chinese use ordinarily. The coupon in another column shows how to get this new dictionary.

He recognized the man as Terence. Komi started swimming for the shore dragging Terence after him. Buck and his comrades had reached shore, and were standing on the bank, watching and waiting. They ran up as Komi pulled in and laid Terence's limp body on the ground.

"Dead," he cried, as the men approached him. "Me too late." He pointed at Terence's bound hands. "Him hands tied—can't swim. Him drown."

There was no breath stirring in Terence's breast. He lay motionless. Buck approached, kicked him with his foot, to turn him over. The limp body rolled over, and lay still.

Komi spoke again.

"Leave him body with Komi, please," he said. "Him's father Komi's friend—Komi bury him—where his father sleeps."

"No harm in that, I guess," Buck said grimly, turning to his fellows. "He won't trouble us no more now. You birds beat it back to camp. I'm streaking for the Spear ranch to phone Taggart that O'Rourke's croaked."

The dripping men separated, Buck going his own way in a different direction.

Komi watched carefully till all vanished from sight. Then he bent over Terence's body, cut the rope which bound his hands, worked his arms vigorously, then bent over and listened to his heart.

"Maybe yet," he muttered, "maybe yet him live."

With renewed zest he started working Terence's arms to restore respiration.

At the end of a half hour Terrence still lay limp, but the old Indian kept up the resuscitatory motions, faithfully and frantically in the dim hope of still bringing him to life.

CHAPTER 19.
Agonizing News.

Stella Montrose sat across the table in Taggart's office and listened intently.

"If Buck and the boys have put O'Rourke out of the way, as I instructed them," Taggart was saying, tapping the table with nervous fingers, "we are safe, for he won't be able to testify that Mary didn't cash that check herself."

As Stella was about to reply, there was a knock on the door, and Taggart motioned her to be silent.

"Come in."

The door opened, admitting Mary, accompanied by Bud Hughes. Bud stared in open-mouthed astonishment at Stella. Her face, too, lighted up with recognition at the sight of him.

"Why it's Stella," he exclaimed. "Stella Montrose," and he ran forward and greeted her warmly.

"Bud Hughes," she cried, taking his hand. "I'd never have known you—in that beard and those cowpuncher clothes."

Beaming, Bud turned to the puzzled Mary and Taggart, and explained:

"Miss Montrose and I used to do airplane stunts together in Benson's old flying circus."

He turned back to Stella, and took a seat beside her. They became immediately engrossed in reminiscences of the past. Stroking his beard, and laughing, he said:

"I've threatened to yank these chin slivers off for a long time. I'll do it now." Then he added in a more serious tone, with a note of tenderness, "I'd never have grown them if I hadn't lost you, Stella. I've often thought of you, and hoped against hope that chance would bring us together again."

They chattered on.

Mary, looking pale and worried, talked to Taggart.

That $20,000 check that Terence was bringing back when he disappeared, has been indorsed and cashed by an imposter," she said impulsively.

"Why an imposter?" Taggart replied. "You may be sure O'Rourke had a hand in it. I had expected as much."

"Oh, I can't believe that—not Terence," Mary protested. "He must have been held up—and the persons who got it from him forged the signature and cashed it."

"Have it your own way, then, Mary," Taggart snapped. "The fact nevertheless remains that the check has been cashed, the bank claims that you got the money, and O'Rourke has never returned."

Stella, talking to Bud, was listening to the conversation of Mary and Taggart, with half an ear, veiling her interest in it.

Taggart went on:

"I am afraid you will have to take this loss the best you can. Banker Dawson 'phoned me immediately after he had seen you about it. He said there is nothing that can be done about it. If you try to force them to restore the $20,000 during their present stringency, he warns that they will seize the Bar M ranch to satisfy the notes against it. And you know he has thus far been very lenient about the delinquent payments your father owes him. We can't afford to antagonize him on this smaller matter."

Mary showed signs of breaking down under the burden of her troubles. Taggart approached her, patted her, and said:

"There, there, Mary, we'll get you out of all these troubles. Just depend on me—I'll see you through. I'm working night and day now planning out means to save your father, the ranch, and bring about your happiness." He lowered his voice, as he bent over her, his arm about her shoulders, and said: "And you know why, Mary—because of what I have been telling you day after day now—" his voice dropped to a whisper as he bent close to her ear—"because I love you."

He pressed her hand, then rose and spoke out loud again:

"Right now I'm working up the appeal in your father's case. I shall demand a new trial, and I think we can get the verdict reversed and have your father liberated." He beamed upon her with the most winning smile he could summon to his lips.

"Meanwhile, I want you to go down to the ranch and have your boys round up all the cattle for immediate shipment and sale. If you will do that, I've got a line on a deal which I think I can put through which will solve the money problem and save the ranch. You see, Mary, I have been thinking of nothing else these days except what I can do for you."

He squeezed her hand again, desire beat in his brain as he looked longingly at her.

"Yes, I know," Mary answered, "and I do appreciate your help, Mr. Taggart, but I—"

The ringing of the telephone interrupted her. Taggart seized the instrument and answered. After listening a moment, his face became tense with surprise, and apparent shock, and he exclaimed:

"Good God, is that true?"

Inwardly he was exulting, but he concealed his elation and affected a tragic air. Mary eyed him with curious expectancy. After listening a minute or two more he hung up the receiver, and turned to her. Stella was now listening intently also.

Taggart hesitated, thinking, and finally said slowly:

"Mary—that was—Komi, the old Yaqui chief. He's been trying to reach you with word that—that—" he paused that the full effect of his words might burst upon her—"that O'Rourke is dead!" he finally concluded.

Mary, stunned, wild-eyed, unable and unwilling to believe her ears, slowly rose from her chair and stared at Taggart.

"Dead?" she repeated as in a trance. "Terence O'Rourke—dead."

Uncomprehendingly she stared before her, a tragic figure. Taggart supported her in his arms, and tried to explain. Suddenly the full significance of the words came to her in a flash. Uttering a pitiful cry she collapsed in a dead swoon.

Taggart, reclining her into a chair, signaled to Stella, who had been taking in the scene with interested eyes and ears to bring water.

Stella applied a wet handkerchief to Mary's brow, and as she revived, both Stella and Taggart tried to console her with affected sympathy. Mary, ignoring their words, again realized what Taggart had told her, and broke into agonized sobbing. Finally, controlling herself to regain her poise, she looked at Taggart with tear-filled eyes, and faltered:

"What shall I do? I have no, now—no one—but you."

Taggart's eyes gleamed covetously, and he put his arm around the stricken girl and tried to comfort her. Secretly he was gloating in the satisfaction that he was now the sole friend she could turn to.

"I'm sorry, for your sake, that this has happened, Mary," he lied. "But you will find that I am a friend you can rely upon, and as you know, I am only too glad to do everything in my power for you."

Mary finally sat up, still weeping, trying to compose herself.

"I am stunned, overwhelmed—there are so many things," she said. "Daddy in prison—Terence dead—the ranch slipping from us—my money gone—oh, it seems so hopeless, I don't know what to do."

"Come, come, Mary," Taggart said solicitously. "You're simply all unstrung now. Go to the Bar M with Bud—and Stell here. She'll be a companion and comfort to you—Stella's a good friend and will look after you till you feel more yourself."

Stella slipped her arm around Mary and said:

N ',.bg' cd :bSo eta oitaoshrdlu

"Yes, yes, I shall be only too glad to do anything I can."

Mary thanked them all, and finally arose. Supported by Taggart and Stella, while Bud ran ahead to get the horses ready. Mary was helped to the door and out in the street. They put her on a horse, and Bud and Stella, mounting, rode one on each side of her, while Taggart waving adieu, watched them off on the way to the ranch.

Returning to his office, Taggart hastened to the 'phone and called the Spear Ranch.

"Buck McLeod," he demanded into the 'phone. "Hello, Buck?—listen, Buck, get your gang and pull another raid on the Bar M—tonight—and this time get every steer on the ranch. When you get there watch for a note from Stella—she'll frame how to go about things without too much fuss."

CHAPTER XX.
Idaho Bill Joins Up.

Hanging up the telephone receiver, Buck McLeod strode swiftly out of the Spear Ranch house, mounted a horse, and galloped off.

From a clump of bushes where he had been waiting a mysterious looking renegade type of man in rough clothes, and a slouch hat, watched Buck riding off. When he seemed at a safe distance the stranger emerged from his hiding place, leading a horse. He mounted, and followed stealthily.

Buck rode up into the hills to the nest where his gang was encamped, the stranger trailing him cautiously. The lookout guard waiting alert, recognized Buck, and passed him in.

"We're makin' another raid of the Bar M tonight," Buck called as he came up to the men, sitting on the ground, smoking and playing cards. "An' this time it's a clean sweep of the whole Marshall herd—don't forget that."

They were startled by the sound of a shot.

The mysterious stranger who had followed Buck had approached too close and the lookout had fired.

Buck and the others ran out to see what was happening. They saw the lookout running to a spot where the stranger lay inert on the ground. Then, as the lookout came up, the man on the ground suddenly rose up, knocked the gun out of his hand, and bowled him over. Buck and the others rushed up and jumped the stranger. After putting up a strong fight, he was finally overpowered. Buck tore his gun from his hands.

"This is sure a fine way to treat a friend," drawled the stranger, trying to grin affably.

"What d'ya mean, friend?" Buck asked.

"I'm Idaho Bill from the Three Forks country," replied the stranger. "I'm hidin' out from the sheriff."

Buck glared suspiciously at the man. He signaled one of his gang, and said.

"Stokes, you come from Three Forks—is this the hombre?"

Stokes faced the man and subjected him to a close scrutiny. Finally he said:

"Well, I never seen Idaho Bill personally—but I know he's got a bad scar on his left shoulder."

They all turned to the stranger, and Buck said:

"'Sposin' you identify yourself, stranger?"

The man pulled open his shirt and exposed his left shoulder. There, sure enough, was a deep scar.

"I hope you're satisfied, boys," said Idaho Bill.

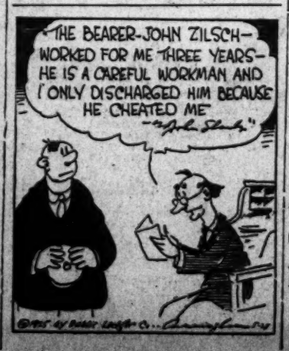

"Seems to be all right," Buck declared, and the others nodded approvingly. "Wanta join our outfit, Idaho? We're just about to leave on a little rustlin' job."

"Sure thing, I'll join up," replied Idaho Bill.

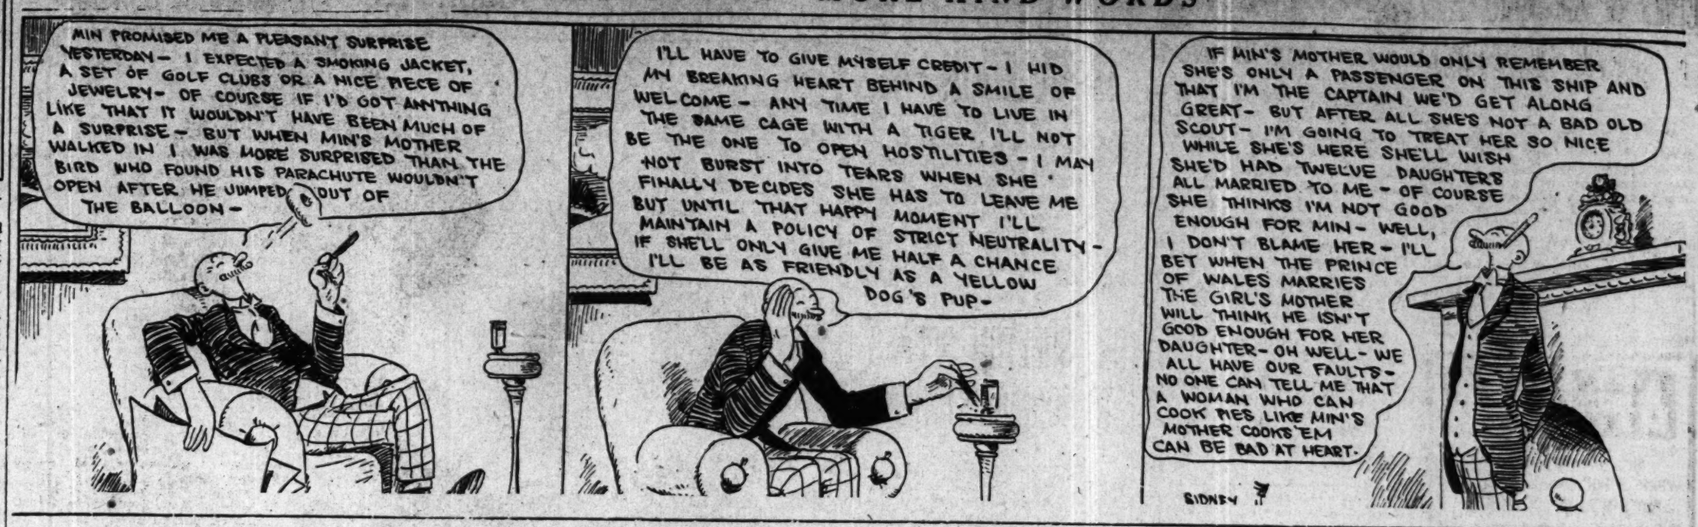

"Fair enough," said Buck, and announced to the others that henceforth Idaho Bill was one of them.

Vaudeville and Pictures.

(At Loew's Grand.)

Beautiful dancing of the artistic type is the feature of the Lane and Travis revue, the headline attraction at Loew's Grand this week. Lester Lane and Elsie Travis are among the ablest dancers in vaudeville and have appeared with several of the biggest musical comedy productions in the country. The Loew bill is good all the way through this week. The Loew feature picture for the week is "Lady of the Night," with Norma Shearer.

Pease and Nelson.

(Head Keith's Bill.)

Two of America's foremost song writers, Harry Pease and Ed. G. Nelson are appearing at Keith's Forsyth theater the last half of this week in a deluge of song hits of their own making entitled "Inspiration" which is the headlining attraction of the bill.

These two are responsible for at least 100 song hits. They have written such popular numbers as "I Don't Want to Get Well," "Ten Little Fingers and Ten Little Toes," "Peggy O'Neil" and many many others. Also the act of Mary Cook Coward and company in "Melodies." Ed and Morton Beck are highly entertaining in "A Trip to Laughter," and Walter Ward and Ethel Dooley have a comedy skit entitled "I Can Do That Too." The Takewas are "Equilibristic Japs" who thrill.

"Little French Girl."

(At Howard.)

"The Little French Girl," the Herbert Brennon Paramount picture which is being shown at the Howard all this week, is one of the best pictures that has been shown at that popular theater for some time. The picture is based on the immensely popular novel of the same name by Anne Douglas Sedgewick.

Mademoiselle Amalia is on the stage in a very beautiful and graceful dance revenue.

A comedy, "Feet of Mud," features Harry Langdon.

"The Heart of a Siren."

(At the Metropolitan.)

The chief comedy role in "The Heart of a Siren," now showing at the Metropolitan theater, is taken by Clifton Webb, well known on the speaking stage.

Webb is new to the screen, having made his debut with Richard Barthelmess in "New Toys." His admirable comedy work, however, has made a decided hit with the fans, and it is predicted he will soon join the movie colony of New York permanently.

"A Broadway Butterfly."

(At the Rialto.)

Miss Estelle Bradley, the pretty Atlanta girl, who won the beauty contest run by The Atlanta Constitution last year and was chosen as "Miss Atlanta" to represent this city at the Atlantic City beauty parade, has a part in "A Broadway Butterfly," the chief attraction at the Rialto theater this week. It is a Warner Brothers "Classic of the Screen" with Louise Fazenda, Willard Louis, Dorothy Devore, Cullen Landis, Lilyan Tashman, John Roche, Wilfred Lucas and Margaret Seddon in the cast.

"Richard the Lion-Hearted"

'Richard, the Lion-Hearted.'

(At The Palace.)

"Richard, the Lion-Hearted," another big first run special feature with Wallace Beery in the title role is announced as the attraction at the Palace theater, Inman Park, today and Friday.

Based on "The Talisman," Sir Walter Scott's story so familiar to book lovers the world over, "Richard, the Lion-Hearted" has a two-point appeal. For those who seek entertainment alone, it unfolds a story of compelling interest in lavish settings that are a source of constant delight. For students of history or literature, it is a faithful representation of the life of the period in which it was laid. In its many beautiful scenes there is a wealth of antiques for which the museums of two continents were drawn upon.

TAX PUBLICITY LAW FACES BITTER BATTLE

Washington, May 27.—(Special.)—If the administration intends to carry its fight for repeal of the publicity sections of the new revenue law to the next congress, as is apparent, it will be a stiff battle.

It is confidently expected at the capitol that President Coolidge and Secretary of the Treasury Mellon will renew their recommendation for the repeal of the publicity section. The republican regulars in both houses, along with some of the more conservative democrats, will line up in favor of such action, and administration leaders believe in the end they will have enough votes to carry it.

Coalition Favors Law.

Nevertheless, they fully realize that they again will have to combat the coalition of democrats and insurgents which wrote the publicity section into the last revenue bill. That coalition is somewhat weakened, but still formidable. Instead of yielding to the widespread demand for repeal of the publicity section, republican insurgents are working on a substitute draft to clarify and strengthen that section.

Senator Couzens, Michigan, chairman of the senate committee now engaged in investigating the internal revenue bureau, expressed the view today that congress would not sanction a return to the old practice of the treasury department of safeguarding income tax payments from public inspection. He favors throwing the entire return of a taxpayer open to public inspection.

Would Widen Scope.

"I do not believe the publicity section should be repealed," said the senator. "I am not in favor of repeal, but I am in favor of widening the scope of publicity provision. The entire tax return should be open to public inspection."

Senator King, Utah, a democratic member of the Couzens committee, and Senator Borah, Idaho, also predicted that it would be impossible to repeal the publicity section. Senator King said he was engaged in drafting a new tax bill which he would offer when the question of tax revision reaches the senate. In it he will have some suggestions to offer for clarifying the present law.

Senator Norris, of Nebraska, author of the original tax publicity section, will lead the fight against repeal. He said just before leaving here Wednesday for Canada that he would introduce a provision opening the full returns to publicity, if an attempt is made for repeal. He made this threat last session, which was regarded as partly responsible for the issue being left dormant.

"Poppy Girl" Entered in Contest

MISS MOINA MICHAEL.

Athens, Ga., girl, who it is claimed, originated "poppy days," following the World War. Her name has been entered in a contest for a $5,000 prize to be given the American woman who makes the most distinctive achievement through individual effort in art, industry, literature, music and education. Her friends predict she has a good chance to win the prize.

Athens, Ga., May 27.—(Special.)—Another distinguished Georgia woman has been nominated for a national award for public achievement following the award of the Roosevelt distinction to Miss Martha Berry, head of the famous Berry school.

This other Georgian is Miss Moina Michael, also engaged in educational work, of Athens, who is the originator of the Poppy idea following the victory in the world war. Miss Michael is general secretary of Y. W. C. A. at the State Normal school and matron at Winnie Davis memorial hall. She has been nominated for the Pictorial Review reward of $5,000 to be given the American woman who makes the most distinctive achievement through individual effort, in the field of art, industry, literature, music, drama, education, science or sociology.

Originated Poppy.

The work for which the award is made must be national in its influence, and those who have nominated Miss Michael believe her achievement in originating and having established throughout America, if not the entire world, the poppy idea entitles her to the award.

The Poppy of Flanders' Fields that was adopted as the national flower of the American Legion and which is sold by the millions over the world annually to relieve the distressed who were maimed and wounded in the world war, became the national emblem upon the insistence of Miss Michael, who first conceived it as the memorial flower of the great war.

Miss Michael has positive proof that she is entitled to the honor of the poppy idea. In addition to this honor she is the author of the answer to that famous war poem by Colonel McCrae, "In Flanders Field." She is also the author of the idea to have taps blown by an official bugler over the grave of the Unknown Soldier at Arlington every day at sunset. She is working on this plan now. During the war she did Red Cross work in Athens, New York and in various other soldier centers and was preparing to go to France when peace came.

Continues Active.

In making public the award the Pictorial Review states that the object of the venture is:

First, to bring to the attention of America and the rest of the world the creative work of our active women of today.

Second, to make it possible for at least one of these women to enjoy a period of relaxation or a period of concentrated effort, unhampered by the necessity of earning money.

Third, to find and present to the public intimate human stories of the life and work of the great women of today.

The Lonely Gopher

In 1905, in one of the very few poor counties of Middle Georgia, a group of "fly-by-nights" selected a piney woods waste, with nothing to recommend it but an old spring of doubtful purity—no inhabitants, no farming, nothing—just plain piney woods; and decided to Create a Boom!

Lots were sold from one end of the country to the other, even as far west as California. Maps were printed showing just where the PROPOSED Street Car Line would run; the PROPOSED Hotel would be built, the PROPOSED Business District would rest. One can propose anything on paper. For the grand opening a Special Train was run to this Flag Stop; a Brass Band was brought along to keep everybody in fine humor!

The crowd's disposition on arrival was much better than on departure. After one glance, they decided this was no place for a PROPOSED town; they couldn't picture a street car running through a pine thicket, a lawn party in the briars, or a dance in the sand; in fact they promptly saw they had been stung! One man threw his deed in a gopher hole, claiming the land was the gopher's by right of long and undisturbed possession—and the gopher ought to have it.

The gopher failed to record his deed, couldn't pay his taxes, and being a widower with no children—after a time just moved on away because he was lonesome and had no company.

The above is a true story.

MORAL: You can create a boom in the Sahara Desert but you can't maintain it.

From 1910 to 1920 Atlanta gained 46,000 inhabitants.

From 1920 to 1925 it is estimated we have gained 100,000—in other words we have gained, in the past five years, more than four times as fast as during the preceding ten years.

ATLANTA GROWS because it has Spirit, Wealth, Resources, Railroads, Natural advantages, and because Atlanta citizens COOPERATE.

Is it any wonder Cornelius Vanderbilt boosts Atlanta? That one of the world's largest Department stores is soon to open in Atlanta? That the eyes of the East and of the Middle West are looking for locations in Atlanta? That everybody, everywhere talks Atlanta?

Atlanta Real Estate is a safe INVESTMENT—not a Gamble.

HERRIOT DEFENDS RIFFIAN CAMPAIGN

BY JOHN O'BRIEN.

Paris, May 27.—A stormy debate on France's Morocco campaign, featured by socialist charges of imperialism and demands that peace negotiations open at once, culminated Wednesday in an extraordinary demonstration of enthusiasm for former Premier Herriot.

The adventure with the Riffian tribesmen had its auspices under Herriot and he has been subjected to some criticism for his role in the campaign. But the ex-premier's political opponents joined with the socialists and radicals in acclaiming him Wednesday night, when he sternly rebuked the communist deputy, Doriot, who accused the French bankers of provoking the Moroccan campaign and urged that the French troops should mutiny.

Herriot Intervenes.

"Assassin! bandit!" the conservatives yelled at Doriot. Herriot intervened.

"The deputies have a right to express their opinions," he said, "but when they pronounce such abominable words I believe the entire chamber will join in my protest. We are defending the cause of peace in territory confided to us. Our soldiers have a difficult task and the communists have no right to denounce them."

The uproar of cheers from the deputies was an impressive demonstration for the man they recently voted from office.

The communist Doriot insisted France had starved the Riffians and led them to revolt. He demanded the termination of the campaign and the recognition of a Riffian republic. Herriot demanded a retraction. Doriot repeated his accusations. A thunder of applause from Herriot's supporters vied against the hisses of the communists.

Clash Is Averted.

Conservative deputies gathered for a physical attack on Doriot and his comrades. Only the intervention of the ushers prevented a clash. Herriot's request for a vote of censure was opposed only by a few socialists and communists, the latter chanting the Internationale. It was agreed, finally, to postpone the debate until Thursday and further disorders were averted.

Before the Herriot-Doriot duel the socialist deputy, Renaudel, had charged the government was withholding the truth of the French losses in Morocco; that in Casa Blanca there were so many wounded that there was no room for future casualties.

FRENCH AND RIFFIANS PREPARING FOR CLASH.

Paris, May 27.—The French and Riffians were gathering stronger forces daily for the expected clash on the Moroccan front. The French, it was disclosed in the chamber of deputies today, have 60,000 men who are well entrenched for defense, but who are preparing for active warfare.

The Riffians, French headquarters reports, are gathering food and recruiting tribesmen in the evacuated area north of the Ouergha river and are bringing in well-trained young Germans to assist their commanders.

The French are believed to have received a tentative promise from Spain permitting them to pursue the Riffians across the border, or at least to bombard them from the air if necessary, but the exact extent of Spanish co-operation is not announced.

Premier Painleve is expected to tell the chamber tomorrow exactly what agreement M. Malvy reached with the Spanish authorities on his recent visit to Madrid.

The few reports from the scene of action that have come in the last two days told of some hard fighting and indicated that the tribesmen were by no means discouraged by their defeats. The French evacuation north of the Ouergha, however much policy dictated it, is accepted as proving that Abd-El-Krim is formidable.

RAWLINGS TRIAL SET FOR JUNE 22

Dublin, May 27.—Charles G. Rawlings, charged with the murder of G. A. Tarbutton, Johnson county farmer, will be placed on trial in Wrightsville, June 22.

Former Governor Thomas W. Hardwick, counsel for the defendant, appealed to the supreme court when Judge Earl Camp, in Laurens superior court, recently declined to grant a change of venue from Wrightsville. The appeal is still pending.

Rawlings is a prominent banker of Sandersville and has interests in Sandersville and several thousand acres of farm land nearby.

AGED WOMAN DIES FOLLOWING FALL LATE WEDNESDAY

An aged white woman, believed to be a Mrs. Bland, who resided in the rear of 34 Garnett street, died shortly after reaching Grady hospital Wednesday night, from injuries received when she fell down a flight of stairs at her home.

Hearing a noise in a small house in the rear of 34 Garnett street, police were called and Call Officers Goode and Bullard were detailed to investigate. The aged woman was found at the foot of the stairs in an unconscious condition and was rushed to Grady hospital. After an examination physicians stated she suffered a fractured skull.

Residents at 34 Garnett street told officers that she gave her name as Mrs. Bland and had resided there only for the past two months. Hospital authorities early Thursday had not been able to locate friends or relatives of the woman.

FLORIDA SENATE APPROVES SEARCH AND SEIZURE BILL

Tallahassee, Fla., May 27.—(By the Associated Press.)—The house search and seizure bill requiring the clerk of circuit court to hold property seized under search warrant charging violation of the prohibition law today was passed by the senate, 26 to 2, Senators Coe and Clark casting the negative votes. An attempt failed to amend the title eliminating reference to search and seizure.

13 COUNTERFEITERS PLACED ON TRIAL

Chicago, May 27.—(By the Associated Press.)—Trial of Santo Jemalli and 12 others charged with the $1,000,000 war savings stamp counterfeiting uncovered by the federal secret service was begun today before Federal Judge Cliff. Ben Newmark, former assistant state fire marshal, and Daniel Perry, a former court bailiff, who was shot by unidentified assailants recently, have been granted a separate trial.

The counterfeit plot, with ramifications in Chicago, Cleveland, Pittsburg and other cities, is said to have been the largest of its kind every revealed by the secret service. Since the arrests here, one of the defendents, Antonio Bambara, and more recently Perry, was summoned to his front door and shot down.

NEW TRAIN SERVICE MAY BE REQUESTED

Dublin, Ga., May 27.—(Special.)—Rumors current over a period of several weeks that the Seaboard Air Line railway will assume active charge of the Macon, Dublin & Savannah road, cannot be confirmed in local quarters. The Seaboard system owns the road and has for several years although it has been operated independently.

Possibility that the owning road would take charge gave rise here to general belief that re-arranged schedules in both freight and passenger service, particularly possibility of a through train and sleeping car service to Atlanta and Savannah, would be inaugurated.

This section long has wanted the through train service and previously has had schedules which proved inconvenient in many respects.

Failure to obtain confirmation of various rumors regarding operation of the road in the future is causing considerable speculation and may result in petitions for a revision of schedules in both passenger and freight service, it was learned today.

LONE BANDIT GETS 15-YEAR TERM

R. L. Travis, alias Johnson, lone bandit who terrorized certain sections of the city for several weeks prior to his capture last week, was sentenced Wednesday in Judge G. H. Howard's division of superior court to serve from 15 to 20 years in prison, after he pleaded guilty on 10 counts.

The plea of guilty covered five robbery indictments, four larceny of automobile counts and one true bill charging transportation of a stolen automobile from Florida to Georgia.

A total sentence of 75 years was carried with the 10 indictments, but Judge Howard specified that the sentences were to run concurrently, reducing the total time to from 15 to 20 years.

No statement to the court was made by Travis, and his girl bride, who has avowed undying loyalty for her erring mate, was not present at court, being unable to stand the strain of the scene, according to Detective A. Lamar Poole.

Travis told police soon after his arrest that he had told his bride he was rich, and in order to keep up this pretense he was forced to carry on his career of robbery.

He committed five robberies of grocery stores, most of which were spectacular in their boldness, though he testified after his arrest that he never laid out a plan of campaign before the deed was accomplished.

Travis came to Atlanta several weeks ago from Tampa, Fla. He is a native of Ohio.

RAIL STOCK RATING IN MERGER OPPOSED

Washington, May 27.—(By the Associated Press.)—On the basis of earnings, without considering other factors, W. W. Colpitts, a railroad valuation engineer, testified today before the interstate commerce commission, railroads concerned in the Nickel Plate merger project should have been rated otherwise than they were in the assignment of stock in the new Nickel Plate company.

Though called as a witness in support of the plan of O. P. and M. J. Van Sweringen for the merger with the Nickel Plate of the Chesapeake & Ohio, Erie, Pere Marquette and Hocking Valley systems, Mr. Colpitts set forth his conclusion as to earnings on the basis of a study of the records of all five of the corporations for a three-year period ending with 1924.

He explained, however, that the questions of debt maturity, business anticipation and government policy toward consolidation all should be considered as well as indicated earning power, and that these factors he had excluded from the calculations he was giving. As to whether the percentages of new stock contemplated in the plan were fair, Mr. Colpitts would express no opinion.

In summing up his findings, on the basis of earnings, he said, Chesapeake & Ohio common stockholders, who have been tentatively assigned $55 in preferred and $55 in common stock of the new Nickel Plate corporation for each share they now hold, should receive $59 of each stock class instead.

Erie, Pere Marquette, and old Nickel Plate company stockholders, on the other hand, he said, under the Van Sweringen plan would receive amounts of new stock in excess of a standard based exclusively on earnings. As a member of the Pere Marquette directing board which transacted negotiations with the Van Sweringen interests, he added he had asked and received for that corporation a somewhat larger percentage of new stock than was originally offered.

The Hocking Valley shares, which are to bring $50 in common and $50 in preferred of the new company for each unit of the old, Mr. Colpitts said would be entitled on the basis of earnings to receive approximately $90 in their classes of new Nickel Plate stock.

NEW-MADE GRAVE IS INVESTIGATED NEAR MOULTRIE

Moultrie, Ga., May 27.—(Special.) Unauthorized use of a privately owned burial ground, several miles south of Moultrie, resulted in the owners of the cemetery appealing to local officers to start an investigation with a view of trying to learn the identity of what is believed to be an infant that lies buried in the newly made grave discovered today.

Officers who visited the scene removed enough dirt from the mound to ascertain that a wooden box, about 18 inches long, is in the grave, but declined to lift it out to see whether a body is in it. A court order asking authority for disinterment and an autopsy will be asked tomorrow.

The new grave was dug between two old ones, which are close together, and the dirt from one of the old tombs was removed to raise the mound over the new burial spot, and this fact led officers to believe the persons responsible did the work at night.

ALTHOUGH BADLY HURT, MAN WILL RECOVER

Thomasville, Ga., May 27.—(Special.)—Although suffering from a broken thigh bone, an arm, a collar bone and other wounds and bruises, Grover Daugherty, a resident of this county, who was supposedly hit by an automobile, will recover, his physicians state. Daugherty was brought to the city hospital here by T. H. Kimborough and W. W. Vonier, who found him lying in a ditch between Thomasville and Ochlocknee on the Dixie highway. Daugherty his given several contradictory statements of how he was hurt, but it is probable that the statement that he stepped in the middle of the road and hailed an automobile for a ride and was struck by the car is the correct one.

Efforts have been made to find the automobile that is supposed to have hit Daugherty, but without success.

CREW ESCAPES DEATH WHEN VESSEL BURNS

Nanaimo, B. C., May 27.—(By the Associated Press.)—Sixteen men, all of the crew of the motorship Wakena, which burned today off this place were picked up by the tug Bella and brought to Nanaimo. The Wakena's men escaped in life boats.

A famous Parisian surgeon states he killed a bird whose broken leg had been supported by a sort of sling made of feathers bound into position by the bird itself.

Two Commissions Signed by Early Presidents Found

Norfolk, Va., May 27.—(By the Associated Press.)—Two commissions engraved on sheepskin parchments, the first signed by President John Adams and the second by President Thomas Jefferson, making Jonathan Cowdery a surgeon's mate and a full surgeon in the United States navy, have been uncovered by Dr. John C. Sleet, of this city. Dr. Sleet will make an attempt to have the documents restored to their rightful owners. The first commission bears the date of 1800 and the second 1808.

In addition to the commissions there is a Masonic diploma from Washington lodge No. 26, making Cowdery a Master Mason and another from the Hudson, N. Y., lodge making him a mark master.

Dr. Sleet obtained the documents from a patient, who found them some time ago inclosed in a steel case hidden in an old brick wall in a house he was repairing.

Every effort will be made to locate the family to which the documents should be returned, Dr. Sleet said.

"NO MAN'S LAND" CLEAN OF STILLS IN TWIGGS COUNTY

Jeffersonville, Ga., May 27.—(Special.)—"No man's land" gave up its last blind tiger outfit today, when Deputy J. L. Griffin, J. H. Hartly and R. F. Thomas located a large outfit on Hogan's branch in the western section of Twiggs county. Thirty-six barrels of mash, 1,000 gallons of beer, 15 gallons corn whisky, and 20 small kegs to be used to transport the liquid to the market were totally destroyed.

When the officers finished their work at this still they made a diligent search, covering a radius of five miles up various streams but all they found was old sites where stills were destroyed in the past.

Twiggs county is freer from this traffic than ever before and those in authority say the county's blind tigers are either broken up or the operators have moved to some other place in the neighboring counties.

A new illuminating gas has been developed, which is said to be non-asphyxiating and to have double the heat value and candle-power of ordinary manufactured gas. It is made either from oil or from refinery residium.

SOFIA BOMB PLOTTERS EXECUTED IN PUBLIC

Sofia, Bulgaria, May 27.—(By the Associated Press.)—Three of the leaders in the recent bombing of the Sveti Kral cathedral in which 160 persons were killed, were hanged here today. The men executed were Zadgorsky, custodian of the cathedral, Friedmaa and Koeff.

The men were executed in a public square in the presence of thousands of persons. Troops formed lines about the execution place, which was just behind a Jewish cemetery.

Koeff mounted the scaffold first and a Gypsy executioner adjusted the noose around his neck.

Zadgorsky came second, tottering up the steps with difficulty.

Friedman, the last to mount the scaffold, approached the hangman with his head held proudly erect.

The bombing of the Sveti Kral cathedral in Sofia occurred April 16 during funeral services for General Gheorghieff, who had been assassinated in the streets of the Bulgarian capital April 14. On the day of his assassination an attempt also was made to assassinate King Boris, of Bulgaria, as he was motoring near Sofia.

The death sentences of Peter Zadgorsky, Marco Friedman and Georgi Keoff are the first death penalties King Boris has ever approved. Other death sentences have been imposed in the past by Bulgarian courts, but the king always has declined to sanction them.
